FUND DIVERSION OF $1,998,000 LAID TO RHEEM

Lawyer Charges Clients of Firm Were Never Credited on Books.

COMPANY OFFICIAL CLAIMS IMMUNITY

Referee Refuses to Allow Accused's Personal Bank Account to Be Aired.

Charges that nearly $2,000,000 received from released properties of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. were never credited to customers, accounts, yesterday confronted Edmund D. Rheem, executive secretary of the bankrupt concern, now under $25,000 bond on embezzlement charges.

George E. Sullivan, attorney, who has taken a leading role in the examination of Rheem before Referee in Bankruptcy Fred J. Eden, made the allegation when hearings were resumed at the company's offices.

"Isn't it a fact that $1,998,000 from released notes was never even credited to noteholders?" Sullivan asked.

"I couldn't tell you that," Rheem replied.

"But you must know whether as much as $2,000,000 was credited to their accounts?" Sullivan insisted.

Personal Bank Balances.

"I couldn't testify concerning that," Rheem responded. He added that only by checking the individual accounts of noteholders with the company's balances could he answer Sullivan's query.

At the opening of the hearing, Marcus Borchardt, another attorney, made an effort to pry into the personal bank balances of Rheem, a point previously passed on by the referee, in favor of the witness.

Borchardt asked Rheem where he made his personal bank deposits in 1930. Leon Tobriner, attorney for Rheem, objected, and Referee Eden ruled that the scope of the inquiry did not embrace Rheem's personal effects.

Borchardt objected to the ruling; charged "it is quite possible Mr. Rheem received certain remuneration for releasing first trust notes for less than the amount of the original trusts;" and again insisted that the witness answer his question.

Contention Is Overruled.

The referee overruled his contention that the witness, as an officer for the bankrupt company, was just as much in bankruptcy as the company, and challenged him to produce legal precedent to support his statement.

There followed examination on a long list of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. properties, the Bulk of which involved release of trusts, placement of other trusts, and charges of nonpayment of noteholders.

When pressed to explain what was done with funds received for release of a number of properties, Rheem claimed immunity, on the ground that an answer might tend to incriminate him.

The largest property figuring in the examination was the Printcraft Building at Tenth and H streets, where a $650,000 first trust was released and replaced by another trust for the same amount. Rheem testified that here most of the noteholders were either paid, or the funds received from their released notes reinvested for them. He testified that the notes issued on the replacement trust were first surrendered as collateral on a $350,000 loan. He said the replacement notes are still outstanding and in the possession of two local banks.

Other Properties Enter Quiz.

Other properties on which Rheem was questioned yesterday included the unimproved tract of land at Massachusetts and Nebraska avenues; property at 1460 Irving street northwest, Twenty-second and N street, Thirteenth and Monroe street, 1630 Park road and the Eldon, at 933 L street northwest. Rheem claimed immunity when questioned on funds received from the Eldon, the Thirteenth and Monroe street property and the structure at Twenty-second and N.

Rheem will be required to file an answer to the petition of Attorney E. Hilton Jackson, which sought to throw the former mortgage note executive into individual bankruptcy proceedings.

Justice Jesse Adkins yesterday overruled Rheem's motion to dismiss the proceedings brought against Rheem by holders of notes issued by his company, where such loans were found to be secured only by released trusts.

Attorney Leon Tobriner fought the

Gen. Dunlap Believed Killed in Avalanche

District Man Entombed With Two Others in French Cave.

BRIG. GEN. ROBERT H. DUNLAP

Tours, France, May 19 (A.P.).—Buried alive in a cave in which men of the stone age once lived, Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, of the United States Marine Corps, was the object tonight of frenzied rescue efforts although hope that he had escaped death virtually had been abandoned.

An avalanche from a hilltop overlooking the Loire River engulfed him today with two farmer folk—man and wife—with whom he had been friendly.

The marine officer was caught with Denis Briant, the farmer, while both sought to save Briant's wife, who was trapped first by the fall of earth and rock.

A detachment of military engineers arrived at 10 p. m. from Angers and went to work immediately under the glare of searchlights. They planned to continue their efforts throughout the night.

No answer was received to signals of rescuers who knocked on a wall adjacent to the debris.

It was estimated tonight two or three days may elapse before the imprisoned trio can be reached. Mrs. Dunlap, who was preparing with her husband to visit the historic Tower of Cinq Mars la Pile, nearby, witnessed the tragedy and was in a state of near collapse tonight.

Brig. Gen. Dunlap only a few weeks ago was transferred to Tours to perfect his studies of the French lan-

YOUTH HELD IN PLOT TO EXTORT $50,000

W. R. Biggs, 20, Is Charged With Trying to Get Sum From Culpeper Banks.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., May 19.—An attempt to extort $25,000 from the officers of each of Culpeper's banks by threats was frustrated late yesterday evening, and W. R. Biggs, 20, was taken into custody.

A letter, printed in red ink, was received at each bank last week, one being addressed to John S. Covington, president of the Culpeper National, and the other merely to the president of the Second National Bank. Both letters were practically identical, and read as follows:

"You will have $25,000 (twenty-five thousand dollars) in cash ready for us on Wednesday, May 20, 1931, or wish you had, see. Because if you don't, then look out. There will be a man in to see you. He does not know what is in the package. Don't tell him. Mark it. We will get it off of him. If you value your life, you will have the money ready, and you will keep your mouth shut. Signed, Mr. It."

At the Culpeper National Bank Mr. Covington warned the employes to be on the lookout on Wednesday, and nearby business men were asked to watch the bank on that day. Instead of waiting until Wednesday, it was charged, Biggs walked into the bank shortly before closing time yesterday afternoon, and remarked that he had a letter, the meaning of which he did not understand. He presented the following letter to Mr. Covington:

"Mr. Biggs, you will go to the Culpeper and the Second National Bank and ask for the president. They will give you a package marked Mr. It. You will hold them until we take them. You guard them with your life, if ou don't have them you will go for a ride, see. You will keep your mouth shut, and do as we told you. Signed Mr. It."

Mr. Covington told Biggs he would have to talk things over, and Biggs was taken back to the directors' room and the matter was discussed with him. Finally it was agreed that he should return at 5:30, which he did, it was said. At that time, Victor von Gemmingen, town manager, and several others were present. After listening to Biggs' conversation for several minutes the town manager, acting as chief of police, stepped in and arrested him, and he was taken to jail, where he is alleged to have confessed to planning the crime and writing the letters.

A preliminary hearing before Mayor S. L. Browning, set for this morning, was postponed until Saturday on motion of Biggs' counsel, C. M. Waite. Mr. Waite said informally that Biggs

NYE REFUSES DELAY FOR BISHOP CANNON

(Associated Press.)

A request by Bishop James Cannon, jr., for postponement until September 20 of the Senate inquiry into his use of campaign funds was denied yesterday by Chairman Nye, of the Senate investigating committee, because the statute of limitations against prosecution in the case would begin on September 18.

"In view of these facts," Senator Nye wrote the bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, "it would appear that the committee might incur a grave responsibility if it did not resume its hearings prior to that date."

The Senate committee is investigating a complaint by Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, that Bishop Cannon failed to account for a major portion of the $65,300 given to him as chairman of the anti-Smith committee in Virginia in 1928 by E. C. Jameson, New York financier.

On Monday Bishop Cannon called on Senator Nye and, the senator said, asked for a delay in the hearings by the Senate committee until September 20, explaining he would probably be out of the country until that time.

In his reply, Senator Nye noted that the first of the Jameson contributions was made on September 18, 1928, and that the statute of limitations applies three years from that date.

"Any suggestion," Senator Nye continued, "that the hearings be postponed until September 20, 1931, or later therefore would seem to be unacceptable but I would gladly submit your request to the members of the committee nevertheless.

"I am sure it is the desire of all members to give every consideration to your personal engagements so far as to afford, if possible, the opportunity for you to be present at all hearings, but you will at once appreciate that the first duty of the committee is so to conduct its investigations as to meet the obligation which the Senate imposed in the adoption of Senate resolution 403.

"The refusal of Miss Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer of the headquarters committee; anti-Smith Democrats, to testify has made it necessary for the committee to seek the information which she was expected to furnish through other channels, and to that extent has impeded and delayed the committee's investigation.

"At the same time attention has been directed to the fact that the statute of limitations will begin to run with reference to the first of the contributions of Mr. Jameson three years after date of that particular

Fight on American Missal Hinted by Bishop Freeman

Clergyman Warns Against Use of Any But Book of Common Prayer; Diocesan Convention in Church of Epiphany Under Way Here.

Echoes of the American Missal issue which has given rise to widespread comment in the Episcopal Church in the United States were heard in the annual pastoral address of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, at the opening session of the diocesan convention in the Church of the Epiphany last night.

Without referring to the American Missal directly by name, Bishop Freeman gave a firm but kindly warning that any book, other than the Book of Common Prayer, "the sole official manual for the conduct of the church's corporate offices," may not be used in the churches of this diocese. "I should certainly be unworthy of your trust and confidence," declared the bishop, "did I not express the conviction that any book, no matter by whom edited or published, that in any respect departs from the offices duly set forth by this church's authority, may not be used in the churches of this diocese. To give any such book place is to do violence to our solemn obligation as loyal sons of this church."

The American Missal is an altar book arranged by a committee of bishops and clergymen of the Episcopal Church not authorized by the general convention of that church. Bishop William T. Manning, of the diocese of New York, positively forbade its use in his jurisdiction and there appears to be the makings of

LEAGUE NAMES HENDERSON AS ARMS CUT HEAD

Briton's Selection Wins Applause From Larger Member Nations.

PAN-AMERICANS SEEK ECONOMIC REMEDY

Subcommittee Is Appointed to Draft Plan for Aiding Recovery of Trade.

Geneva, May 19 (A.P.).—Arthur Henderson, foreign minister of Great Britain's Labor government, was designated tonight by the League of Nations council to preside over the world conference for limitation and reduction of armaments, which begins February 2, 1932.

Henderson warmly thanked his colleagues for the honor, but said that he must consult the British government before accepting. No doubt was felt here, however, that he would be the directing chief of the conference. The place for the conference has not been decided, but it was considered almost certain that Geneva would be selected tomorrow.

Henderson's selection as chairman was considered tonight to be a testimonial to his steadily increasing prestige and popularity in the European world of international affairs. He attracted favorable notice by his skill and firmness in the chair at the League Council session in January and his activities in behalf of an understanding between Italy and France have won friends for him in both countries.

Germany Likes Henderson.

By Germany, also, he is regarded as a sincere well-wisher and well-doer. It was felt here that it would be a huge advantage to have in the chair a representative of one of the great powers, with the influence of his country and government behind him.

Six months ago Dr. Edduard Benes, Czechoslovakian foreign minister, was the leading candidate for the conference chairmanship, but his intimate relation with the French government aroused stiff opposition from German and Italian quarters.

The possibility of an American chairman was considered, but word was received quietly from Washington that the United States did not wish to assume the responsibility of the office. A neutral chairman was also the subject of conversations, but none could be found to combine the characteristics which Henderson possesses.

Government Change No Bar.

The possibility of a change in government in Great Britain was foreseen but many international observers believed that Henderson would be acceptable even if the Labor government were not in power when the conference begins.

"I agree with President Hoover," Mr. Henderson said, "that the success of the general disarmament conference will be a great contribution to world recovery."

"But tariff walls are the worst sin-

REVOLT THREAT STIRS MACHADO TO PLAN ACTION

REBELLION MENACE IN ORIENTE PROVINCE

Suspension of Guarantees Is Looming; Thousands Are Accused of Plot.

Havana, May 19 (A.P.).—President Gerardo Machado sent a message to Congress tonight in which he said he had been mistaken about conditions in Cuba having quieted enough to warrant reestablishment of constitutional guarantees and gave notice that he would again suspend them throughout the republic if it became necessary.

"I have seen my best efforts to insure order meet with little appreciation," the president's message read. "On the contrary, they have been interpreted in a manner which would be calculated to maintain a state of unrest, which hinders the normal solution of Cuba's economic difficulties.

"In my message of April 8, inspired by a desire to see normalcy restored, I made the statement that order was absolute although I realized at the time there was considerable tension. I felt that ordinary police vigilance might be sufficient to handle the situation, however, without further continuing the suspension of guarantees which Congress authorized.

Says Unrest Persists.

"This statement was badly judged and, far from tending to restore peace, it has resulted in action prejudicial to the maintenance of order.

"The unrest persists, particularly in Oriente Province, to a point where I fear public peace is menaced. I am being kept well informed about the whole republic, especially Oriente, so that I may keep Congress informed about the state of affairs. I will again use this power, invested in me if circumstances warrant, and I feel, that if good judgment is used in the application of such authority, we may be able to avoid a very disagreeable situation."

All of the members of the Nationalist Union, students and employes of six opposition publications late today were accused of conspiracy to rebel in a deposition filed with the court of instruction, fourth section, by chiefs of the judicial and secret police.

Armed Revolt Planned.

The deposition charged that Nationalists, students and "other conspirators," assisted by employes of four unnamed daily newspapers and two weekly publications, were planning armed revolt against the administration of President Machado.

Were an attempt made to serve warrants on all those listed in the deposition what probably would be the world's record in wholesale arrests would be made. Upward of 500,000 members are claimed by the Nationalist Union alone.

Surprise and puzzlement were created by announcement of the procedure. It is generally believed that

Woodland Beach Lot Plan Well Received

Crowds of Post Subscribers Enthusiastic Over Being Able to Buy Tract in Summer Colony Development for Only $93.

Woodland Beach, the summer colony development, announced yesterday by The Washington Post for its subscribers, must have been just what Capital residents have wanted for years, judging from the instant response to the first announcement of the project.

The ink was hardly dry on the city editions of The Post yesterday morning when the first applicants for lots in this new summer home area, just 32 miles from Washington, were in the office of The Post demanding a look at the chart and seeking opportunity to make choice selections.

Woodland Beach appealed to the public because it offers everything the owner of a summer home desires when he starts out to locate. Situated on the South River in Maryland, a few miles this side of Annapolis, it has woods, water, beach front, sun and shade. There is ample ground for all who desire to participate in the organization of the Woodland Beach community. It is easy to reach by motor; readily accessible by traction line and still far enough removed from the hustle and bustle of city life to furnish the peace and quiet which summer home owners seek.

The proposition by which one may become a lot owner at Woodland Beach also has proven attractive to hundreds of those who inquired at The Post yesterday for details of the plan. First of all, a subscription to The Post is required. After that it is easy to become a lot owner at Woodland Beach. Lots are $93 each. And they may be obtained by the simple process of depositing $5 with The Post and paying $3.50 per month until the entire amount has been cleared.

All lot owners in the Woodland Beach development will have equal rights. An association of lot owners will be formed and regulations of the development will be outlined and adopted by members of the association.

A special feature of Woodland Beach will be a community house, now in course of construction. It will be equipped with all modern conveniences and will offer a delightful meeting place for residents of the section.

To reach Woodland Beach, the motorist need only start out Defense highway on the way to Annapolis. Upon reaching Camp Parole, just this side of the Maryland capital, turn right onto Maryland State road No. 2, crossing the South River bridge and continuing to Mayo road. At Mayo road turn left and follow the same road to Woodland Beach which is plainly marked. The clubhouse being constructed is another marker easy to find. Those desiring to go by W., B. & A. traction line should leave the cars at Camp Parole. Auto transportation to the Woodland Beach site will be furnished by The Post on Sundays, meeting visitors at Camp Parole and returning them to the traction line.

Woodland Beach is decidedly attractive for the summer season, when the heat of city streets and pavements causes the average city dweller

DAY KILLING SUSPECT GIVES UP; HIJACKING SEEN IN ALLEY ATTACK

Elmer J. Sweeney, 25, Is Alleged to Admit He Slew Gunman.

CUNNINGHAM'S FIGHT TO LIVE IS FRUITLESS

District Policeman Will Be Questioned; Pratt Hits Failure of Law.

Jack Cunningham died in Emergency Hospital at 11:10 o'clock last night.

Elmer J. "Bulldog" Sweeney, 25 years old, was last night charged with the murder of Talley Day, 24-year-old gunman, who was mortally wounded Sunday night in a reputed speakeasy.

The charge was placed against him by Detective Sergt. John A. Flaherty after the suspect is reported to have said: "I shot in self-defense. I have no further statement to make, on advice of counsel."

Sweeney, who fled the speakeasy on M street near Fifteenth street directly after the gun fight, surrendered late yesterday on Fourth street and Indiana avenue northwest to Detective Sergts. Robert J. Barrett and Joseph Waldron.

Declined to Sign Statement.

Acting Capt. Edward J. Kelly and Sergts. Flaherty, Waldron and Barrett questioned Sweeney, but he refused to amplify his statement. He also declined to make any signed statement that he had shot in self-defense.

The policemen quoted the suspect as having admitted firing, but claimed that it was in self-defense. Sweeney, who lives on L street northwest near Fourteenth street, surrendered to the detectives after he had communicated with his attorney, Bertrand Emerson, jr.

Detectives are continuing a search for another man who accompanied Sweeney and at whom Day fired after an argument following a card game and the dousing of Day with a gin buck.

Fled Scene in Taxicab.

The suspect told a reporter that it "was a tough position to be in. You can bet I sweated." After the shooting Sweeney said, he fled the place in a taxicab and left his gun in the cab. For the past three days, he said, he had remained with friends in the vicinity of Sixth and H streets northwest.

The suspect said he would have surrendered earlier; but had no funds to pay a lawyer and he was forced to borrow money from friends.

According to the police version of the shooting, a companion of Sweeney was in an argument with Day, as the climax of a card game. Sweeney's companion is said to have "guyed" Day for being a poor loser.

Day drew his gun, police said, as other occupants of the place fled. Day is said to have fired at Sweeney's companion and then turned the gun toward Sweeney, who is said to have opened fire, a bullet striking him in the temple, causing his death six hours later in Emergency Hospital.

Policeman to Be Quizzed.

The hijacking of a load of assorted liquors and Pennsylvania beer from a speakeasy on I street near Twelfth street northwest is thought by police to be the root of the murderous attack upon Jack H. Cunningham, who is near death in Emergency Hospital, from bullet wounds received early yesterday by an assailant who had him "on the spot" near his home.

Events in the investigation shifted last night toward a District policeman who is to be interrogated regarding his relationships with the wounded man.

It was learned authoritatively by The Washington Post last night that detectives were prying into the affairs of the policeman, who was formerly attached to the First Precinct, but was transferred to an outlying precinct "for the good of the service."

Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, commanding officer of the First Precinct, admitted that a former member of his command was being considered as a suspect in the case and that, it was his understand, headquarters detectives were checking his activities to determine if he was off duty at the time of the assault.

Recent shootings and disorders in speakeasies and bookmakers' establishments have been definitely laid to local hoodlums and police characters, who are runners, or guards for

PAPAL DELEGATES' HOME SITE BOUGHT

Massachusetts Avenue Tract Is Valued at $223,000; Price Not Given.

Purchase of an extensive residential tract of almost 1 1-3 acres fronting Massachusetts avenue near Thirty-fourth street and fronting Observatory Circle as a site for the home of the Catholic apostolic delegation to the United States was announced yesterday by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore.

Final payment on the tract of 55,837 squart feet, close to both the British Embassy and the Norwegian Legation, was made May 5, but the purchase price was not divulged.

The act consummates a deal initiated in March, 1930, when Archbishop Curley and three other members of the Catholic hierarchy in this country were named as a committee to select a site for construction of a home to replace the quarters of the apostolic delegation at 1811 Biltmore street northwest.

Serving with him have been Archbishop John T. McNichols, of Cincinnati; Bishop Thomas J. Walsh, of Newark, and Bishop Thomas C. O'Reilly, of Scranton, Pa.

Real estate appraisers declared that land in that area is valued at approximately $4 per square foot. On this basis the property has a value of $223,348. The tract was purchased through George H. Lamar, acting as trustee for the Massachusetts Park Syndicate.

Frederick V. Murphy, head of the school of architecture of the Catholic University of America in Washington, has been selected as the archi-

BOY, 18, IS DROWNED AS CANOE CAPSIZES

Police Drag Potomac River for John Walsh's Body; Two Chums Escape.

Police late last night were dragging the Potomac River above Three Sisters, the small islands upstream from Key Bridge, for the body of John J. Walsh, 18, who drowned after the canoe in which he was paddling capsized. His two boy companions swam to safety, but he disappeared below the surface after making only a few strokes.

The tragedy occurred yesterday afternoon shortly after the three youths had obtained permission to leave their classes at Central High School during the noon recess. They went directly to the river and rented a canoe.

Becoming alarmed when his son did not make his daily afternoon appearance to help him in his hardware store on Upshur street near Georgia avenue, the victim's father telephoned home, only to learn that John was not there. Almost overcome with fear, but unable to do anything, the parents knew nothing of their son's fate until 6 p. m., when one of his two companions on the canoe outing notified them that the boy had drowned.

Harbor Precinct police meanwhile had been dragging the river, but without success. It was said that the frail craft overturned about 30 feet from shore when one of its occupants reached for a cigarette.

The boy who lost his life was a second-year student at Central High and was noted for his ability as a swimmer. He lived at 1213 Farragut street northwest.

11 Americans Among 400 Presented at English Court

Buckingham Palace in Gala Dress for First Reception of Season; Wales and Prince George, Absent, Disappoint Debutantes.

London, May 19 (A.P.).—More than 400 women, including 11 Americans, tonight were presented to King George and Queen Mary—in the first court of the season. Their majesties sat on their great golden thrones in the ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

Great crowds assembled outside the palace to get a glimpse of the debutantes and matrons as they lined up in glistening limousines some hours ahead of time.

Some of the excited debutantes spent their time during the long wait smoking or reading. Others opened the windows of their cars and talked to the onlookers, and one of them was seen knitting.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the signal was given and the automobiles moved slowly toward Buckingham Palace, which was in gala dress for the occasion, with flowers everywhere.

As the king and queen approached the ballroom the lord chamberlain walked backward in front of them. King George was wearing a scarlet full-dress uniform of colonel in chief of the Scots Guards. The queen's costume was of pink chiffon with pearls and diamonds in her corsage and pearls embroidered in her train. She wore a diamond tiara on her silver hair.

Those who had hoped to be presented to the Prince of Wales were disappointed. He was chief guest at an artists' dinner and so was de-gamblers, or hip-pocket bootleggers known to the police. Some have served time in jail, while others have been convicted and fined for various misdemeanors.

Pratt Claims Hindrance.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, Superintendent of Police, declared that opposition to the vagrancy bill proposed by the Police Department had prevented passage of that measure and had hindered the police in their efforts to put behind bars many connected with the bootlegging and gambling business in the District.

Passage of the police vagrancy bill was prevented by criticism of its drastic provisions, some members of Congress declaring its broad provisions would have authorized police to arrest President Coolidge the minute he left the White House at the end of his term as a vagrant without a job—otherwise, visible means of support. Police officials deride such criticism of their measure, declaring that persons of good character would have no difficulty in beating a ridiculous or unwarranted vagrancy charge, if it were made. Police officials insist there would be no abuse of the broad authority which would be conferred on them by the proposed law, which would regard as vagrant any person without visible means of support who was a known or acknowledged criminal or who frequented gambling or drinking places.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached Sunday afternoon, May 31, at 4 o'clock in the college chapel by the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, of the Foundry Methodist Church, Washington.

Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the annual May Day Festival will be held, followed by a reception of parents of the graduates of the high school department.

Plans for distribution of the Department of Agriculture bulletin on trees and shrubs suitable for planting in the Piedmont section will be the principal business before the subcommittee on information and publicity of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council at its meeting tonight in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in Clarendon.

The bulletin has been revised at the request of the Arlington County bicentennial council for use in preparation for the celebration to be held next year. It groups the trees and shrubs according to ultimate height and gives for each plant data.

This bulletin may be obtained by writing to the Department of Agriculture or telephoning or calling in person at the headquarters of the Bicentennial Council, Kelley Building, Clarendon.

The subcommittee on information and publicity consists of A. J. Webb, chairman; N. Rex Hunt, C. Sorenson, Arthur Orr, D. R. Luttrell, John Smithfield, Mrs. J. S. Moran, O. J. Schuster and J. L. Zile.

The executive committee of the Creative Arts Club of Arlington, meeting last night at the home of the president, Mrs. Sade Catherine Coles, appointed the following committees: Membership, Mrs. Nellie Pawley, chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Young and Mrs. Perry L. Mitchell; program, Mrs. Claire Tisdale, chairman; Mrs. Mary Perkins Snyder, Mrs. Walter Cosby and Mrs. Frances Harris.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12 o'clock at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

John E. Green was held yesterday for action of the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas. He was later released on $2,000 bond.

Confessing theft of anautomobile near Buffalo, N. Y., May 5, 1931, Tommy DeMonte, 20, giving his address as Erie, Pa., arrested yesterday in Lyon Park by Officer Roger Orrison, is being held at the Arlington County Jail for New York authorities.

The Arlington County Rotary Club will meet tomorrow at 12:30 at the Washington Golf and Country Club. President Thomas W. Phillips will preside.

The Alexandria conference of the Woman's Missionary Societies will open its annual meeting at the Clarendon Methodist Church tonight at 8 o'clock. Mrs. T. J. Copeland, of Baltimore, conference president, is announced as the principal speaker.

Capital Pair, Wed With Aid Of Drinks, Wins Annulment

A marriage, inspired by drinks consumed by a young Washington couple on a lark in Baltimore nearly three years ago, was annuled yesterday by a Baltimore circuit judge.

The pair, who frankly admitted both were drunk when the marriage took place, were Mrs. Evelyn Santucci, of 626 Morton place northeast, awarded the right to resume her maiden name, Evelyn Donohue, and Joseph Santucci, jr., of Brookland, D. C.

Santucci told a divorce examiner in Baltimore Circuit Court No. 2 that he was only 20 years old when they were married, and that he thought the girl was 18, but later learned she was two years younger.

"I didn't know what it was all about," testified Mrs. Santucci. "I was in a complete haze."

She said she had been acquainted with Santucci, but did not "go with him." December 10, 1928, she said, she met him near her home and they went for a ride on the Baltimore pike, where "he stopped at a bootlegger's place and got a quart of gin."

Mrs. Santucci said they finished the bottle on the road to Baltimore.

Asked if she consented to the marriage, she said:

"How could I consent when I didn't know, as I told you before, what it was all about? I know that he was slapping me on the back and I was doing it to him going back home, and we were laughing about the joke. I was a sick girl when I came to at my home in Washington."

She said they separated after the marriage, and had not "kept any dates" since.

a real controversy over the matter similar to that aroused in the Church of England over the Deposited Prayer Book. The Book of Common Prayer now in use in the Episcopal Church in this country was finally adopted after revision by a special commission headed by the late Right Rev. Charles L. Slattery, Bishop of Massachusetts, at the general convention of the Episcopal Church in Washington in 1928.

Speaking of this Book of Common Prayer in his address last night, Bishop Freeman continued, "We are not at liberty to amend or alter it or to use substitutes, however appealing they may be."

Bishop Freeman also paid his respects to church leaders who indulge in controversies and contentions over "niceties of ceremonial practice" at a time when economic conditions constitute a challenge and a menace to Christian institutions.

"Unhappily, there are those in our household of faith today," he said, "who would sacrifice the usefulness and extended influence of the church that they may indulge themselves in practices that are alien to its lawful ways and usages. They apparently have no consciousness of the corporate character of the church; they regard themselves as utterly immune to that constituted authority that resides in General Convention."

Bishop Freeman referred to "an experiment in government which is being made today that puts entirely out of its scheme and policy religious institutions of every name." "The fact that this experiment is made in a country distant from us," he said, "does not render us immune to what may prove to be a baleful and sinister influence. Already its propaganda is worldwide."

"A propaganda that has as its main point of attack religious institutions and that seeks to create a worldwide revolution can not be regarded indifferently or lightly," added the bishop. "It is safe to affirm that no such worldwide movement to unsettle the Christian faith of men and nations has ever been contemplated or prosecuted in the centuries of Christian development. To regard such an attack without due regard for its grave consequences, or to think of our situation in America as being immune to its influence, is to pursue a course that may issue in confusion and disaster."

Speaking of widespread unemployment, Bishop Freeman said, "unemployment is a menace that engenders unrest and dissatisfaction and a disposition to lose confidence in the existing social and economic order." Petty person and party conceits at such a time he characterized as a "betrayal of trust." The bishop commended President Hoover's stand regarding the effect of increasing armaments as "firm middle ground between pacifism on the one hand and a belligerent and wildly extravagant course on the other."

Mentioning Washington aCthedral on Mount St. Alban, Bishop Freeman predicted the edifice will contribute its part, its necessary part to the life of Capital and republic, only insofar as it becomes a shrine for all those who worship God in spirit and truth. It is our hope that it may stand as the expression of a Nation's spiritual ideals, clad in the beauty and majesty of all that is best and noblest in the aspirations of art, architecture and Christian experience.

Bishop Freeman reported good progress for the past year in the diocese of Washington. Parish properties are in good physical condition, he said, stone churches have been built at College Park and Silver Spring and three buildings of colonial design erected at Chevy Chase for the Diocesan Home for Children.

Tribute was paid to the Rev. Thomas W. Cooke, rector of Ascension Parish, the Rev. Francis E. McManus, rector of the Church at Upper Marlboro, Md., and the Rev. Seth A. Mills, rector of Durham Parish, Md., who had died since the last diocesan convention.

Business sessions presided over by Bishop Freeman will be held in the Church of the Epiphany Parish Hall today and it is probable that the diocesan convention will not adjourn until tomorrow. Several hundred clerical and lay delegates of the diocese of Washington attending the convention.

FALLS CHURCH SITE FOR TANK IS SOUGHT

Agreement Expected to Be Reached in Few Days; Proposals Aired.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Endeavoring to find a site for the 200,000-gallon water tank to be erected in the town of Falls Church, the council held a special joint session with the school board to discuss the council's request that the school board sell the land in the rear of the town hall. The property is owned by the town, but the title is held by the school board. The front portion of the building is used by the town council and the community library occupies the other portion. The building was acquired by the town as a school prior to the erection of the Madison Elementary School.

The school board owns a frontage of 80 feet on Washington street and the land back of the building is 57 feet deep. The water tower would require a lot from 60 to 80 feet square. The original proposition of the town council was for the town to buy the 57 feet in the rear of the building and, if necessary, an additional strip adjoining now owned by Merton E. Church.

The second proposition of the council was in the event the town was unable to acquire the privately owned land it would ask the school board for consent to tear down a portion of the rear of the present building. The school board readily agreed to the first proposition, but the second was not so acceptable.

The contractor for the State highway commission yesterday started grading on the Lee highway or Washington street through the town. This work will be followed later this week by installation of water mains and cross arms in accordance with the contract let last week. It is expected that the necessary water tower site will be decided upon within the next two days.

Mrs. Elsie A. Davis, rural supervisor of white schools in Fairfax County, has arranged for a series of teachers meetings this week. The meetings will start at 1:30 o'clock each afternoon, beginning today, in the school at Herndon. Tomorrow's meeting will be held in the Woodlawn Schoolhouse and Friday's meeting in the Vienna Schoolhouse. Mrs. Davis states that since it is impossible for her to determine which would be the most convenient place for each individual teacher, she is leaving the question to the teachers, but they must attend one of the three meetings.

Questions to be discussed will be the result of the standard tests given during the past two weeks in all the seventh grades of the county by Mrs. Davis, Miss Elizabeth Elmore, Mrs. Willis Tanner and Miss Wander; the textbooks for next year and other questions of importance that will confront the teacher before and at the opening of school next term.

The 4-H Club at Fairfax will hold a business meeting this morning in Fairfax Schoolhouse. During the afternoon the Fairfax Home Demonstration Club will meet and discuss "Homemade Labor Savers for the Housewife."

The Little Aid Society of the Crossman Methodist Church will hold a card party this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Warren F. Brenizer, at 4600 Sixteenth street northwest, in Washington. Mrs. Jeannette Talford has charge of arrangements.

The Rev. Royal A. Rice, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church at Fairfax and leader of the Fairfax Boy Scout Troop, will give a travelogue, "Dream Pictures," this evening at Annandale School for benefit of Annandale Troop.

The Great Falls Grange will meet this evening in the Great Falls Grange Hall at Forestville.

The McLean Parent-Teacher Association will observe Child-Health Day this afternoon. Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, Fairfax County health nurse, will give a talk in regard to the preschool clinics for children who will enter school for the first time this year. Mothers of children who will enter school next September are urged to attend. The association will present a picture to Miss Ruby Dunkum's class which has had the largest attendance of mothers at the meetings of the association the past year. Mrs. Bruno Wittig has been made new chairman of the program committee.

A basket luncheon will be served at the meeting of the Guild of the Neighborhood House at McLean this afternoon. Mrs. J. G. Cunningham, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the theater party to be given tonight at the National Theater in Washington for the benefit of the guild, will make her report.

The municipal water system of the Town of Fairfax is being tested for possible leaks and the mains are being cleaned prior to turning the water into private homes and buildings. The system will be given treatment to kill any germs. This work will be done by A. Wagner, assistant engineer of the sanitary division of the State Health Department in Richmond, who is to have charge of the purification of the water before it is delivered to the homes.

The Kenmore Council Daughters of America of Andrew Chapel has nominated officers for the ensuing term as follows: Councilor, Mrs. Elsie Wood; associate councilor, Mrs. May Conner; vice councilor, Mrs. Frances Pierpoint; associate vice councilor, Mrs. Mildred Jenkins; recording secretary, Mrs. Margaret Day; assistant recording secretaries, Vernon Leigh, C. C. Pierpoint and Mrs. Dorothy Berry; financial secretaries, Mrs. Catherine Leigh and Mrs. Helen Kidwell; treasurer, Mrs. Lawrence Leigh; conductors, Mrs. C. C. Pierpoint and Mrs. Olga Money; warden, Mrs. Irene Caton; inside sentinel, Mrs. John Berry; outside sentinels, Mrs. Emily Caton and Mrs. Frances Pierpoint; 18-month trustee, Mrs. Goldie Miller.

Chicago, May 19 (A.P.).—Three Chicago bandits have a lot of time on their hands today. They hijacked a truck driver and escaped with his cargo of electric clocks valued at $5,000 today.

2 SEAMEN CONFESS AID IN SINKING SHIP

Crew Members Plead Guilty of Fraud in Attempt to Collect Insurance.

Mobile, Ala., May 19 (A.P.).—James A. Fulford and Salvador Martinez, members of the crew on the freighter, Rose Murphy, which sank off the Florida coast in 1927, pleaded guilty in Federal court here today to charges of conspiring to scuttle the ship and collect the insurance.

Capt. John G. Murphy, of Mobile, owner of the Rose Murphy, pleaded not guilty to the same charges and his trial proceeded. Sentencing of Fulford and Martinez was postponed until completion of the trial.

Fulford and Martinez are regarded by the prosecution as the principal witnesses in the case against Murphy. Government attorneys said they expected to show Murphy conspired with Fulford, Martinez, Capt. George Wonson and Orrice C. Roddy, now dead, to sink the ship, and that he agreed to pay them $7,500 for scuttling her.

Capt. Wonson shot himself last fall, soon after being arrested, and Roddy died at sea while a Coast Guard cutter was en route from Norfolk, Va., to serve a warrant on him.

Fulford was the chief engineer on the vessel, and Martinez was an oiler. The ship went down in the Florida straits in November, 1927. The indictment was returned last October, following considerable civil litigation regarding the collection of insurance on the vessel and cargo.

On her last voyage, the Rose Murphy was bound from a Florida port to Norfolk with a cargo of phosphate rock.

YOUTH HELD IN PLOT TO EXTORT $25,000

had been working in Fredericksburg until April 1, when he lost his job, and that since that time he had been living with his parents in Culpeper.

Biggs is a tall, slender youth, and so far as can be ascertained has never been involved with the law before. His parents moved to Culpeper several months ago, his father working out of here as a traveling salesman.

Both banks in Culpeper are amply protected by insurance against losses of this kind, and the police force is so organized that within two minutes after the bank called the town manager the bank was practically surrounded by police. All male employes of both banks were armed in anticipation of the arrival of the extortionist.

Battlefield Park Project Aid Asked

Landowners Urged to Help by Placing Nominal Prices on Tracts.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 19.—A plea for cooperation of landowners in the project to acquire more land and set up memorial markers in the Fredericksburg-Spottsylvania battlefield area was voiced tonight by Maj. A. E. Wilbourne, U. S. A., addressing a joint meeting of the Manassas, Alexandria and local Kiwanis Clubs.

He said Congress can not be expected to appropriate more money for the program and, with only a limited amount remaining in the fund, the remedy lies with landowners who will sell desired land for nominal sums. His views were indorsed by Judge A. T. Embrey, who also addressed the gathering.

A committee was appointed to work with Maj. Wilbourne, including Mayor Jere M. H. Willis, of this city; L. J. Houston, city manager; J. W. Kimmon, of McHenry; H. O. Swanson, of Summit, and Mrs. Gary Melcher, of Falmouth.

Catholics Observe Founding of Order

Fiftieth Anniversary of Branch of Bon Secours Sisters Is Celebrated.

Baltimore, Md., May 19 (A.P.).—The fiftieth anniversary of the founding in this country of a branch of the Sisters of Bon Secours is being observed here this week at the Baltimore Convent and today Bishop Michael J. Keyes, of Savannah, Ga., was the celebrant of the solemn pontifical mass.

Attending the golden jubilee, which opened yesterday and ends tomorrow, is Mother Mary Joseph, mother general of the order, who arrived in Baltimore last Tuesday from the mother house in Paris. Before returning to Europe she plans to visit all the houses of the order in America.

Accompanying Bishop Keyes on the trip to Baltimore was the Very Rev. Joseph Croke, chancellor of the Archdiocese of Savannah, who was the master of ceremonies at the services. The Very Rev. N. A. Weber, superior of the Marist Church in Washington, delivered the sermon in which he contrasted the charity of the pagan world with that of the Christian era. Tomorrow, the final day of the golden jubilee, Archbishop Michael J. Curley will be the celebrant of a golden pontifical mass at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Dice Anderson Buried in Virginia

800 Students in White Honor Memory of College President's Wife.

Lynchburg, Va., May 19 (A.P.).—Eight hundred students of Randolph Macon Woman's College, garbed in white, lined up today in tribute to Mrs. Dice Robins Anderson, wife of the president of the college, as her body was borne from her late residence to the burial ground.

Dr. J. N. Latham, pastor of Court Street Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Anderson was a member, and Dr. J. F. Carey, presiding elder of the Lynchburg District, conducted simple services at the home and at the grave, in Spring Hill Cemetery here.

Sixteen of the girls, including officers of student organizations, acted as flower bearers, and honorary pallbearers included members of the faculty and board of trustees of the college, leading citizens of Lynchburg and fellow educators of Dr. Anderson, including Dr. Leon P. Smith, of Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., where Dr. Anderson will go as president next year.

Counsel Attacks Cemetery Appeal

Commissioners in Montgomery Fight Permit for Plots Near Aspen.

Counsel for the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday filed answer to the suit of the New Mount Olivet Cemetery Co. for a writ of mandamus to force the Montgomery County Commissioners to issue a permit for a cemetery near Aspen, in Circuit Court at Rockville.

The commissioners' counsel, the law firm of Whiteford & Cissel, of Rockville, contends that the cemetery company failed to comply with the requirements of law inasmuch as they did not attempt to have the classification of the property involved changed from residential to commercial. Inasmuch as the property is zoned residential the county commissioners would not be able to issue a permit, they contend.

Counsel further contend that the county commissioners exercised their discretion in a matter affecting the public health and safety in refusing to grant the permit and that having exercised their discretion it is not in the power of the court to review their act.

The Modern Captain Kidd

WHERE once the famous buccaneer used to put in for stores and water and where, tradition says, the sea rover buried some of his piratical loot and pieces of eight, a new kind of a pirate found haven until prohibition enforcement officers swooped on him. In the Sunday Magazine Section of The Washington Post is told the inside story of the capture of one of the biggest of the rum-runners at Taylors Island, the source of the contrabrand supplies for New York and Philadelphia.

HARWOOD PARKER, who, prohibition agents say, operated the wireless between shore and the rum-runners' "mother ship."

A gigantic business, which operates with every modern invention from $100,000 speed boats to a wireless station operated by a debonnair youth was disclosed, say enforcement officers. The facts assemble themselves with the breathless rush of fiction and the tale is permeated with the salt of the sea and shrouded in a fog of mystery.

POST FLAG CONTEST WIDELY ACCLAIMED

Need for Banner Apparent, Contestants Declare in Indorsing Move.

Universal approval is being given The Washington Post's project of securing a suitable design for a flag for the District of Columbia, if letters accompanying designs are to be taken as any indication.

"The Post has undertaken a patriotic duty which will meet with universal approval," writes William Boone Douglass, 4500 Lowell street northwest, director of the Engineers Legal Service Bureau of the American Association of Engineers.

Along with other expressions of delight at The Post's idea of giving the District some real emblem to display on state and patriotic occasions, readers of The Post are submitting a wide variety of designs for such a flag.

Buildings Included in Designs.

Everybody seems to have had the flag idea at some time or another and The Post's opportunity to present their designs has been welcomed by scores of contestants. Most of them write that the prize for the best design is immaterial, the main idea being to give the District a good-looking flag, comparable with those of the 48 States in the Union.

Washington's famous public buildings are included in many of the designs, the Capitol running slightly ahead of the Washington Monument for leadership, while the White House, Treasury and even the public parks are being given consideration by the flag designers.

The possibility of the District having a representative flag has long been before residents of the Capital, but this is the first time that definite steps toward such an adoption have been taken and The Post's contest is meeting with popular favor because of the possibility of bringing the flag into existence.

$25 Prize Offered Winner.

Contestants will be given a considerable period of time in which to submit their designs and then the entire group will be turned over to a committee of judges for selection of what they consider the most appropriate. The judges' selection will then be presented to District officials, with details of how it was chosen, and with a recommendation that it be adopted officially as the flag of the District of Columbia.

Regardless of whether or not the flag is officially accepted, the person submitting the design selected by the judges as best will receive a prize of $25. All designs must be in pen and ink and on white paper, so that they may be reproduced in The Post during the course of the contest.

The judges selected so far include Dr. B. C. MacNeil, department commander of the American Legion; Gen. Anton Stephan, commander of the District National Guard; William L. Thomas, commander of the District department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks.

BEACH TRACT PLAN IS WELL RECEIVED

to look around for a place where comfort and relief may be found.

Located on two coves in the South River, it is an ideal spot for living and recreation purposes. Thickly wooded and yet with a splendid beach which will be preserved intact for the use of lot owners, Woodland Beach offers that double advantage of comfort and sport.

Boat landings have already been installed at the beach and the development will present to the prospective summer home builder three real reasons for the selection of a lot in Woodland Beach—boating, bathing and fishing. Three popular summer pastimes and all within a short distance of the lots being offered by The Post.

Yesterday's morning rush to obtain choice locations continued throughout the day, with an additional heavy assault on the plots shortly after 4:30, when Government workers dropped in to make their selections.

Despite the early rush for lots, there are many choice locations still available and as the sale is being conducted on the "first come, first served" basis, it behooves all those interested to make an early visit to The Post to learn all details of this magnificent offer and to make their selections.

The cost is so little and is distributed into such small monthly payments, that no one can afford to overlook such an opportunity. Salesmen in the main office of The Post will be glad to furnish any information desired to all visitors and a trip to the office may result in a summer of happiness for you and your family. Don't delay, make your inspection this morning.

Cardinal O'Connell Honored by Thousands

Boston, May 19 (A.P.).—Roman Catholics of the Archdiocese of Boston joined today with William Cardinal O'Connell in the observance of the thirtieth anniversary of his consecration as a bishop.

Parochial schools throughout the archdiocese were closed for the day, and in every parish thousands attended masses. Cardinal O'Connell pontificated at a solemn high mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross which was attended by relatives, prominent Catholics and public officials.

Man Held in Poisoning Of Two of His Horses

James Medley, colored, of Croome, Md., was arrested last night in connection with the poisoning of two horses, belonging to him. One of the horses died, although the other one is recovering.

Medley is being held at the Marlboro Jail on an investigation charge. A can of Paris green was found near the barn where the animals were kept. Police declined to say on what grounds they held Medley.

Two Motorcyclists Killed in Crash

Young Men Riders Hurled to Death in Collision With Bus.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 19.—A motorcycle ride late this afternoon caused the deaths of Leonard L. Holloway, 24, of Summitt, and William Orrick, 23, of Spotsylvania. The accident occurred 5 miles from Fredericksburg on Warrenton road, when collided head-on with a bus unoccupied the two men riding the motorcycle pied except by the driver.

Holloway was hurled into the side of the bus and instantly killed. Orrick was catapulted 15 feet into the air, landing head first on another machine. He died at the local hospital. William Abel, bus driver, escaped with slight injuries when thrown through the windshield.

Orrick, son of Mrs. Mattie Orrick, Spotsylvania County, is survived by ten brothers and sisters. Holloway, son of W. H. Holloway, of Summitt, leaves several brothers. Both men were single and worked for a local manufacturing plant.

MACHADO IS PLANNING TO THWART UPRISING

Taking No Chances.

Communistic pamphlets printed in red ink were being circulated, calling upon the masses to "revolt against Machadistic imperialism," but the organized opposition assured that "nothing has been scheduled for tomorrow."

Student leaders, although making no secret of the fact they are laying plans for "important demonstrations," said that "tomorrow is not the day."

The government, however, is taking no chances. Additional troops have been ordered to Oriente and Santa Clara provinces; all public works employes have been commissioned as special police and given arms, and rural guards have been called to strengthen strategic points.

11 AMERICAN WOMEN PRESENTED AT COURT

tained. Prince George also was absent.

The Americans, presented by Mrs. Charles Gates Dawes, wife of the American Ambassador, were:

Mrs. Ralph H. Booth, wife of the American envoy to Denmark, of Detroit; Miss Barbara Hutton, Miss Louise Behn and Miss Virginia Penn, of New York; Miss Helen Brinton, Miss Margaret Duane and Miss Edith Martin, of Philadelphia; Miss Adele Jahncke, of New Orleans; Miss Bertha Potter Palmer and Miss Virginia Dawes, of Chicago, and Miss Jasmin Schoellkopf, of Buffalo.

As the king and queen took their seats on the thrones placed on a dais, there was a brief hush of expectancy. Then the first woman was led forward for presentation and the long line formed. The cheeks of the debutantes' were bright with mingled nervousness and pleasure and the matrons were scarcely less excited.

The women then halted one after the other for the deep and intricate court curtsy, first to the king and then to the queen.

As soon as she had made her curtsies, each woman was escorted to the supper room. After a brief reception the guests, according to court etiquette, made their adieus and returned to their homes or hotels.

Dawes Wears Formal Attire.

The royal circle included the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke of Gloucester, Princess Alice, who is the Countess of Athlone; the Earl of Athlone, Lady May Cambridge and Lady Helena Gibbs.

A raised platform around the hall was crowded with diplomats in knee breeches—except for Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, who wore formal clothes—and beautifully gowned women, who have been presented at court in the past.

The gold and white ballroom was decorated with pink roses and on all sides were officials in glittering uniforms with many medals and decorations on their breasts. A string band of Grenadier Guards furnished music from an anteroom.

Second Court Tonight.

On the grand staircase and in the state apartments were yeomen of the king's bodyguard with steel halberds and bearded faces under flat black caps. Members of the Honorable Corps of Gentlemen at Arms also were on duty.

The second court will be held tomorrow night, when thirteen Americans will be among those presented. Other courts are scheduled for June 9 and June 10.

tect of the building. He described the plot as having a frontage of 130 feet on Massachusetts avenue and a depth of 300 feet to Fulton street. A strip of land with 75 feet frontage on Massachusetts avenue which was not included in the purchase, prevents the property purchased by the Catholic Church from bordering on Thirty-fourth street.

The archbishop said that the plans for the structure would be submitted by Mr. Murphy at the annual meeting of the American Heirarchy, which will be held sometime in November at the Catholic University.

Nothing definite has been decided on the type of the architecture, both the Archbishop and Mr. Murphy declared.

Woman Burned by Acid, Leg Hurt in Car Mishap

Mrs. Emma Kolbe, of Glenn Arden, Md., received a fracture of the right arm and acid burns about the legs from liquid in the storage battery when the car in which she was riding ran off the Defense Highway near the Ordwick road.

She was brought to Providence Hospital by the Prince Georges County rescue squad. The car was driven by her son, members of the squad said.

GEN. DUNLAP FEARED FRENCH CAVE VICTIM

Washington Man, 2 Others Entombed by Avalanche in Ancient House.

guage. He and Mrs. Dunlap took particular delight in their acquaintance with the farmer, Briant, who lived in one of the rock-hewn cave dwellings that survive the troglodyte age.

The officer and his wife were at Briant's home today when from a nearby barn where Mme. Briant was engaged in her housework, they heard her scream. Simultaneously there was a thundering roar as the top of the precipice above their home began to split and topple over.

The two men rushed to Mme. Briant's assistance, but before they could reach her they themselves were engulfed as the avalanche increased in volume. Virtually the entire hillside above the region was affected before the slide of rock, earth and trees halted.

New fissures appeared above the cave tonight and troops had to reinforce the surrounding section before being able to start digging into the tons of debris.

Downpour Hinders Rescuers.

Local gendarmes and inhabitants also sought frenziedly to penetrate the slide. The rescue workers expressed belief that the stone roofs of the cave houses undoubtedly were crushed in and that therefore little hope could be held for those within. Heavy rains were believed to have undermined the hillside and precipitated the avalanche, and a continuing downpour tonight hindered the rescue efforts.

Along the banks of the Loire in Touraine, cave houses are cut into tuff chalk for 100 miles. The fronts of these ancient dwellings are windowed like real houses and the recesses in the deep, cavernous rooms are prized highly for storing the wines which are famous in that region.

Mrs. Dunlap telephoned Ambassador Edge at Paris immediately. He ordered Maj. Robert Walsh, assistant military attache, to proceed to Tours without delay. Maj. Walsh left by automobile, accompanied by Mrs. Corcoran Thom, of Washington, D. C., his mother-in-law and Gen. Dunlap's aunt.

Slight Hope Is Held.

Mr. Edge also informed the French war department and army engineers near Tours were directed to hurry aid.

The ambassador did not press Mrs. Dunlap for details. Her telephone conversation was somewhat incoherent.

The War Department informed the embassy that inasmuch as the general was reported to have gone into the villa there was the possibility that he might have been able to take refuge in the cellar.

Roman historians gave the dwellers in these caves the name Trogolodytes. Legend had it that they spoke no language, but could utter guttural cries. In France, thousands of people continued to live in these caves throughout the ages and in late years modern civilization has lent many comforts to the otherwise barren interiors.

Briant's home was comfortably appointed.

Was Native of District.

Brig. Gen. Dunlap and his wife reached Paris in February and came to Tours intending to rent or buy a villa. They eventually decided to lodge at the picturesquely located Chateau Farinlere on the outskirts of Cino Mars. Briant was a servant of the chateau's owner and met the American officer shortly after his arrival.

The avalanche killed a horse which Briant was hitching to a cart while conversing with Brig. Gen. Dunlap.

(Associated Press.)

Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, injured in Tours, France, yesterday, has a long and distinguished record in the Marine Corps. A native of Washington, he entered the service in 1898 for the Spanish War as a second lieutenant.

For "exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous services" in France, Gen. Dunlap was awarded a citation certificate by Gen. Pershing and a Navy Cross for his activities as regimental commander in the Argonne-Meuse campaign.

8 ARE TRANSFERRED TO ATLANTA PRISON

Carnell, Sentenced to Life, and Others Will Start Terms Today.

Eight prisoners under long-term sentences, including one lifer, were due to arrive at the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., early today for incarceration after leaving Union Station here yesterday afternoon under heavy guard.

Prominent among the prisoners was William J. Carnell, under life sentence after conviction of the hold-up murder of Louis Bush, wealthy bus line proprietor, in the rear of the latter's home at 3534 Fulton street northwest on October 6. Convicted with him also on second degree murder counts, Frank Mahoney is jailed at Lorton.

In the group also was Paul Embry, 20-year-old bandit, who recently led a sensational dash for liberty from Lorton, where he was serving a 14-year sentence on two counts of robbery of a Mount Vernon Savings Bank messenger about six months ago. He was captured a day after his break for freedom.

Other prisoners removed to Atlanta were John Cooper, serving 15 years for housebreaking and larceny; Alton Swann, serving 15 years for robbery; Joseph McCann and Edward McNamara, serving 10-year sentences for the recent mail pouch holdup at Union Station; Joseph Hardy, colored, serving 40 years for second degree murder; and James H. Williams, colored, serving 30 years for second degree murder.

The escort included M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions; Policeman E. E. Graves, Capt. R. B. Wright, of the District Jail, and two Lorton guards.

Zoo Hippopotami Feel Touch of Spring in Air

New York, May 19 (U.P.).—Spring reigned in Central Park Zoo today and the fancy of Caliph II, three-ton hippopotamus, lightly turned to love. He consented to bathe in the same pool with ton-and-a-half Rosa, a mere slip of a thing that arrived last fall from Egypt, and has been grieving since because Caliph II has been indifferent to her.

Today the Caliph deigned to notice Rosa, even to do tricks for her by wallowing in his shallow bathing pool.

Rosa hesitated, then wallowed, too.

"It must be love," said Robert Hurtgn, head keeper.

Boy Suffers Injuries When Struck by Auto

Grover Daniels, 10, received a compound leg fracture, possible internal injuries and lacerations of the face yesterday when struck by an auto near his home, 4547 Grant road northwest. Taken to Georgetown Hospital in a Fourteenth Precinct police car, his condition was said to be serious.

According to police James C. Fought, of Park Lane, Va., was driving the car which struck the boy. He was not held.

MANAGER OF NIGHT CLUB IS IMPROVING

Garbett Still Is Not Out of Danger; Montgomery Is Buried in New York.

Marked improvement was noted yesterday at Emergency Hospital in the condition of Charles Garbett, manager of Club Chantecler, who was seriously wounded at the night club at Thomas Circle early Sunday morning by Robert Shaw Montgomery, New York social registerite, who killed himself after slaying Policeman Jesse Taylor.

Garbett, although displaying remarkable recuperative powers, is not yet out of danger, however.

Funeral services for Montgomery were held yesterday afternoon in New York City at the Hotel Lombardi, home of his mother, Mrs. E. Shaw Montgomery, and his sister, Miss Elizabeth Montgomery.

Services for Taylor will be conducted at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the funeral home of Frank Geier's Sons, 1113 Seventh street northwest, with interment in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be six fellow policemen of the Second Precinct, including C. R. Bremmerman, James Lowery, A. E. Fredette, W. F. Sager, Lester Fox and H. H. Hodge. Honorary pallbearers will be all Second Precinct policemen off duty at the time.

Enraged because he twice was unable to obtain a table on the dance floor at the night club, Montgomery shot Garbett, and in fleeing from the club fatally wounded Taylor, who was in the act of mounting the steps to the second floor to answer an alarm. Montgomery then rushed outdoors and took his own life.

Senator Nye said he hoped to resume the hearings in August, as he announced yesterday, but he told the bishop that "it is possible, of course, that circumstances may develop which would make it necessary for the committee to resume the taking of testimony before that time."

"In any event," he concluded, "of course I will be glad to see that you are given reasonable and proper notice of any hearings which the committee may hold."

New Marine Unit Announced Here

Action Is Characterized as Important in Reserve Expansion.

Formation of the Sixth Marine Brigade, a reserve outfit with headquarters to be located here and embracing both the Twentieth and Twenty-third Marine infantry regiments, was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps. The action was characterized as one of the most significant in Marine reserve expansion since the World War.

In addition to the two infantry regiments, numbering troops of the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia, the brigade also will include the First Battalion of the Twenty-third Marines, a Philadelphia artillery unit. Sixth Brigade headquarters will consist also of service companies, the brigade band of 60 men, motor transport, signal and engineer detachments.

Lieut. Col. J. J. Staley, formerly in command of the Twentieth Marines, is organizing the brigade. The permanent commanding officers for the units have not been named. The Twentieth Marines are temporarily in command of Maj. Harvey L. Miller, and the Twenty-third Marines are temporarily under Maj. Earl C. Lane. Recruiting is announced in progress each Monday night at the brigade headquarters, 458 Indiana avenue northwest.

Frederick Is Host To Kiwanis Clubs

Washington Men Entertain Intergroup Session With Singing.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 19.—The Kiwanis Clubs of Frederick, Hagerstown, Towson, Cumberland and Washington, D. C., were represented at an interclub meeting held here today.

A feature of the session was the vocal program presented by Fred East and William F. Raymond, of Washington. They returned recently from the international Kiwanis convention at Miami, Fla., where they were on the program daily. They have sung together for more than fourteen years.

Leo Weinberg, Frederick attorney, addressed the Kiwanians on "False Lights on the Shore." Other Capital representatives besides Mr. East and Mr. Raymond were Merritt O. Chance, Harry G. Kimball, George H. Winslow, William N. Freeman, Charles W. Pimper and William F. Smith.

Barbara Bennett Leaves Hospital.

New York, May 19 (A.P.).—Barbara Bennett, dancer and wife of Morton Downey, radio and night club singer, was discharged today from Fifth Avenue Hospital, where she had been a patient since May 7, when she underwent a major operation. She is the daughter of Richard Bennett, stage star, and sister of Constance and Joan Bennett, motion picture actresses.

Visitor Fines Himself $5 On Traffic Law, and Pays

The District Commissioners were going about the District Building yesterday whistling the air of "I've Got Five Dollars" while congratulating themselves on finding the long-sought Honest Man.

It all came about in the following letter received by Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the board:

"Gentlemen:

"The other day I was in Washington and in passing through one of the parks inadvertently and unintentionally without knowledge, I turned off to a dirt part which had some gravel on it. I was in an auto. I realized after I had entered it and was proceeding that I had made a mistake, but too late to easily correct it.

"Now this may seem to you a small matter and of little consequence, but I wish to express to you my regret at having broken this ordinance, and in some way make amends, and so I am sending you a check for $5 as a penalty which I lay upon myself with the hope that I will have better judgment and a clearer head. Yours truly, "J. W. KIRK.

"Denton, Md."

Somewhat baffled both by such honesty and a surplus of $5 that would not have to be accounted for to Congress, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, indorsed the check and forwarded it to Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

NOON STARTS LAST AD CONTEST WEEK

Amateur Writers Still Have Chance for Victory in Sixth Period.

Noon today marks the close of the sixth week of The Post-Zain ad writing contest. All ads submitted after that time will be considered in the seventh and last week of the contest. There still is time to rush those last-minute ads you have written to the editor of The Post-Zain contest and possibly win that $100 first prize, one of those other big awards or one or more of those attractive merchandise prizes. It is not too late if you hurry. Here are a few daily ad writing tips that might help you.

In writing ads about the P. J. Nee Co., remember this old established firm deals in fine furniture. Ads written after 12 o'clock today may win that beautiful $73 English lounge chair they are giving for the best ad written about their concern during the entire contest. If those other ads you wrote about this concern fail to win this wonderful gift, you have unlimited chance to be that winner now by writing more and more ads during the seventh and last week of this contest. This concern has everything for the home in the latest, most up-to-date, modern furniture at astonishingly low prices; everything to beautify and modernize your home. Call at their store and see their wonderful values. Incidentally, you might get that $1,000 prize-winning idea while you are there.

Write About "World Corner" Building.

The Washington Building is another concern about which you are asked to write ads. The Washington Building is by far the most handsome office structure in the Capital. It is located at New York avenue and Fifteenth and G streets, in the center of the business and financial district, opposite the Treasury. This corner, because of its prominence, has earned the name "World corner."

In looking over a map of the downtown section of Washington, showing the new Government buildings being erected, one can readily see where the Washington Building enjoys an outstanding location, convenient to all Government activity. National concerns are attracted to the building because of its location.

The Washington Building, because of its frontage on three streets, enjoys abundance of light and ventilation. Space offered for rent will be partitioned and finished to suit the tenant. This gives the prospective tenant an opportunity to plan his own office, which will give a compactness of space, with no lost motion or dark corners, and will enable employes to give 100 per cent efficiency.

Theater Offers Ideas.

What better subject than the Earle Theater for the prize-winning ad? Tell about the excellent stage presentations which this Warner Bros. theater affords. Remember, too, it is the home of the "Thank You" girl, charming Miss Maxine Doyle. In your ad feature their excellent screen productions. Don't forget to incorporate the theater's news reel in your ads. The beauty, comfort and splendid system of ventilation of the Earle Theater, combined with courteous, well trained employes, are some of the reasons for its ever increasing popularity.

At this particular time when it is so necessary that we practice economy, the Starlight Dry Cleaners & Dyers, Inc., solve the question. Send that old garment to these cleaners and see the amazing transformation when it is returned. It is just like new. Personal appearance is such an important asset to success that it is impossible to neglect it, but at times we find it financially difficult to keep that neat, prosperous appearance. Starlight Dry Cleaners have solved that problem for us. Their prices are the lowest in the city and they call for and deliver promptly. Everyone get busy and write a prize winning ad on this concern.

MOTHS HAVE NO CHANCE HERE

The above picture is of the moth-proof storage vault of the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co., located at 920 E street northwest, in Washington.

It is an extensive and scientific method of moth prevention, indorsed by the Department of Agriculture and adopted by this company, and also used by leading warehouses throughout the country because of the fact that it possitively kills all moth and insect life in furs and fabric garments and rugs.

In the operation of this new system the articles pass through the "death chamber," all articles being thoroughly demothed by this latest and most up-to-date process and then placed in specially constructed mothproof storage vaults which are also treated periodically. This treatment leaves no unpleasant odors and will not injure the most delicate material or finish.

Having solved the problem of moth destruction for furs, fabric garments and rugs, they will further serve their patrons through this new process by fumigating upholstered furniture, draperies, &c.

The personnel of this large organization has had many years of experience in their particular line. You will find that courtesy and care for patrons' interest are assured in this establishment, which has served the people of Washington for 30 years with quality service.

They invite you to come in for an inspection of this up-to-date, modern transfer and storage company. Here you should receive that idea that will enable you to win the big prize of $1,000 in cash.

Post-Zain Contest Enters Final Week at Noon Today

Participants Still Have Time to Write Ads and Get in Line for $1,000 Grand Award; Sixth Week's Winners to Be Listed Friday.

When the clock tolls 12 noon today the sixth race of the Post-Zain ad writing contest will be over.

Participating concerns will appoint judges at luncheon tomorrow and Friday morning the secret will be out. Winners will be announced in Friday morning's Post.

After 12 o'clock the seventh and last race of the $10,000 contest will start. There will be no weekly prizes the seventh week. If you have never written an ad before, start right now and win the $1,000 grand award to be given at the close of the seventh week. To be eligible for the grand prize, you must write at least one ad about each of the 35 participating concerns. You need not be $100 first prize winner to win the $1,000 grand prize. Every one has equal chance.

Now is your greatest opportunity to win. The ads you write this last week can win one of the wonderfully useful prizes some of the participating firms are giving for the best ad written during the entire contest. Don't forget, all the prizes you find listed in the box of special prizes on this page will be given to writers of the best ads at the close of the seventh week.

Don't overlook the $50 additional prize The Washington Post will give the $1,000 grand award winner, providing he or she is a daily and Sunday subscriber to The Post.

No matter how poor or how bad you may think your ads have been, write more and more ads this last week. Triple your chances by winning one of those special prizes and the grand award of $1,000. This is the final and last week. Forget about the ads you have written and write more and more about each of the concerns starting today; then if those others don't win these ads you write the seventh week will give you other chances of winning.

Stop a moment and consider just all the things you could do with $1,000. There is that possibility that your ad written about Rizik Brothers might be selected as the big prize winner of $1,000; that would mean you would receive an additional $1,000. If you are a regular daily and Sunday subscriber to The Post there is $50 more, totaling $2,050. All for one idea. What could you do with all that money? It can be yours—all you need to do is write many ads this last week. What a glorious opportunity you have. It is up to you! Remember, this is the FINAL WEEK—YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO WIN THAT $1,000 grand award.

Extra Prizes Offered In Post-Zain Contest

The following firms participating in The Post-Zain Amateur Ad Writing Contest, have announced SPECIAL AWARDS IN ADDITION to the $1,000 grand prize which will be given by The Post this seventh and last week of the contest.

THE SOVIET SCHEME.

Soviet Russia surprised the Pan-European commission with an offer to end all "economic aggression." Apparently the Soviet has decided that to overturn the capitalistic world is not so easy a task as Lenin and Trotzky imagined. The dictatorship is ready to quit dumping its products on the world market at prices far lower than are charged in Russia if other countries will remove their embargoes against Soviet goods. The offer of Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, is a temporary sacrifice of communistic principle to expediency.

Not many years ago the Muscovites were talking of "remaking man," of world revolution, of planting Soviet republics in every part of the globe, and of crushing the capitalistic system. But that proved to be a rather big job. Instead of overthrowing all other nations and leading the way to a new social order, the Soviet has found it impossible to live without the aid of foreigners. If other countries refuse further credit to the Soviet it will face disaster. If its slave-made products are barred from markets outside of Russia, Sovietism is doomed to an ignoble collapse. No one realizes these facts quite so well as the clique intrenched in the Kremlin.

The Moscow government proposes "a complete cessation of all forms of economic aggression." Governments are asked not to adopt "in their relations with each other any discrimination whatsoever." In return the Soviet would sign an agreement requiring the sale of all products on the home markets at prices not higher than those demanded on foreign markets.

The Soviet delegate evades the grievance of the capitalistic nations against Russia. He admits that "special conditions of agriculture and foreign trade in the Soviet Union allow the sale of agricultural products at lower prices than can be offered by other nations." These special conditions include the confiscation of land and the enslavement of the people. The Soviet is willing to agree to a compact prohibiting dumping, because it does not construe that term to mean the exportation of goods at low prices through the impoverishment of the Russian people. The United States does not care whether Russian exports sell for more or less than is charged for them at home, but it refuses to allow its people to compete with labor that is in virtual slavery.

It may be conceded that the reds have pushed the world revolution idea into the background. For the moment the dictators find it expedient to curry favor with capitalistic countries, in the hope of obtaining credit. But behind every move is the desire to make the Communists so powerful that they can overrun the world. Otherwise the Soviet would not be starving its people for the sake of shipping foodstuffs abroad. The Litvinoff proposal may be regarded as a crafty scheme to induce capitalistic nations to furnish additional aid to the cause of their own downfall.

HEALTH AND EFFICIENCY.

State and Federal agencies enter into questions of regulating the private lives and habits of citizens today to an extent undreamed of a generation ago. Entirely distinct from highly controversial legal restrictions imposed in recent years is the advisory counsel issued by departments and experts that make a scientific study of human wellbeing. The great advance that has been made in the study of the relation of habits and food to health makes precautionary advice increasingly valuable.

Why is it that the biographies of so many men in important positions show that their early years were spent in the country? The experts say it is because the farm boy established the foundation for a sound constitution and vigorous mentality through good food, plenty of sleep, and exercise in the open air. Modern invention and entertainment may tend to reduce variations in these matters between the city boy and the farm boy, but the value of the three basic ingredients of health and strength can not be denied.

In former times, particularly in the summer, country fare was naturally varied and healthful, and the city housewife had but little understanding of the value of a balanced diet or the meaning of "protective foods." Today, for the asking, all kinds of valuable advice can be secured from public health officers; in fact it is impossible to escape a great deal of it in all manner of public prints.

Headaches, indigestion and other common ailments probably take more toll from the efficiency of workers than more serious diseases that cause complete absence from work for a time. Curative medicine is very ancient; preventive measures are more modern and more reasonable for many minor illa. The best health insurance is to be found in good food and good health habits; and yet few persons put it into daily practice.

Food is now classed as protective and non-protective. The protective foods are those that not only are nutritive, but which also contain the elements that increase resistance to disease. It is impossible in these days to escape advice to eat in abundance eggs, milk fresh fruit and fresh vegetables. A meal consisting of meat, potatoes, bread, pie and coffee does not contain a single protective item, and continued diet of that kind will not maintain good health. Knowledge concerning the valuable vitamines in leafy vegetables and the importance of fresh air and sufficient sleep is being more generally applied, and is steadily raising the general standard of health.

SILVER'S HANDICAPS.

The silver question is once more a subject of public discussion, albeit without the rancor or party strife that it caused 35 years ago. It is no longer a political issue. Silver's fall to the status of a commodity has been accepted by most persons and all the nations of the world except China as a definite and irrevocable fact. The old-time arguments in favor of establishing a fixed ratio of value between silver and gold no longer apply, and the newer demands for the establishment of a fixed price for the white metal of approximately twice its market value is an exploded expedient. It could only be justified on the grounds that silver still possesses some mysterious, inherent quality denied to other commodities.

Efforts are being made to have a conference of nations to bring about an accord for the restoration of the price of silver. The United States declined to call such an international meeting. Japan stood from under the responsibility of sponsoring a session of such doubtful value. The last hope is China, the only nation still remaining on a silver basis. Senator Pittman, of Nevada, is now on his way to China to investigate the silver situation and to interest China in calling the silver congress.

It comes as a surprise to many to learn that silver is not suffering from the omnipresent trouble of overproduction, although there is an oversupply due to the marketing of the holdings of European governments and India. The average yearly amount of silver mined during the last ten years has been 230,000,000 ounces, while consumption demands have averaged 265,000,000 ounces. India, which formerly took 40 per cent of the world output, became a seller of silver after the adoption of the gold standard five years ago. Postwar debasement of silver coins by England, France and other continental nations, through recoinage, with lowered silver content, left large governmental stocks of silver on hand, much of which has found its way to market during recent years.

There seems little prospect that the nations which have built up gold reserves, by selling silver and otherwise, will take any backward step. The five years that has been spent weaning India away from silver will not be thrown away. Even China has had its monetary commission, headed by Dr. Kemmerer, which recommended a gradual adoption of a gold basis to put China in better relation to world monetary systems.

Much comment has been heard recently as to the enormous losses the United States was suffering through the decreased gold value of Chinese silver currency. American exports to China in 1929 amounted to $124,164,000; last year they were $89,391,000, a loss of about 27 per cent, due as much to revolutionary troubles as to the low price of silver. Conversely, China's exports to this country should have been stimulated, but they declined nearly 40 per cent. American exports to China last year are only 15 per cent below the average of the last eight years, which is better than the exports to some gold-standard countries.

Even Senator Borah has joined the cry that the purchasing power of 800,000,000 people, half the population of the world, has been cut in half by the decline of the price of silver. Government statistics do not bear out the charge, so far as the United States is concerned, even when all other contributing causes of lowered imports are ignored. Of the 800,000,000 who make up the people of India and China not more than 10 per cent are customers for United States exports and never were, even when the price of silver was twice as high as it is now.

MILITANT PACIFISM.

Pacifist organizations in opposing preparedness for national defense are both illogical and inconsistent. They inveigh against organized national effort and preparative measures, and at the same time maintain a well-trained and militant organization that is always prepared to deliver hot shot in support of their own theories. This preparedness and efficiency extend apparently even to having a spy system. The pacifists combat military foresight, but they do not disdain its use.

Whenever official announcement is made concerning armament plans, training maneuvers or efficiency devices, there appear simultaneously protests from national organizations through paid officials, voicing opposition even to prudent vigilance as tending to make this a warlike Nation. It is not by chance that these cohorts with their stock arguments are always ready to appear on the ramparts and open fire at the first sign of the enemy. It is pacifist preparedness.

The latest example of this efficiency was exemplified in connection with the recent announcement of progress made by the War Policies Commission, the committee composed of members of Congress and the Cabinet. Its object is to make plans and secure necessary legislation so that in the event of war the country would be ready to marshal its resources promptly and efficiently, and with as uniform distribution of cost and sacrifice as possible. Furthermore, these tentative measures include the greatest surety for peace ever contrived—taking the profits out of war.

But was this project safe from attack? Far from it; it contained thoughts of war, and although the whole intent was to provide only protective measures and to have American man power and wealth listed in preliminary steps of organization, it was violently opposed. The evidence that the plan would give assurance at home and proof of invulnerability to possible enemies, was no more immune from objurgation than positive orders for battleship construction.

The program now being developed by the War Policies Commission is largely the result of practice and experience gained during the World War. The delays and the vast unnecessary expense caused by lack of plans and deficient knowledge of every element of national wealth and power are obstacles that are sought to be avoided. Such foresight, so far from being warlike or designed to create a militant spirit, is notice to the world that will not be misunderstood. It will be patent evidence of the futility of either single or concerted attacks upon the United States. To insinuate that because this Nation knows its strength and that that strength is organized would foment an aggressive spirit is to insult American intelligence.

Charting American wealth, industries and raw products as well as man power, and knowing at all times what this Nation can do if necessary, is not a warlike procedure. It is common sense supported by the patriotic organizations of the land and the most unwarlike bodies of men—the veterans themselves—who have seen and who know the horrors of war. Pacifists should be able to comprehend that preliminary organization, such as is proposed, takes the place of standing armies. Arms reduction throughout the world can only be secured by gradual and proportionate ratio of decreasing armaments. The lone nation that renders itself impotent not only invites aggression from militant foes, but also loses its voice for good among the powers of the world.

Now that the Supreme Court has decided that the $165,000,000 Hoover dam act is legal, the administration can go right ahead with its economy program.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 19.—Apparently it will again be demonstrated that the worst things do not happen. Much anxiety has arisen over international differences concerning the proposed customs union between Germany and Austria. A serious impasse was feared when the question came up for discussion among the powers at Geneva. But without difficulty five most vitally interested nations have indicated that the preliminary subject of legality should go to the world court.

It would be difficult to provide a better illustration of the great importance as an instrument of good will and peace of that high tribunal. Germany and Austria claim a right to make a treaty. Other nations claim that such action violates a treaty made with them. With the present state of European feeling a diplomatic decision would be most difficult. But the interpretation of treaties is usually the clearest kind of judicial question. It appears so in this case. As the result of the existence of a court of competent jurisdiction instead of a long dispute with a threat of force over technicalities we have the orderly process of reason and law. Such a settlement of international disputes is of inestimable value.

THE GREAT AUK

From the London Times.

There is a common belief that when the thinkers of the Middle Ages were not debating the number of angels who could stand on the point of a needle they were posing for each other the problem—Which came first, the hen or the egg? The question has increased in difficulty since the rise of evolutionary theories, for the schoolmen could posit the special creation of an egg or a hen containing the whole chicken world in embryo, and they had only to decide whether the hen or the egg should be singled out for the honor. That facile solution is denied to modern biologists, who envisage a long succession of hens and eggs going back to something that was neither hen nor egg. The problem is among the most baffling in philosophy, demanding a richly endowed chair of pullology for its study. But an allied question—Which remains last, the Great Auk or the Great Auk's egg?—restores our philosophic self-respect, and we are able to reply confidently; the Great Auk's egg. In fact, it—or rather 1 of 72 extant specimens—lies in a London auction room waiting to be sold on May 13, thus beginning another chapter in its checkered history. Long ago, without doubt, some Great Auk deposited this egg in her nest and proudly called her mate to see what she had found. By what device it was wrested from their possession we know not. It next appears in a collection of ten discovered in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1861. Four years later it was put up for auction at the very rooms where it is to be sold again this month, and in the interval it has passed by private treaty to two other owners. It sold for £29 in 1865 and by now may possibly have become worth £300. Killing the Auk has made its eggs golden.

It is sad to contemplate this six inches of egg, and to reflect that the vast potentialities of life therein can never be brought to fruition. For the Great Auk, or Garefowl, is one of the few things of which it can appropriately be said that it is as dead as the Dodo. About a century ago nature and man seemed to conspire in a campaign against this defenseless and almost wingless bird, one of whose main homes was, fitly, Funk Island, off Newfoundland. It had committed no known wrong. It had not robbed the world of a great poet, as did that misguided eagle that is supposed to have dropped a tortoise on the bald head of Aeschylus under the impression that it was a stone.

It is sad that the Great Auk became extinct, not like the Dinornis in the shadowy mists of antiquity, but in modern times through the destructive greed of man. But, if the opinion of Pythagoras concerning wild fowl be true, that the soul of our grandam may happily inhabit a bird, then the converse proposition may also be true; and the soul of the last of the Garefowl, inhabiting some spectator at the coming auction, may move him by an irresistible inner prompting to purchase the egg and give it a good home.

POST HASTE.

The exuberant chop-licking among Mittel-Europe nationettes is due to the announcement that the new world bank already has $400,000,000 in deposits on hand.

Senator Nye sighted trouble in his latest proposition. He had better chain up the voting housewives before he attacks the cheap chain stores.

The sky line has become the first line of defense, so Uncle Sam's sky scrappers are going to have a look at New York sky scrapers.

The cotton wool in the Russian bombshell, offering economic cooperation, startled the Geneva conference much more than if it had been shrapnel.

Another conscience salve is dissolved by the Supreme Court. It has decided that chocolate is candy.

If the Lilliputian American Army is "reduced proportionately" with the giants of Europe what will its stature be?

Conditions for any renewal of Russian diplomatic negotiation should include removal of facial shrubbery and abolition of those wide smock sleeves, so that it can be more readily determined whether they are laughing with us or at us.

Hurried renewal of civil war in China indicates that they are trying to get local issues out of the way before Senator Pittman arrives for his silver conference.

For labor's sake you will be glad that work has been resumed on the new "agricultural extensible" building, even if you thought it was something "contractible" that agriculture needed.

It is claimed that China's trade would increase a billion dollars a year if the value of silver is raised. Make China stop fighting—that's easier, and then she can buy two billions more.

New York is going to have its own foreign trade convention next week. All that is needed now to get foreign trade is to attend the conventions.

A Washington attorney charges that another Capital lawyer charges $500 for securing the "bumping-off" services of a gangster. These middlemen certainly do inflate prices.

Senator Borah now explains that there is an oversupply of silver, but not overproduction. We read that article, too.

A little more pressure on the New York Stock Exchange and the Woolworth emporiums can handle the business.

THE PAST.

Who cares what shabby clothes he wore
Five years ago today or more,
Or lingers long dwell upon
The hardships now forever gone?
Who, safe in port, regrets that he Encountered heavy storms at sea?

Who starting out upon a trip
Must walk the street and bear his grip
May envy those who snugly ride
Some costly limousine inside,
But once within the station door,
He thinks about the walk no more.

No man remains forever sad
Bewailing hardships he has had,
For was the journey rough? The goal
At last achieved delights his soul.
Thus what we fret about today
Will different seem a year away.

No one remembers to regret
The difficulties he has met
Along the road; the journey o'er,
The hardships frighten him no more.
Safe home he settles in his chair
And thanks the path that brought him there.

Teach Your Horse the Way Home and He Will Follow It When You Are Lost.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A PLANTER who lives near this village was awakened one night by the screaming of horses. His stable was afire. It was too late to bring the horses through any of the usual exits, but at one end of the stable was an unused door that had been nailed shut. Under ordinary circumstances the opening of this door would have required a hammer or a crowbar, yet the planter was able to tear it loose with his bare hands.

Did the frenzy of desperation give him new strength? Certainly not. The strength was in his muscles and tendons before he had need of it. It was not subject to the call of his conscious mind, for he never had trained himself to use it; but it was there, ready to serve, when he "lost his head" and his subconscious mind assumed control of his muscles.

What is this subconscious mind?

Henry James says it controls 90 per cent of our mental effort.

It causes the heart to beat, the lungs to expand and contract, the glands to function. And as every motion of your hand is made in obedience to a command from your conscious mind, so every heartbeat and every gland action waits for a command from your subconscious mind.

Suppose a gland isn't functioning properly. Could it be forced to do its duty if the subconscious mind gave command? Beyond doubt. But how can you direct the subconscious mind to give such a command?

The answer to that question will solve most of mankind's problems.

Can it be answered? This much at least we know; that the subconscious mind can be trained.

The first time you steer a car, every movement requires conscious thought; but after you have learned to drive, you guide the car perfectly while your conscious mind is busy with other matters.

Your subconscious mind has learned to drive.

That is the secret. Do anything by conscious effort a sufficient number of times and your subconscious mind acquires the habit.

You can teach your subconscious mind what you will and then it will control you.

Think consciously in terms of failure and your subconscious mind learns the habit and automatically directs your failures.

You can, by taking thought, direct your subconscious mind to wake you at 5 o'clock. Why not, by the same process, direct your subconscious mind to develop all of your latent powers?

Pinchot's Losing Game.

Baltimore Sun.

Judging from the uproar in our neighbor State of Pennsylvania, the presidential campaign is under way with Gov. Pinchot as his foes have it, grabbing the power issue as the best bet in the rather forlorn game of taking the nomination away from Mr. Hoover.

As was foreseen, the Governor's war on the public utilities of his State has bogged down insofar as immediate results are concerned. His plan of setting up a Fair Rate Board, appointed by and wholly subject to the Governor, has been bowled over in the State Senate. But say the governor's enemies, this was part of his game.

It postpones the fight until next year, the presidential year, and Mr. Pinchot is reported to have threatened to call a special session of the Legislature just prior to the election of delegates to the Presidential conventions and to inject the power question into that contest.

He Wants Snell.

New York Times.

Representative Parker, farmer, Washington County, New York, is trying to raise a crop of dreams. The hope of electing a Republican Speaker may be a dream. If it is, he is cultivating a dream-in-a-dream. Even if it be, its beauty is its more than sufficient excuse. Do the Republicans want the forty-seven electoral votes from New York? They do. How can they get them? How can they dig themselves out of the long "Democratic drift" in this State? By electing as Speaker Representative Snell of Potsdam. Breathless with gratitude for this "recognition," the deserters, mutineers, stragglers, will troop back to the old homestead.

Figuring Out the Issues.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It is interesting to compare the views expressed on Tuesday regarding the issues of 1932. Senator La Follette characteristically emphasizes economic questions, the tariff, taxes, unemployment, without a mention of prohibition. Senator Walsh, of Montana, stresses stricter regulation of public utilities, tariff reduction and the five-day week. Speaking for the Republicans, Senator Hastings believes the prohibition issue will be put in the forefront by the Democratic attacks on the failure of enforcement. In his opinion the Democrats will wage a wholly negative and destructive campaign, since they will have no constructive suggestions to offer.

In this connection should be noted the assertion by Mr. Jouett Shouse before the Texas Legislature that prohibition will not be the "paramount issue" next year. His remark may have been colored by his somewhat arid environment, but his further conciliatory words concerning the rights of States that wish to be dry suggest that the Democratic strategists would prefer to make the fight on a main issue less likly to split the party.

Fooling Themselves.

Kansas City Star.

An Eastern organization has adopted a resolution calling for an immediate discontinuance of the War and Navy Departments at Washington and for the establishment of a peace department instead. Just to please the organization and to be accommodating, Congress might vote to change the names of the two departments. But their purpose all along, as the ordinary person understands it, has been the maintenance of peace. Maybe our police departments should be called goodwill societies, too. That would bring law and order, once for all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

When Did Preparedness Prevent War? Subscriber Puzzles Over Peace Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read with interest one of your editorials entitled "Preparation Means Peace." I think the idea of the War Policies Commission to devise plans whereby the sacrifices of a war might be equally distributed is a good one. It is especially desirable to eliminate the financial profits of war. Many would be more reluctant to see another war under such circumstances.

However, I am a bit perturbed over the emergency plans to mobilize 4,000,000 men—in fact, over the general war preparation policy. Surely, to make preparations for war means either that we intend to break the terms of the peace pact or that we suspect other nations; and friendship between nations can not be built upon suspicion. If we must have an Army and Navy so large that other nations will be afraid to fight us, in that instance peace rests on the basis of fear, which is highly undesirable.

May I ask what guarantee there is that preparation means peace? Prior to 1914 Germany, France and England and other countries of Europe, as has always been their custom, were prepared to fight—and their preparation did not result in peace. Was there ever an instance in which it did? It seems to me that the preponderant number of failures of this method would make any one skeptical. If I could be assured that preparation, and that method alone, would insure peace, I would support such a policy. Though even then I would be unwilling to see my country spend over half of its national income for its past wars and for perparation for a future war that would not be fought.

"Jake Paralysis" Caused by a Chemical Known as Tri-ortho-cresyl Phosphate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the May 11 issue of The Post I note an article on "Jake Paralysis," by Dr. W. A. Evans, in which the following statement is made: "The reports from California indicate some other cause for the outbreak there." Dr. Evans evidently refers to the outbreak of "Jake Paralysis" in Los Angeles during January and February of this year and seems to convey the impression that this had a different etiology from that of a year ago, which we demonstrated in this laboratory to have been caused by a chemical known as tri-ortho-cresyl phosphate. May I correct Dr. Evans' misinforation and inform you that the recent epidemic in Los Angeles was caused by the same chemical which in some unknown manner got into ginger extract shipped to California from New York the latter part of December of last year and early in January of this year. A complete report of this investigation is being published in the public health reports of the United States Public Health Service.

How Can Universe Be Limited Without Limiting Infinite Creator?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I find it impossible to free myself from the conception that the universe is infinite, notwithstanding the assertion of certain astronomers that it has precise metes and bounds.

Sir James H. Jeans says that if the astronomer "is not yet acquainted with the whole universe he has good reason to hope that he will be before long." The universe is "something enormously big," admits Sir James, "but nevertheless not infinitely big." In fact, it is "something whose limits we can fix; something capable of being imagined and studied as a single complete whole."

If the limited-universe astronomers referred to it as "our" universe, I might enjoy their mathematical theorizing as an academic pastime. But even so, I could not keep from academically imagining a universe, or other universes, beyond ours.

If the universe is limited, what about the First Great Cause, the slightest thought in reference to whose identity and attributes involves the mind in hopeless puzzlement? If a telescopic system "whose limits we can fix," an "enormously big" extension of the solar system with which we are more or less familiar, is to be accepted as "the whole universe," are we accordingly to limit the God of the Christian Bible, of whose infinite power we have been wont to speak?

The limit of exploration of the Jeans universe, if I may so name it, is at present fixed by means of the 100-inch Mount Wilson telescope. And we are told that "probing still farther into its reaches must await completion of the 200-inch telescope, which will have four times the light-gathering or 'seeing' power of the 100-inch instrument." But no matter how great might be the light-gathering power of the telescope with which the Jeans universe were measured, I am afraid I would still be influenced by the old-fashioned objection that the infinite can not be measured by the finite. At best my humble notion would be that our universe is an infinitesimal part of the universe.

It seems to me that the Einsteins and Jeanses take too much for granted; their major proposition is shaky; they slur the riddle of infinity. I admire their technical ability and their amazing theories, illuminated by millions of billions of light years, are extremely entertaining. But I can not help feeling that, "in the mad pride of intellectuality," they merely "kid" themselves with the idea that the limits of time and space can be measured by finite telescopes.

CRASH OF LAUNCHING DROWNS PEACE PLEA

Hindenburg Hurls Bottle as Cruiser Prematurely Slides Into Sea.

Kiel, Germany, May 19 (A.P.).—In the midst of a launching speech by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, in which he characterized Germany's new "vestpocket" cruiser as not a warlike gesture, but a positive element for peace, the vessel suddenly interrupted ceremonies by sliding into the water ahead of time.

President Paul von Hindenburg swung a ceremonial champagne bottle at the departing cruiser, but it failed to strike the prow. However, he kept his presence of mind and called to the vessel:

"Let thy name be Deutschland! Carry this name for Germany to pride and fame on the seas!"

Shouts of spectators as the ship shot toward the water drowned out his invocation. But the vestpocket cruiser had been named.

A young naval officer picked up the unbroken champagne bottle and carried it home.

After witnessing the fleet's night firing practice, Von Hindenburg spent the night aboard the cruiser Koenigsberg. He will review the fleet tomorrow before returning to Berlin.

The cause of the premature launching was a misunderstanding of orders by the shipyard crew which led them to cut the vital cable too soon.

LEAGUE COUNCIL SELECTS HENDERSON AS ARMS CHIEF

ners against economic welfare. They are barriers to prosperity.

"The debtor must be allowed to sell his goods if he is to pay his debts. The tariff system is undermining the very foundation of our economic structures."

Having poured their proposals for European economic reconstruction into a common pool, the members of the Pan-European commission tonight entrusted to a subcommittee the formidable task of drafting a plan to bring relief from the prevailing economic depression.

This subcommittee was instructed to report tomorrow, if possible, in order to permit immediate concerted international action. The league council, sitting this morning, formally asked the World Court to give an advisory opinion upon the legality of the proposed Austro-German Customs Union.

The conflict over the Teutonic customs scheme is now recognized as the most disturbing dispute which has arisen among the great powers since the League of Nations was founded. The good relations of these two countries constitute the most important factor in the establishment of European peace.

It was with this in mind that statesmen at this afternoon's conference called upon each other to combine in a common movement for economic relief.

The subcommittee which is seeking to outline an acceptable joint plan is headed by Joseph Motta, of Switzerland, and is made up of representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Greece, Roumania, Spain, Sweden, Russia and Turkey. The subcommittee was named on the motion of Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, who made an emotional appeal for concerted action "before it is too late."

The suave diplomacy of Aristide Briand quieted a threatening tension in the council session this afternoon. The harmony was broken during the presentation of opinions by Dr. Voyislav Marinkovitch, the Jugoslavian foreign minister, and Dr. Julius Curtius, foreign minister of Germany.

Dr. Marinkovitch challenged the German view that the league council is not competent to deal with the political aspect of the Austro-German arrangement. Briand made peace between the speakers.

Four Donations Made To Camp of Boys' Club

The Boys' Club Camp, which will open its eighth season on June 29, has just received four valuable donations. Foster H. Reeder, a member of the Board of Trustees, who allows a portion of his farm to be used as the camp site, has developed a five-acre recreation field and has turned over a building to be used as an administration house. Frank H. Edmonds, optician, has contributed a 30 by 20 foot barge float, and Henry H. Brawner, jr., has contributed a new kitchen.

Many former campers have already signed for the entire season.

Green Says Banks Demand Wage Cuts

Labor Leader Scores Move as Threat to Nation's Living Standard.

Houston, Tex., May 19 (A.P.).—President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said today reports have reached the federation headquarters that some bankers have refused to extend credit to manufacturers unless they reduced wages.

"This is coercion of the most reprehensible character," he declared in addressing the convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Mr. Green said many influential employes were standing with labor against wage cuts, but that there were indications that "a group of powerful banking and financial interests are attempting to enforce a general reduction in wages." The labor chief insisted that reduced wages would bring a consequent lower standard of living and hurt business.

Marine Band to Open Sylvan Theater Season

The recently lighted Sylvan Theaterter on the Washington Monument grounds will be formally opened for the season at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night with a concert by the United States Marine Band. The concert will include the George Washington Bicentennial March, written recently by John Philip Sousa.

The first band concert of the season for colored patrons will be held on the night of May 22 at Franklin Park. The Community Center Band will play.

Army Tests New Boats In Crossing Delaware

New York, May 19 (A.P.).—The Army is going to cross the Delaware tomorrow along the very course that Washington followed. But there the parallel ends.

There won't be any blocks of ice in the river, and there won't be any tattered soldiers poling the boats. The crossing will be made in shiny new aluminum boats with outboard motors. It's a test to determine if the metal pontoon boats are suitable for war-time usage.

Marine Student Flier Dies as Plane Crashes

Pensacola, Fla., May 19 (A.P.).—Second Lieut. R. S. Sullivan, jr., Marine Corps student flier, was killed today as his plane crashed near Gorman Field, Naval training grounds here.

Sullivan was a son of Col. R. H. Sullivan, of the Marine Corps, who is stationed at Parris Island, S. C.

Keliher Allowed to Cut Payments for Child

Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday signed an order permitting John B. Keliher, to reduce his monthly payments in support of a child by his first wife from $100 a month to $60 a month.

Keliher had petitioned for a reduction on the ground that severe financial losses had made it difficult for him to pay the $100 monthly.

Tract for Playground Is Bought for $5,250

A tract of land adjacent to the Toner School, Twenty-fourth and F streets northwest, was ordered purchased yesterday by the District Commissioners from Jacque Heidenheimer for $5,250 for use as a playground.

The commissioners also awarded a contract for construction of the Rhode Island avenue service sewer, between Second and Third streets northeast, to R. D. Schlegel on his low bid of $1,304.08.

New British Counselor Due About June 5

Mr. Chalkley and Family Coming From Argentine Capital.

ARRIVING in New York about June 5, Mr. H. O. Chalkley, accompanied by his wife and their young son and daughter, will come to Washington to assume his new duties as Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy, succeeding Sir John Joyce Broderick, who left Washington several months ago following his appointment to the post of British Minister to Cuba.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalkley sailed Monday on the Northern Prince from Buenos Aires, where the former has been serving as commercial counselor for ten years. Mr. Chalkley has had an interesting and lengthy career in the diplomatic service of his country. And from all accounts he and his wife will be welcome additions to the ranks of diplomacy in Washington.

This, incidentally, will be Mr. Chalkley's first term of service in the Capital. He has only held a post in this country once before, and that was in 1907, when he was vice consul in New York.

Having entered the service in 1906, he has been on duty for the most part in Latin America, where he served as charge d'affaires in Panama and charge d'affaires in Buenos Aires.

Capt. and Mrs. Steele are on their way to this country from Paris where the former has been on duty at Naval Attache at the American Embassy.

Capt. and Mrs. Steele will remain in Washington about two days. The former has been assigned to sea duty, having command of the aircraft scouting force with the Atlantic Fleet.

Mrs. Frank Loesch will entertain at luncheon tomorrow at the Mayflower.

Maj. and Mrs. John B. Harper will entertain at dinner Saturday evening at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club.

Other parties taking place at the club in the near future are the luncheon and bridge which Mrs. Walter Lewis, wife of Maj. Lewis, will give there on Monday, and the dinner dance to be given by Col. and Mrs. Frank L. K. LaFlamme next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Nathan C. Pickles, wife of Maj. Pickles, will entertain at a bridge luncheon next Tuesday.

The United States Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim are at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, accompanied by Mrs. Tiffany Blake, of Chicago, who has been her guest here, have left for their Illinois homes.

Horse Show and Dance At Medical Graduation.

Col. and Mrs. Julien Bernheim are among the group of Army people who will leave next week-end, May 29, for the graduating exercises at the Medical Field School at Carlisle, Pa.

On Friday, May 29, there will be a dinner dance for those attending the activities, and the following day there will be a horse show, followed by the graduation exercises.

The Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Arcaya will entertain informally at luncheon tomorrow in honor of Senor Romulo Gallegos, novelist, of Venezuela, who is spending a few days in Washington.

Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling, wife of the United States Minister to the Irish Free State, has sailed to join Mr. Sterling at the legation in Dublin, after a short visit in this country. Mrs. John R. Williams, mother of Mrs. Sterling, accompanied her to New York.

Mrs. Deming Jarves has taken possession of her new home at 2836 McGill Terrace. The new residence, which was only recently completed, is near the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. John P. Jackson.

Mrs. Jarves is busy installing her lares and penates, brought from the villa at Dinard, France, which has been her home for many years. In the dining room of the new house, which faces the south and opens on a terrace, Mrs. Jarves has hung her most prized possessions, floral wall panels, the work of the Grand Duchess Cyril, wife of the Grand Duke who would be Czar of Russia were there a restoration of the empire.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess Cyril are neighbors of Mrs. Jarves at Dinard, where she will continue to maintain her residence.

Baron and Baroness Luiki Marincola di San Floro, who are living in New York, will sail shortly for Europe and will go to Italy to visit the Baron's parents. They will be accompanied by their young son, Peter.

Baroness Marincola is a former Washingtonian. Known here as Miss Josephine Pomeroy, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pomeroy.

Mrs. Hoover Is Hostess to Large Party at Circus

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover and her party snapped under the big top yesterday when she was hostess at the circus matinee. Front row, left to right—Lieut. S. C. Ring, naval aid; Patsy Butler, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Frederick Butler; Peggy Anne Hoover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr.; Robert Joslin, sone of the President's secretary; Marshall Newton and Miss Grace Newton, children of Walter Newton, secretary to the President. In thover, jr.; Robert Joslin, son of the Presierick F. Butler, secretary to Mrs. Hoover; Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr.; Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, and Herbert Hoover, jr.

Peggy Hoover At Circus for Her First Time

Grandmother and Parents See Performance Dear to Children.

Eager to please childish hearts, Mrs. Hoover took her young granddaughter, Peggy Ann, and a group of youngsters to the afternoon performance of the circus yesterday. But even "grown-ups" can revert to childhood days for a few hours, and the party included, not only an Ambassador, none other than Mr. Hugh Gibson, U. S. Envoy to Belgium, but Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., Mrs. Walter H. Newton, Mrs. Fred Butler and Mrs. Stark McMullin.

Enjoying the fun with little Peggy Ann were Robert Joslin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Joslin; young John Marshall Newton and Mrs. Butler's daughter.

Mr. Gibson is a guest at the White House, having come here for a conference with officials. President Hoover and the Ambassador have been close friends from the time when Mr. Hoover was director of Belgian relief and Mr. Gibson was attached to the American Embassy in Brussels, where he was later to go as Ambassador.

Peggy Ann, whose 3-year-old brother, Peter, had to remain at the White House because he had a cold, was delighted with the dancing elephant, terrified by Mr. Zacchini, who comes out of a cannon, impressed by the tableaux and enthralled with it all.

As for the dozens of clowns, hilariously caparisioned in grotesque costumes, they did their stunts so close to Peggy Ann that she could almost have reached out and touched them. When a few of them tossed a lighted "bomb" back and forth, she stuffed her fingers in her ears.

Only once did she look up—when the sailor boys did their daring rope-walking, bicycle-riding act almost at the very top of the tent. Then she climbed on her mother's lap, to remain there until she espied Phoebe Lewis, 8-year-old daughter of the Interstate Commerce Commissioner, a few rows away. Peggy Ann joined her friend and they watched the show together until the cannon was brought out. Then she ran back to snuggle safely in her mother's lap.

Mrs. Kincheloe Takes Cottage in Annapolis.

Mrs. David Hayes Kincheloe, wife of Judge Kincheloe, of New York, formerly representative from Kentucky, has taken a cottage at Annapolis for June week, where she will have with her her daughter, Miss Gene Kincheloe; Miss Carolyn Hyde, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, and Miss Mary Nolan, of Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Kincheloe and her daughter will motor from New York, arriving May 29.

Miss Kincheloe, whose musicales and at homes were such a treat to society during her years of residence here, gave a similar entertainment at her home at 106 East Eighty-fifth street, Sunday. Assisting her were Mrs. George M. Young, Mrs. William J. Tilson, Miss Harriet Ashby, Mrs. Helen Waldron and several subdebutantes, Miss Eileen Wallan, Miss Peggy Watts, Miss Harriet Chadwick and her daughter, Miss Gene Kincheloe.

The singers were Mr. Alexander Bouman, tenor, pupil of Maestro Alberta Caffa in Rome, Italy; Mr. Lewis Harlen McCoy, who sang in opera in Italy and Germany, and Mr. John Hale, who studied in Europe with Maestro Cataldi.

Mrs. Stanley Carr has loaned her home at 3000 Woodland drive for an exhibition of handmade articles made by Kentucky mountaineers, for whose benefit they will be sold. The display is under the direction of Princess Obelensky and Miss Harriet Camac, of New York, who are guests of Mrs. Carr. The exhibit opened yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow. Tea will be served each afternoon.

An evening of chamber music, under the direction of the music committee, of which Miss Sade Styron is chairman, will be given at the Arts Club tomorrow evening. There will be a Mozart trio, including Mr. Paul Brightenberg, Miss Mary Park Clements and Miss Styron. This will be followed by the unique feature of Beethoven songs, rendered by Miss Helen Howison, with a string accompaniment by Mr. Brightenberg and Mr. Louis A. Potter, jr. A violin sonata, with Mr. Milton Schwartz, violinist, and Mr. Felian Garzia, pianist, will conclude the program.

Miss Lucy Brickenstein will be the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean W. Storey, of Worcester, Mass., arrived at the Powhatan yesterday to remain several days.

Polish Cross Conferred on Mrs. Bok Here

Decoration Takes Place at Luncheon Given in Embassy.

The Polish Ambassador and Mme. Filipowicz entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Edward Curtis Bok, president of the Curtis Institute of Philadelphia. Mrs. Bok was decorated by the Ambassador with the Officers' Cross of Polonia Restituta.

The other guests were Mr. Bronislaw Malynarski, son of the conductor of the Curtis Institute Orchestra; Mrs. Muntz, sister of Mr. Malynarski; Miss Persis Meyers and members of the embassy staff.

The Ambassador and Mme. Filipowicz are patrons of music and great lovers of the art. They are host frequently at the embassy, having various artists as entertainers. They are constantly seeking novel entertainment for the amusement of their guests.

The United States Minister to Jugoslavia, Mr. John Dyneley Prince, sailed yesterday from New York aboard the Cosulich to resume the duties of his post. Mr. Prince has been passing a leave of absence in this country.

Dr. Everett Monroe Ellison, international president of the Loyal Knights of the Round Table, has left to make an official visit to the Tables at Wilmington, Philadelphia, Jersey City, New York, Brooklyn, New Haven, Boston and Portland.

Laura Palmer To Be Married In New York

Many Parties Will Honor Bride-Elect Preceding Wedding in June.

Many parties are being planned for Miss Laura Creighton Palmer, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Leigh Palmer, formerly of Washington, now living in New York, whose marriage to Mr. George Purnell MacGregor will take place on the afternoon of June 26, in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. Miss Barbara Cates will entertain at a luncheon for Miss Palmer tomorrow at the Park Lane, and on May 29 Miss Eleanor Taylor and Miss Mildred Healy will give a tea at the latter's home on East Ninetieth street.

Miss Palmer has chosen her sister, Mrs. Howard N. Tucker, of Washington, for her matron of honor, and for her maid of honor, Miss Audrey A. Watts. The bridesmaids will be Miss Barbara Cates, Miss Peggy Shaw, Miss Eleanor Taylor, Miss Virginia Loftin, Miss Evelyn Talbot, Miss Christine Ekengren, of Washington, and Miss Virginia Slaughter, of Baltimore. Little Suzanne Close will be the flower girl.

Mr. MacGregor will have his brother, Mr. Charles Russell MacGregor, for his best man, and the ushers will be Mr. Donald R. Williams, Mr. Harry D. Watts, jr., Mr. Frank L. Reed, Mr. Charles M. Peabody, Mr. Thomas Mackay Crabbe, Mr. Gerald Groesbeck, Mr. Frederick Killiam and Mr. Russell John.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the Pierre.

Mrs. Stevens to Give Tea For Social Workers.

The founder of the social service department of Garfield Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Cabot Stevens, is inviting all hospital social service members in Washington to a conference tea to meet Miss Lena Waters, of Philadelphia, and Miss Margaret Ferguson, of Baltimore.

Miss Waters is national executive secretary of American Hospital Social Service Council and director of University of Pennsylvania social service department. She will present an inspirational address to hospital volunteers and professionals in the hospital social service field. There will be messages from other experts and local problems will be discussed in an open forum.

The conference is to be at Mrs. Stevens' residence on next Monday at 2:30 o'clock with tea at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Katherine Prindeville entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham.

Noted English Astronomer Is Visiting Here

Wife of Sir James Jeans Is Sister of Mrs. Hiram Bingham.

Washington, always welcoming famous visitors, has had as a guest this week Sir James Jeans, renowned British astronomer, who came to Washington accompanied by his wife, Lady Jeans.

Lady Jeans, hitherto unheralded, steps into the limelight as the sister of Mrs. Hiram Bingham, wife of the senator from Connecticut. Arriving in the Capital late Saturday, on short notice, Sir James and Lady Jeans were immediately called on by the British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay, and on Sunday were entertained at the embassy at a small and informal luncheon. On Monday evening the distinguished Englishman delivered a lecture at the Smithsonian Institute, and today will leave Washington to give several talks in different cities before sailing on May 29 for England. Lady Jeans will remain in Washington, at the Shoreham Hotel, where she and Sir James have been for the past few days, until May 23, and will then join Sir James in New York.

Mrs. Bingham, who is still lingering in Washington, has planned no formal entertainment for her sister, but they spend the days together, enjoying each other's company after a separation of many years. Mrs. Bingham will leave about June 1 for her summer home, The Camp, near Salem, Conn.

Sir James and Lady Jeans came to this country the end of April and went to the Mount Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, Calif., of which the former is a research associate. While there Sir James studied and discussed astronomical problems with Dr. Walter S. Adams, the director of the observatory. It is at the same observatory that Prof. Einstein recently made a visit while in California.

Today Sir James will go to Philadelphia, where he will receive the Franklin Medal and deliver an address.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family names "Klein," "Cline" and "Clyne" have become very much confused in English-speaking countries. "Klein" is of German origin. It means "little," and was first given as a nickname. Although many German families have adopted the spellings "Cline" and "Clyne" as English equivalents of their original names, "Cline" and "Clyne" have wholly different origins and meanings. Generally they are modern forms of the original Irish "Mac Giollachlaoin" which means "the descendant of the deceitful youth." This name appears to have originated in Roscommon and Longford. However, it has been found that in a few cases "Clyne" is of Welsh origin. As such it is derived from the Old Welsh "clun" and "clyn" meaning "the meadow," and indicates the place of residence of the persons who were first so called.

The history of language reveals the almost universal tendency of speakers to pronounce with varying degrees of carelessness all syllables of a word except the syllable on which the main accent falls. Final unstressed syllables especially are pronounced indistinctly. As a result of this common practice many English names which end in "-house" have gradually had that syllable changed to "-ows," "-ers," "-us," &c. In this manner the family name "Parkhouse (which has the obvious meaning of "the house in or near the park," and indicates an original place of residence) has sometimes become corrupted to "Parkers." In a similar way the family name "Backhouse" has often been changed to "Backus," "Backhus" and "Bacchus." These English family names are merely variations of "Bakehouse," and imply that the persons who were first so called were employed or had their dwellings at bakeries. The German form "Backhaus," with the same meaning, and the Low German "Backhus" are quite common.

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF May 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 11:10 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger hours are from 11:50 a. m. to 1:45 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 7:10 p. m.

Planetary aspects of May 20 denote influences which will make for curious and memorable experiences. They favor and encourage business enterprise, especially in connection with real estate or mining. Some unexpected good news will be received during the evening.

Children born on this May 20 will be temperamentally, very matter of fact, straightforward, frank and easy to understand. They will always be calm and collected, never worry and never allow themselves to be stampeded. Fond of home and its comforts, travel will make little or no appeal to them.

Born on May 20, your chief characteristics are persistency, perspicacity and level-headedness. You never allow disappointment or adversity to lessen your efforts. Neither does success weaken your stamina. Before embarking in any new enterprise or undertaking, you carefully weigh the "pros" and "cons" and, almost unconsciously, overstress the difficulties and underestimate the rewards. Once in, however, you never let go, and work until success crowns your efforts. Your judgment, being always well considered, is generally reliable.

Your mannerisms assist you very much, and, underlying your strong determination, there is always apparent an atmosphere of affability that disarms criticism and promotes good feeling. You never show your true sentiments when they are inimical or pessimistic. You, too, shoulder your own mistakes and never try to "pass the buck."

Not afraid of responsibility, always fired by the ambition to do your utmost, self-confident and determined, your horoscope indicates that you will travel far and achieve much. In your home life those traits will win for you, while on the outside success and material prizes will insure for your happiness and contentment. As husband, or wife, you will, in good times or hard ones, be a real companion and a true pal. Your never-changing attitude will halve all troubles and double all joys.

Successful people born May 20:

Emil Berliner, inventor.

John Elmer Milholland, builder of New York mail tubes.

William John Locke, English novelist.

Thomas D. Rice, actor.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Attractive street ensemble of blue tie-silk flecked with white. The frock with its overall top is worn over a white crepe romain blouse. (Courtesy of Jane Regny, Paris.)

New York, May 19.

ONE of the most important articles of apparel, and one to which the clever woman will give much thought, is the daytime shoe. A commonplace shoe, of the wrong color, can, and often does, ruin an otherwise perfectly charming ensemble. Or an ill-fitting shoe, one too small or too cut-out, will give a woman a limping agony that can not be concealed, and which, too, would detract from the most charming costume in the world. To me, the most foolish economy in the world is on shoes. Oh, one does see perfectly darling models here, there and everywhere, for the smallest prices—but, unless the last is one that your foot will be comfortable in, it's better to have fewer pairs of shoes, and more expensive ones!

Because of our active lives, at home or in business, shoes should be chosen with great care. Dark colored kids, such as navy, green and burgundy, are as chic today as they have ever been, but if you can not afford to exactly match or harmonize your costume with these colored kids, the thing to do is to own one attractive black pair and one smart brown pair. This year the oxford, the strapped shoe and the opera are all in good taste. For walking and sports, of course, the oxford with a medium or low heel is best; the strap slipper does for semiformal occasions, such as luncheons and matinees, but the opera still remains the favorite for dress occasions.

The favored material, according to the shoes I saw at the openings, is plain calf kid, be it black or brown, or dyed some other color to match some special costume.

Tiny irregular flecks are being used o-o-o-o-h just about for every type of street wear this season. We've come to love our lightweight flecked tweeds and things, but even more adorable than the woolens is this blue tie-silk flecked with white that Jane Regny chose for making the chic little street suit I have sketched today. The jacket with its plain sleeves is belted snugly over the jumper frock beneath by a wide black patent leather belt, and this fastens with the new and popular eyelet and hook fastening. The belt can be adjusted, you see, for there are two rows of the eyelets. The frock, with its pleated skirt and overall top, is worn over a white crepe romain blouse that is demureness itself with its square, gathered neck and cuffless short sleeves!

A brassiere that really confines—shorts full enough for utmost comfort yet without a single disastrous bulge—a dainty, shadow-proof petticoat—those are the essentials of miladi's lingerie wardrobe today. It sounds like a pretty good deal, too, doesn't it, and rather bulky and hot to carry around in warm weather, but—it isn't! For I have designed a brassiere-vest in one piece with the shorts that is sufficient to wear under anything but the thinnest dress, and a matching petticoat to take care of even that. Better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope off quickly to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet that tells how to make all this underwear very easily and very economically!

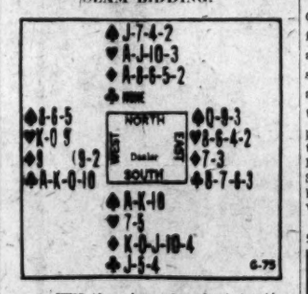
WORK ON BRIDGE

SLAM BIDDING.



WITH the above hand at Auction Bridge, South would bid one Diamond, West two Clubs, North two Diamonds, then East and South would pass, but West would call three Clubs, and North three Diamonds. If West bid four Clubs, North or South would bid four Diamonds.

In Contract Bridge South would start with two Diamonds, and West would bid three Clubs. North properly could bid six Diamonds in view of South's announcement of six tricks by his original bid. North could count the Ace of Diamonds as 1 raiser, five cards of partner's suit as 1½ more, the void Club suit as 2 more, and the Ace-Jack-Ten of Hearts as 1½ more—total 6—fully enough to jump South's two-bid to a small slam. Or North could bid four Clubs over West's three Clubs to show that no tricks would be lost in the Club suit and that a slam was probable at South's declaration. Over that South would bid four Diamonds and North six.

If North jumped to six Diamonds without indicating his shortness in Clubs, West would open with the King of Clubs. North would ruff, and two rounds of Diamonds then would be extracted, South winning both; after which South would lead the Ace of Spades and then a second round of Clubs for North to ruff. Then a Spade finesse by South, and the finesse winning, the Declarer would take thirteen tricks—one more than the amount of his bid.

If North showed that he had no Clubs by bidding four Clubs on the first round, West might lead a Heart and, if so, Declarer should cinch his small slam contract, winning in North and after exhausting the trumps return a Heart from the South hand, permitting West to take one trick and thus be assured of a Spade discard on North's good Heart, rather than try a Spade finesse which, if it lost, would be followed by a Heart trick won by West and a defeated contract.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

IRIS FOR EVERY GARDEN.

IRIS from every clime and, I might add, iris of every hue. We have taken the iris for granted so long that some who never heard of the Iris Society nor seen the new varieties, are not especially enthusiastic over the "common garden flag." But once they attend an annual show, or visit some botanical gardens where the iris has come into its own, they join the ever-increasing company of devotees of this plant of ancient lineage. For the iris, you know, has not only flaunted its colors on the historic fields of the Old World, but has graced the crests of royalty.

The German flag iris is the variety with which we are all familiar. Though not the most beautiful of all the iris family, it is the most reliable; in fact, it is so hardy that it is almost impossible to kill.

In planting a German iris, set it in a rich loam, and be sure, when incorporating manure with the soil, to place it rather deep, so that the roots can reach it after they have been growing some time. This class of iris can be had in a wide range of colors, from the pure white of White Knight to the black purple of Souv. de Mme. Gaudichau.

Some of the varieties that I believe are best for the amateur are Pallida Dalmatica, the standards and falls of which are clear lavender-blue shading to pale silvery-blue at the base, large spreading flowers, sweetly scented, and the Magnifica, the standards of which are light violet blue; falls dark reddish-violet with brown stripes at base. This plant is among the largest of all irises.

Old, well-established plants of this class must be taken up and divided occasionally, and those which are not disturbed must be kept free from weeds and have the soil about their roots stirred at least twice each month.

In the spring of the year it is well to fork up the soil about the roots of your iris lightly, and to give them a top dressing of bonemeal.

Modern Laundry Expert Explains "Net Bag System"

Tells How Manhattan Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt. This thorough care in washing is one reason why Manhattan laundered clothes stay new-looking so much longer.

Customer Praises Net Bags

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry, Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you . . ."

This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

3-Day Collection and Delivery

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Services to Fit Every Need

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services — from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work.

—Pulitzer Prize Novel—

YEARS OF GRACE - - - By Margaret Ayer Barnes

SYNOPSIS.

Muriel Lester, one of Jane Ward's little friends, plans a party to visit the World's Fair in Chicago, and tells Jane to invite Andre, who has spent the summer in Paris. Andre returns just in time and calls on Jane. She finds him older and slightly changed as he describes his experiences in London and Paris, where he studied in an artist's studio.

ANDRE—CHAPTER IV.

JANE woke next morning in a state of great excitement. For a minute she couldn't quite recollect as she lay in her big walnut bed with the early sunshine streaming in her east window, just what was going to happen that was so very nice. She felt strangely entangled by dreams that she couldn't remember. Happy dreams, though, and vivid, but lost even as she tried to clutch after them. Then she knew. Andre was back. Andre still—liked her. She was going to see Andre that evening at Muriel's party.

Jane sprang from her bed and ran to the window. It was a lovely day. The sky was bright and blue above the willow tree. The tree itself was waving, silvery green, in the soft September breeze. There would be a moon that evening. She had looked it up in the weather report in the paper the night before.

Andre would like the World's Fair. He would like those vast white buildings standing stark in the moonbeams And the twinkling lights on restless, moving water. And the terrace at the restaurant. And the music. And the crowds. It would be fun to see him see it.

Soon after breakfast she was called to the telephone. At the sound of Muriel's voice Jane was awfully afraid that something dreadful had happened. But no, the party was getting better and better. Flora had called up Muriel to say that her father had come home from New York unexpectedly that morning. As his wife was in Galena he wanted to join the party. He had asked if Mr. Lester would let him take them all down to the fair ground in the tally-ho.

The tally-ho! Even Muriel had thought that would be magnificent. The Furnesses' coach and four was quite the most splendid vehicle that Jane and Muriel had ever seen. They weren't asked to ride on it very often. Mr. Furness had bought it only that summer and Flora herself seldom went on the elegant parties that he drove up the lake to the end of the pavement, or down to Washington Park, with the clatter of prancing hoofs and the jingle of chain harness and the toot of the triumphant horn. Mr. Furness was quite a judge of horseflesh.

And this afternoon he was coming to pick them all up at 5 o'clock and Jane and Isabel must be ready at the window, for Flora's father never liked to be kept waiting, holding his pawing horses, at any one's door. Jane assured Muriel earnestly that she would be on the front steps. Of course she would. She didn't even want to miss seeing the coach swing around the corner, clattering and jingling and tooting—the Furnesses' new coach—to pick her up to drive all the way down to Jackson Park with Andre, to show him the World's Fair.

At 4 o'clock Jane began very seriously dressing for the party. She solemnly considered the possibility of borrowing Isabel's curling tongs, but the sight of her sister, standing nervously in petticoat and combing jacket, heating the tongs in question for her own use at the gas jet beside her rosewood bureau, dissuaded her from the thought. Isabel didn't like to be bothered when she was dressing.

"I wish you wouldn't talk to me," she said irritably, when her mother came in, conversationally minded, and sat sociably down on the sofa. Mrs. Ward rose obediently and almost ran into Jane at the door. They walked together down the hall. But her voice floated out to them, down the passage.

"Shall I wear the blue or the green?" she called abstractedly. Jane's mother turned back with intprest.

"The green, I think, dear."

Jane went into her own bedroom. She wouldn't borrow the curling tongs. She would rough up her hair by running her comb through it the wrong way. That, after all, would be safer. Jane had never used curling tongs. It would be better not to experiment for such an important party.

At a quarter to 5 Jane came out of her front door and looked anxiously up the street. It was perfectly empty, save for one yellow ice wagon that was waiting, halfway down the block.

Jane sat down on the top step, carefully turning up the skirt of her blue foulard frock so that she wouldn't soil it. The mellow afternoon sunlight slanted down the quiet street.

Suddenly the coach swung around the corner, a warning fanfare sounding on the horn.

"Isabel!" screamed Jane. It seemed terribly important not to keep Mr. Furness waiting a single second. Isabel appeared at the door She looked very blonde and pretty in her bright green dress. She had borrowed their mother's black silk cape. She shaded her eyes against the western sun and waved cheerfully to Rosalie as the coach drew up at the door.

The groom sprang down with incredible alacrity and took up his position at the bridle of the prancing roan leaders. The horses arched their pretty necks and pawed the cedar pavement. The chain harness jingled and the smart red rosettes on their bridles fluttered with their restless motion. Jane and Isabel ran down the steps.

The coach was a chaos of festive color and movement. Mrs. Lester had her purple parasol and Muriel her bright red frock and Flora her pale blue one. Rosalie looked lovely in rose-colored taffeta, sitting with Mr. Furness on the box seat, but leaning back to talk to Freddy Waters, on the row behind her. Bob and Teddy were there, and Robin Bridges for Isabel. Andre was on the back seat, close by the little platform where the groom stood up to blow the horn. Jane scrambled up over the back wheel to sit beside him, while Robin helped Isabel up the little steps.

For a minute she couldn't quite recollect, as she lay in her big walnut bed with the early sunshine streaming in her east window, just what was going to happen that was so very nice. She felt strangely entangled by dreams that she couldn't remember.

"Where's Jane?" said Mrs. Lester, bewildered.

"I'm here!" piped Jane, brushing the dust off her flounces.

Mr. Furness waved his whip and flicked it over the shoulders of the leaders. The little groom sprang back, under peril of instant dissolution. The horses plunged and started. The groom climbed up behind Jane and Andre. In a minute they were trotting smartly down Pine street and the wind was blowing freshly in Jane's face, blowing her hair across her pink cheeks as she laughed up at Andre, terribly happy to be driving like this, right under the boughs of the elm trees, high up in the air, almost on a level with the second stories of the houses, laughing at Andre, with a whole evening before her that was going to be such fun.

The sun had long been set when they reached the fair grounds. They all climbed down from the coach and strolled in the gathering twilight past the glimmering, glamorous buildings, through the jostling, pleasure-bent crowd until they reached the restaurant.

"Let's eat on the terrace," said Rosalie. The September night was very mild. Mr. Furness found a waiter who made one long table out of five so all twelve of them could sit together. Jane sat between Andre and Freddy Waters. Freddy didn't speak to her once, all through the meal, he was so busy talking to Rosalie on his other side and answering the sallies of Isabel from across the table. Andre didn't say much, either.

"Is this like Paris?" Jane asked him. She meant the terrace and the candle-lit tables and the sky overhead, with just the largest stars gleaming faintly through the yellow glow of the fair grounds.

"Something," said Andre. "Paris is really just like itself." Jane felt a little disappointed. She had hoped so much that it was.

The moon came up before the meal was over, a little lopsided, just past the full, enormous and very clear, out of the waters of the lake. It made a silver path from the horizon to the very foot of the terrace.

"There's nothing like that in Paris," said Andre solemnly. Jane felt a little better about Chicago. When dinner was over they started for the Midway. The crowds were dreadful there, but Jane loved the side shows. Rosalie had her fortune told and so did Isabel and so did Muriel. But Mr. Furness didn't want Flora to touch the dirty gypsy and Jane didn't want to hear her fortune with Andre there and Muriel at hand to giggle. Muriel had even giggled at Freddy Waters when the gypsy found a blond young man in Rosalie's pink palm.

Then they went to the Streets of Cairo and rode riotously on camels. Mrs. Lester sat on a green bench beside Mr. Furness and laughed herself into hysteria as the girls climbed timorously up on the leather saddles, clutching at petticoats in a vain attempt to cover protruding ankles, when the dreadful animals lurched clumsily to their feet and rocked away. It was like nothing else than an earthquake, Jane decided, as she clung desperately to the awkward humps.

Later Mrs. Lester shepherded them safely past the hoochee-couchee dances and the perils of the Dahomey Village to the more adequately clothed Esquimos, who tactfully volunteered upon question, as a tribute to the Chicago climate, that they felt the cold more on the Midway than in Labrador. The Ferris wheel loomed up before them in the night. They must all go up in that, Rosalie decided.

Jane stepped into one of the swinging cars in front of Andre. She had never been up in the Ferris wheel before. The compartments looked as small as bird cages when dangling in midair. Jane was surprised to see that they were really almost as big as street cars. She sat down with Andre in a corner seat. The car swayed slightly as the wheel started. They moved up and out, then stopped again while other cars were loading. They swung slowly around the huge circumference, starting and stopping at intervals. The ground fell away beneath them and Jane lost all sense of movement. The car seemed suspended motionless in midair, with the ground sliding sideways beneath it and great steel trusses of the wheel revolving slowly past the window. It paused a moment as they reached the top of the circle. The lights of the fair grounds glittered brightly below them. Long lines of yellow street lamps radiated out in the darkness. The illuminated cable-cars on Cottage Grove avenue crawled like mechanical toys. The glow of the city was visible at the north but the stars overhead were lost in the radiance of the myriad gas lamps of the Midway. The silver moon looked incredibly remote hung halfway up the eastern sky.

Jane drew in her breath with a little gasp of delight. Why—flying must be like this! They started slowly down again around the great wheel. The car swung out over the circle's edge. It seemed horribly unsupported, hanging dizzily over an abyss. Jane shut her eyes quickly and groped for Andre's hand. She felt a distant shock of surprise when his fingers closed over hers.

"I-I'm giddy," she said faintly.

Andre took her hand in both his own.

"Keep your eyes shut," he said practically. He moved a little nearer on the seat and his arm rested against her shoulder. "All right, now?" he asked.

"Yes," said Jane faintly, still not daring to look. Andre continued to hold her hand in his. The starting and stopping went on disquietingly.

"Aren't we nearly there?" asked Jane.

"We go around twice," said Andre. "The second time without stopping."

"Can't I get out?" asked Jane.

"No," said Andre, "but it's all right now. You can look."

She did, and removed her hand from his as they moved slowly by the crowded landing platform and out and up once more into the heavenly vault.

"Shut your eyes again," said Andre very capably as they began the descent. He took her hand as if a precedent had been established. Jane felt his fingers close reassuringly about her own. She was roused a moment later by a giggle from Muriel. She pulled her hand away and forgot to be dizzy in the heat of indignation. Muriel was outrageous. The car stopped at the landing stage. Every one crowded out.

They strolled back, now, for a look at the Court of Honor before picking up the coach at the gates. Mrs. Lester was tired and walked very slowly at Mr. Furness' side. No one said much of anything. Even Rosalie and Isabel were silent. The lights from the Japanese tea house on the Wooded Island glimmered across the pond. A few scattered gondolas were drifting softly in the moonlight. Jane watched their graceful motion.

"Have you ever been in Venice?" she asked.

"No," said Andre.

"I went there on my wedding trip," said Mrs. Lester.

"That's what I mean to do," said Andre.

Jane walked along in silence, looking very straight before her. She was a little startled by her own thoughts.

The court of honor was ablaze with light and crowded with people. The strains of a Strauss waltz, rising and falling with the light September breeze, fell faintly on their ears. John Philip Sousa was conducting his orchestra in the open-air band stand.

"I'd like to see the MacMonnies' fountain," said Andre.

"Well—there it is," said Mrs. Lester wearily. She didn't look as if she wanted to see much of anything any more. The party strolled over to the Grand Basin and leaned against the parapet of stucco. Mrs. Lester sank on a greeen bench. MacMonnie's medieval barge, propelled by Arts and Sciences, with the figure of Time at the helm, rose sharply up before them in the moonlight, amid its misty jets of water. Andre stood silent at Jane's side, looking at it intently.

"I like it," he said.

Suddenly Flora gave a little startled cry.

"Why, there's Mamma!" She pointed in the direction from which they had come. Jane turned quickly, in surprise, to look.

There, gliding from the darkness into light, beneath the little bridge across the lagoon, was a single gondola. The romantic figure of the gondolier stood stark in the moonlight. The light from a lamp on the parapet fell clearly on the faces of his passengers. Jane recognized them in an instant. They were Mr. Bert Lancaster and Flora's mother. Flora's mother, looking more beautiful than Jane had ever seen her, with a long black lace veil about her head, hiding her golden hair, framing the oval of her lovely face. A veil of mystery and romance.

It was over in a moment. The gondola turned, on a deft stroke of the oar, and the hood hid its passengers. Mrs. Lester had risen to her feet at Flora's cry. She stood there, now, at Mr. Furness's side, still staring at the unconscious back of the gondolier. Suddenly she threw a quick glance at Mr. Furness. Jane's eyes followed hers. Flora's father was looking after the gondola, too, and his great pale eyes where almost starting out of his head. His lips were trembling under his gray mustache and his face looked queer and wooden, as if all expression had been wiped out of it. Mrs. Lester looked quickly at Flora, Jane and Andre. Andre's eyes had never left the fountain. Mrs. Lester put her arm around Flora.

"It did look like your mother, didn't it, dear?" said Mrs. Lester kindly. "But, of course, it couldn't have been, as she's in Galena."

Mr. Furness stirred at that.

"We—we'd best be going home," he muttered thickly.

Mrs. Lester threw him a strangely admiring glance.

"Yes. That's best," she said simply. None of the others had seen it. They moved slowly off toward the entrance gates.

Boating Bathing Fishing

There is no finer spot in the vicinity of Washington to enjoy these three outstanding recreational pleasures than at Woodland Beach.

Here one may keep his sailboat or motorboat safely sheltered in one of the coves at WOODLAND BEACH—remember that the entire waterfront belongs to the lot owners.

Happy hours at WOODLAND BEACH, where boating and bathing are excellent

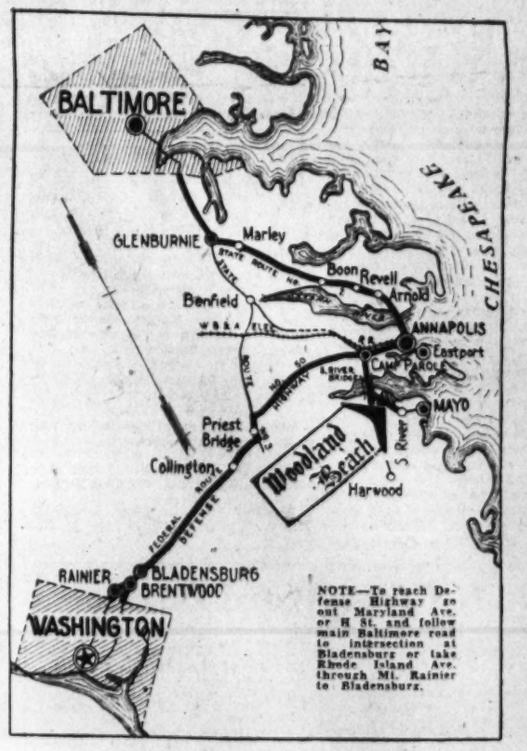
EVERY ONE desires to get away from the city to the shore during the hot months, and to own a piece of land at a desirable shore resort where one can leave everyday cares for days of rest and relaxation. THE WASHINGTON POST feels that it has fulfilled this desire, and in submitting WOODLAND BEACH to its readers believes it is doing a service to the people compelled to live in the city.

THE WASHINGTON POST was fortunate in finding so beautiful a spot as its contribution to the joys of the people of Washington and vicinity.

WOODLAND BEACH is a picturesque stretch of waterfront on two beautiful coves of the famous SOUTH RIVER, an arm of Chesapeake Bay, well known as a beauty spot and as a desirable location for a summer playground. The land is covered with stately trees and so well located that it is destined to become one of the popular summer colonies for the people of Washington and Baltimore.

HOW TO GET THERE

WOODLAND BEACH is only 32 miles from Washington and 30 miles from Baltimore. It is reached from Washington via the Defense Highway (U. S. No. 50) to Camp Parole, then south across South River Bridge and to Mayo Road and follow signs direct to property. From Baltimore follow Maryland State Route No. 2 to Annapolis, then Defense Highway (U. S. No. 50) west to Camp Parole and south across South River Bridge, following signs direct to property.



An Opportunity Not to Be Missed

THE WASHINGTON POST is not in the real estate business. We only desire to render real service to our readers. To do this we are offering this extraordinary opportunity.

WOODLAND BEACH is the result of our best efforts to give to our subscribers a building lot in a most attractive location for a Summer home, at a minimum cost, thus cementing the friendship of the readers to THE WASHINGTON POST more closely.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sermesky

The Apple of Discord

ERIS, THE GODDESS OF DISCORD, THREW A GOLDEN APPLE AMONG THE GODDESSES, SAYING IT WAS A PRESENT FOR THE FAIREST. THIS STARTED A QUARREL BETWEEN JUNO, VENUS AND MINERVA, EACH CLAIMING TO BE THE FAIREST. PARIS WAS CHOSEN TO DECIDE THE ISSUE AND AWARDED THE APPLE TO VENUS.

Crazy As A Coot

THE COOT IS AN EXTREMELY NOISY AND VIGILANT BIRD THAT RESEMBLES A DUCK SOMEWHAT, AND TAKES FLIGHT QUICKLY WHEN APPROACHED. ITS UNCERTAIN NATURE STARTED THE TERM "CRAZY AS A COOT."

How Doilies Began

MR. DOYLEY, OF 346 WELLINGTON STREET, LONDON, WAS A RESPECTED MERCHANT SEVERAL GENERATIONS AGO. HE FIRST MADE THE ATTRACTIVE LITTLE LINEN KNICK-KNACKS WHICH WE CALL DOILIES, AND THE GRATEFUL LADIES OF HIS DAY PROMPTLY NAMED THEM AFTER HIM.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HOW SAFE ARE CATS?

A REVIEW of the world's literature, made by R. A. Wharton, shows that man and cats swap diseases not infrequently. Man hands some diseases to cats, and cats, believing a fair exchange to be no robbery, hand man a choice package occasionally.

The evidence as to diphtheria is contradictory. Weighing it all, the conclusion is that cats can have genuine diphtheria due to diphtheria bacilli, and also forms of diphtheria like sore throat, due to diptheroid bacteria. In order to prevent the spread of diphtheria cats must be made to live up to the laws of quarantine about as men are required to do.

All the cat tribe have tuberculosis. They can catch it from man and they can give it to him. They are infected by both human and bovine tubercle bacilli, but not by avian, and they can give man an infection with either of the two forms.

They are subject to plague. They can be infected by man and they can infect him. The latest reports are that cats can have tularemia and they can infect man with it. The cat is less subject to rabies than the dog. But there are many cases of recorded cat rabies, and cases of human rabies due to infection by cats are on record. Rat bite fever, which now goes by the name of sodoku, may be transferred to man through a cat bite.

Amebic dysentery is another disease which may be contracted by man from the cat. Man does not often get tape worms from the cat, but it has been known to occur. Cats are quite subject to infestation with a round worm that is much like the ordinary human round worm, and that of hogs, but it is somewhat different. However, man has been found infested with cat round worm in a moderate number of cases.

There is a form of skin eruption called creeping eruption. It is due to a parasite which tunnels along under the skin. When the human animal gets a creeping eruption it is because he has exposed his bare skin to wet, sandy soil which is infected with the parasite. The soil is generally infected by dogs and cats, the former being the more frequent offender.

Cats are prone to become infected with an itch mite which they can pass on to man. There have been a few known cases of scabies or itch of human beings due to infection from cats. Favus and a few other skin diseases of the cat aret tranferable to man. Besides these there are a few diseases of lesser importance in America for which the cat serves as the host.

Taken as a whole, man's case against the cat is not a strong one.

Mrs. L. R. M. writes:

1. Is epsom salts a germicide?
2. Will a strong solution of it, taken internally, destroy disease germs in the stomach and intestines?
3. Is the moderate use of epsom salts in the manner described above, when needed for relief of constipation, harmful?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.
3. Yes. The constipation habit should be overcome by other means. Taking salts makes it worse.

WOMAN IS INDICTED IN MANN ACT TEST

M. Pearl McCall Will Try to Hold Her as Well as Man in Case.

A second attempt to have the Court of Appeals rule on the culpability of a woman, who is a "willing victim" in an alleged conspiracy to violate the white slave law, was started yesterday when M. Pearl McCall, assistant United States attorney, succeeded in having the District grand jury return an indictment against a man and woman.

An abrupt end was brought to the first attempt when both parties plead guilty, in 1929, and were given probation. In this case, it is said that a number of alleged transportations between Colonial Beach and this city occurred. The couple first came here in October, 1929, later returning to Virginia. Two other trips are alleged.

The policy of the district attorney's office has been to indict the man and hold his companion as a material witness. The change in procedure means that hereafter, providing the case is sent to the Court of Appeals, and a guilty sentence is confirmed by that court, the woman will share with her mate the equal responsibility for the alleged violation. The couple indicted are Latimer Bownsend and Bertha Telson.

Miss McCall declared she would attempt to break up a practice that has grown out of the white slave law. She said that women had seized upon the law, in some cases, to hold an indictment over the head of their companion as a bludgeon to blackmail the man. Hereafter, she said, though the present case has no such blackmail angle, the woman will be indicted with the man and both will be tried.

Lena Waters, director of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital Social Service, who has been national executive secretary of the American Hospital Social Service Council.

She will make an address and there will be an open forum for the presentation of local problems.

The President of the George Washington University and Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin will entertain at tea in honor of Mrs. A. Y. Smith, of Arizona, today from 4 until 6 o'clock in Corcoran Hall of the university. Guests have the opportunity of viewing a group of Mrs. Smith's paintings of the Southwest, shown for the first time in Washington, which will be on exhibit in Corcoran Hall for a week.

A Southerner by birth, but a Westerner by adoption, Mrs. Smith has lived in the Arizona desert country for many years and there her friendship with Dr. and Mrs. Marvin was formed during the time that Dr. Marvin was president of the University of Arizona.

The talent she brings to her interpretation of the desert scene has been cultivated through long study of the technique of painting, coupled with a thorough knowledge of the geologic and historic background, and fostered by an intense love of the desert country. Her work has been highly commended by art critics for its depiction of far-flung distances, glowing desert colors, and pastel shades of sunlight reflected through the crystal clear Arizona air upon the mesas and mountains.

The Grand Canyon is a subject to which Mrs. Smith has repeatedly turned, and the manner in which she has caught its marvel of form and color has achieved well-merited recognition.

Her work is known throughout the Southwest and has attracted the attention of visiting Easterners.

Mrs. George Mesta has closed her apartment on Massachusetts avenue and has gone to New York, where she will be at the Pierre until she sails for Europe in about a week, to be absent for three months.

MOTHER TO BE CHIEF BEAUTY-SLAYER AID

Will Be Star Witness When Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger Faces Court Today.

Nice, France, May 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. James B. Nash, of Overland, Mo., is expected to be the star witness for the defense of her former beauty queen daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, when she goes on trial tomorrow for the slaying of her husband last March 11.

Counsel for the widow of the middle-aged Philadelphia theater man claimed on the eve of the trial that Mrs. Nash would produce sensational testimony regarding her daughter's marital life.

Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger has announced she will plead self-defense, and the general expectation is that if she is not acquitted she will win a suspended jail sentence or a nominal fine. The fact that her late husband's sons by a former marriage have refused to join in the prosecution is regarded as in her favor.

Shortly after the shooting the young widow told police that she and her husband dined as usual in their flat, that she repaired to her bedroom to don pajamas and that when she rejoined her husband in the sitting room she found him drinking and in an ugly mood. She said he became infuriated at her for reading an Italian paper, accusing her of having an Italian lover.

When she protested and went to bed she said she put a revolver under her pillow, fearing further dispute. Soon, she said, her husband entered, half undressed, sat on the bed opposite her and taunted her about her alleged lover. Suddenly he seized her by the throat, she said, and, wrenching herself free, she grabbed the pistol and fired.

Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger is 26 years of age. Her late husband, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, who made a fortune in the theatrical business, was 54.

Special Gifts Are Made In Mrs. Collins' Will

The will of Mrs. Florence Richfield Collins, who died May 9, lists a number of special bequests. The Girl's Friendly Holiday House and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Epiphany, are given $1,000 each.

The Home for the Incurables and Epiphany Church Home are given $500 each, while the larger bequests go to friends and relatives. Rene W. Barr is bequeathed $2,000; Marguerite E. Outlaw $3,000; Rita Butler $300; and Mamye Woodlawn $200. The remaining estate is to be converted into cash by the Washington Loan & Trust Co., and paid over to the Church of the Epiphany to establish a memorial for Mrs. Collins and her husband. The income from the memorial is to be given as a part salary to an assistant rector of the church.

The World's most
is the Gas Refrigerator
operates for 6 cents a day

ELECTROLUX, the Gas Refrigerator, is a profitable investment. This most modern of automatic refrigerators actually saves you money every day you have it. The total daily expense for both gas and water averages only 6 cents in this city. You probably pay more than that for ice. And certainly you'd pay more with any other automatic refrigerator. People all over the country have realized that, and Electrolux is now in many thousands of homes.

Low operating cost isn't the only reason for having this refrigerator. It is the only absolutely silent one. It remain silent for life. There is no machinery to make sound, to wear, to vibrate, ever. Nothing but a tiny gas flame and a trickle of water. That is why Electrolux is so free from trouble.

The refrigerant is heremetically sealed in a rigid steel unit. It is merely ordinary ammonia, little stronger than household ammonia. The gas flame is completely protected by an automatic shut-off. The gas must burn, or the gas shuts off. Installation is simple, too. Connections for gas and water are quickly and easily made for you.

Free Lifetime Service

Because Electrolux is such a trouble-free refrigerator, you get not merely a year or two's guarantee, but FREE LIFETIME SERVICE. This means that you will never have to pay one cent for any labor for adjustments, while your refrigerator is on our lines. However, there's little need of service on the gas refrigerator.

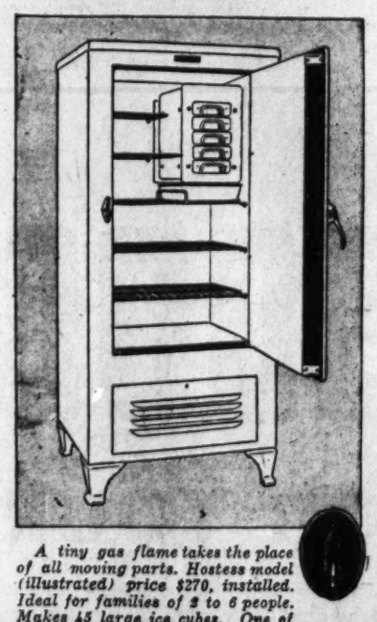
Quick Facts
1—Free lifetime service.
2—Permanently noiseless.
3—6c a day average operating cost.
4—Automatic without moving parts.
5—Works continuously, no stopping and starting.
6—Maintains constant, steady cold.
7—Freezes plenty of ice cubes.
8—Refrigerant hermetically sealed in rigid steel.
9—Dependable . . . no machinery to get out of order.
10—More than 150,000 already in use.
11—Two years to pay—no finance charges.

No Finance Charges—2 Years to Pay

This is the ideal time to buy Electrolux, not only because you will have the comfort of it during the hot summer months, but because for a limited time we are offering special purchase terms. THERE ARE NO FINANCE CHARGES AT ALL if you buy for immediate installation, and you have two years over which to spread the payments. This brings the average payment down to about $10 a month after a small initial deposit.

We suggest that you see the Gas Refrigerator at any of our showrooms as soon as possible. Prices no higher than other standard makes—from $235 to $775 installed. Eleven different household models, from 3 cubic feet to 20 cubic feet capacity.

For a short time only we are offering free a $3 hydrator with each Electrolux. A phone call to NAtional 8280, or a card addressed to us will bring you complete information by mail.



A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts. Hostess model (illustrated) price $270, installed. Ideal for families of 2 to 6 people. Makes 45 large ice cubes. One of the eleven beautiful models.

Secretary Shares In Fields' Estate

Widow and Sister Also Are Given Property Under Lawyer's Will.

Sophia Ellen Norton, secretary to Thomas M. Fields, Washington lawyer who died April 17, was left a house, garage, household furniture, an automobile and $1,200 by her former employer, according to his will, filed for probate yesterday.

Mr. Fields' widow, Annie Winthrop Fields, is given premises, 2704 Twenty-seventh street northwest, in lieu of her dower. A sister, Margaret B. Fields, is given an automobile.

The remaining estate is given to the National Savings & Trust Co. to pay the secretary $1,200, and to divide the balance between Mr. Fields' widow and sister. The house given to the secretary is located at 718 Sixteenth street southeast.

3 JUDGES APPOINTED FOR BANKING ESSAYS

Nine Papers Submitted in Contest This Year; Savings Meeting to Open.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Judges for the annual essay contest of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, open to members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, who are employes of association member banks, were announced yesterday. They are Vice President Wilmer J. Waller, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; President Claude H. Woodward, Mount Vernon Savings Bank, and Vice President Hilleary G. Hoskinson, Riggs National Bank.

Nine papers were submitted in this year's contest, which is a decrease from 20 last year, but an increase from seven in 1929. The subject for this year's contest is "The Functions of the Modern Bank and the Service It Should Render."

The writers of the best, second and third best essays will be guests of the association at its annual convention to be held this year at Hot Springs, Va., June 18-21. The best essay will be published in a book containing the convention proceedings.

Savings Bankers to Meet.

Representatives of mutual savings banks in all parts of the country will meet today in the Hotel Mayflower for their eleventh annual conference which will continue through Friday. These institutions have $10,500,000,000 of assets and, in keeping, the capital of about 30,000,000 people. The problem of investing this great amount with the maximum of security will receive close attention at the hands of the savings bankers. Special trains left Boston and New York last night for the conference. The attendance is expected to total more than 500 bankers and their families.

At the first session beginning at 2:30 p. m. today, Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will address the delegates on "General Business and the Mutual Savings Bank." He is to be followed by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking on "Labor and the Savings Bank."

Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York City, will then discuss "Unemployment and the Savings Banks." Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers Association and a well-known savings banker of South Bend, Ind., is to complete the day's program with an address on "Bankers' Campaign to Promote Thrift."

Savings Banks Strong.

This year's conference of the mutual savings institutions finds them occupying a stronger position than at any time in their more than a century of operation. They have enjoyed a large increase of deposits in the last sixteen months and all signs point to a continued rise of savings.

Thomas F. Wallace, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, said that the banks were prepared to do their share in restoring the economic balance.

"The representatives of our mutual savings banks are going to Washington with a full sense of their responsibility to the Nation," said Mr. Wallace. "As we now have 12,000,000 depositors and $10,500,000,000 of assets, it is apparent that the welfare of the mutual institutions is closely bound up with the welfare of the Nation. This great total of savings is the reserve fund of about 30,000,000 people, if we think of each account as representing a typical family of three.

Banks Well Fortified.

"Happily our mutual institutions were well fortified to meet this period of depression. Having more than $1,000,000,000 of assets in excess of deposits, and our investments being restricted to conservative fields, the banks were in a secure position to meet any demand. That they have done so without loss to any depositor is the measure of their strength.

"We hear a great deal about restoring prosperity. Almost everybody seems to have a short cut. But I do not believe that a short cut can be found. It is necessary to restore and maintain an economic balance between all the factors concerned. We of the savings banks, who regard the investment situation with careful scrutiny, are convinced that the Government should let business alone. If let alone, business will find a way out. As large investors in railroad and public utility bonds, we believe that these organizations should not be hampered by unfair laws or competition. And it is certain that we should not adopt or extend any plans for the subsidy of labor or capital. They can only lead us into deeper trouble, instead of showing us the way out. I have confidence in the future of the American people."

SOCIETY HEAD

Social Hygienists Meet Here Friday

President of Association Will Address Session in Barker Hall.

Dr. Edward L. Keyes, president of the American Social Hygiene Association of New York City, will speak on "The Medical Aspects of Social Hygiene" at the anual meeting of the Social Hygiene Society of Washington Friday in Barker Hall of the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Dr. Keyes is vice president of the International Urologic Society and professor of Urology at Cornell University Medical School, and is a noted surgeon, lecturer and author. Following his talk, an informal discussion will be held, and Dr. H. A. Fowler and Dr. Kate Karpelea will discuss his subject from the medical aspect, while Walter Ufford will discuss it from the social angle.

Dr. Robert Scott Lamb, president of the society, will preside at the meeting, which will be followed by a luncheon. It was announced that Mrs. F. B. Croxton, executive secretary of the association for more than two years, will retire July 1.

Capital Is Increased By Harvester Export

Chicago, May 19 (A.P.).—International Harvester Co. officials, commenting today on an increase from $2,000,000 to $15,000,000 in the authorized capitalization of its export corporation, a Delaware corporation, issued the following statement:

"Authority to increase the capitalization of International Harvester Export Corporation is being obtained for the purpose of reshaping its capital structure. No new investment is involved at this time, but only a conversion of a larger portion of existing investment into capital shares as distinguished from loans."

Montreal Banks Slash Margins to Brokers

Montreal, May 19 (A.P.).—Leading banks and trust companies have agreed to reduce their marginal requirements on call loans to stock exchange houses, W. J. Luther, vice chairman of the Montreal Stock Exchange, announced today.

He said the step reducing margins to 15 per cent, with a minimum of $5 on low-priced stocks, was taken by the banks and trust companies "in order to show their confidence in the present situation." Mr. Luther said "other leaders will probably take like action."

Washington Youth Honored at School

Arthur Bennett Has Varied Offices at Colorado Institution.

Arthur Beatty Bennett, son of Mrs. M. B. Bennett, of 2633 Adams Mill road northwest, has been honored with an unusual number of responsible offices at the Colorado School of Mines in Golden, Colo., where he is studying to become a petroleum engineer.

The local boy, a graduate of McKinley Tech High School, class of 1928, and winner of a scholarship to the Colorado school, is president of the student council, the highest honor which the student body can confer. He also is vice president of the junior class.

Bennett is a member of Beta Theta Pi, member of Theta Tau, has been elected to Blue Key, an honorary society, and is president of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity. He also is playing baseball at the school and is captain of Company A in the R. O. T. C. and a member of the "M" Club.

Reserve Bank Drops Rate on Acceptances

New York, May 19 (A.P.).—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York today reduced its buying rate on acceptances by one-eighth of 1 per cent, to 1 per cent, for bills maturing in 16 to 90 days.

The reduction is the fifth downward revision in less than four weeks. As quotations on acceptances are in percentage yields, the reduction is equivalent to an increase in price. The lower yields are another step in the Federal Reserve policy to force money rates downward as an aid to business. Acceptances constitute an important form of commercial credit.

World's Largest Bank Cuts Savings Interest

New York, May 19 (A.P.).—The world's largest bank, Chase National of New York, announced today that, effective June 1, it would reduce the interest paid on compound interest, or savings accounts, to 2 per cent annually from the present rate of 3 per cent, compounded monthly.

This step followed yesterday's announcement that New York Clearing House banks were reducing rates allowed on commercial and bank deposits by one-half of 1 per cent to the lowest levels on record, and was regarded as part of the campaign to deflect surplus funds from banks which already find it difficult to employ money at current low interest rates.

Burns Cost Life Of Peter Schroen

Burial Services to Be Held Tomorrow for Victim of Gas Blast.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Peter Schroen, 62, who succumbed yesterday in Emergency Hospital, Annapolis, to burns received early Monday when a gas plant in his summer cottage at Herald Harbor on Severn River, Maryland, exploded.

Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery following rites at 2:30 p. m., in the chapel of the Chambers funeral home.

Mr. Schroen, who was an employe of the Government Printing Office, is survived by his widow, seven sisters and three brothers. There were no children. Mrs. Schroen, who had passed the week-end at the cottage and returned to their home at 130 First street northwest only a few hours before the tragedy, was at her husband's bedside when he died.

Physician of Baltimore Paid Honor in Germany

Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany, May 19 (A.P.).—Dr. William Henry Welch, of Baltimore, today received the Harren Plaque, the highest honor awarded by the British Royal Institute of Public Health.

The institute meets on the continent every other year and Frankfurt University was chosen this year in honor of the late Paul Ehrlich, the eminent bacteriologist, who worked here. It was the first session in Germany in nineteen years.

Limited Divorce Won By 17-Year-Old Wife

A limited divorce was awarded to Mrs. Margaret Gates Currier, of N street near Thirty-first street northwest, yesterday by Justice James Proctor. Mrs. Currier, 17 years old, complained that her husband John Sylvester Currier, deserted her August 20, 1929, after they had quarreled.

No permanent alimony was awarded by the court, but the costs were assessed against the husband. The Curriers were married January 19, 1929.

ADVANCED REFRIGERATION

To a Mother

who wonders why "Jane just won't eat her vegetables"

Of course, if all Jane's vegetables were just-out-of-the-garden fresh she would eat them with far greater relish—for nature gives all fresh growing things that fine, full-flavored savor that we grown-ups seek to supply with pepper and salt and spices that are forbidden to little girls.

And nowadays there is only one way to make sure of strictly fresh vegetables in your house twelve months in the year . . .

Put them in the Frigidaire Hydrator—for in this moist-cold compartment the most wilted fruits and vegetables and greens are brought back to crisp, flavorful freshness in the most amazing manner!

And this miracle is just what you would expect to find in Frigidaire which, for the past fifteen years, has been responsible for improvements that have made modern electric refrigeration so healthful, convenient and economical.

Why don't you stop in to see the Frigidaire shown in our photograph? It has the Hydrator, of course, and many other features not to be found in any other refrigerator...

Nothing less than pure white porcelain could meet the high standards of Frigidaire

Even long before the time when Saladin presented forty pieces of exquisite porcelain to the sultan of Damascus, the permanence and lustrous beauty of porcelain were known to master craftsmen.

It is only natural, therefore, that in the development of Frigidaire Advanced Refrigeration, a gleaming finish of Porcelain-on-steel should be one of the outstanding marks of superiority.

We invite you to see this latest Frigidaire—to go over it point by point—from its gracefully turned legs to its useful, easy-to-look-at top. You will discover that this outstanding refrigerator offers beauty, convenience and efficiency that place it in a classification all its own.

Ice cubes appear, almost as if by magic, when you set the convenient Cold Control. The acid-resisting porcelain interior is so effectively treated that even lemon juice will not stain it. And ice cubes are released by the Quickube Ice Tray with scarcely any effort at all—just a slight pressure of your finger.

Come in, see a demonstration, and let us tell you how Frigidaire may be bought on terms to suit the purchaser.

DULL MARKET CURBS STOCK PRICES FALL

New Low Levels Recorded, but Rallies Temper Losses; 90 Issues Unchanged.

New York, May 19 (A.P.).—The brakes were applied to the stock market's decline today. Although many prominent issues touched new lows during the irregular price movement, strenuous selling pressure was absent and enough short covering and investment support filtered in to give the list a steadier tone. The composite embracing 90 issues closed unchanged, despite the break by the utility group to a new 1931 minimum.

The market was dull on the numerous rallies, but the upward movement filled as much time as the declines. Rails showed to much better advantage, notwithstanding the poor April earnings statement by Union Pacific. The weakest sections in the decline of the last hour were the amusements and merchandising issues, but there was a flurry of covering at the close. Sales totaled 2,800,000 shares, the largest volume since May 1.

United States Steel common was none too sure of itself. Opening an eighth lower, it crossed par in a morning rally, but eventually broke to 97, a new low. The final quotation was 98⅝, off ⅜.

Other Leaders in Losses.

Other leaders registering new minimums at one time or another included Eastman Kodak, American Telephone, Atchison, Union Pacific, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Corn Products, Liggett & Myers "B" and Pennsylvania Railroad. Telephone rallied ⅝ net. New York Central received good support and gained 1⅛. Southern Pacific was stronger and, Atchison lost a small fraction net.

Warner Brothers, Fox, Paramount, Corn Products, Woolworth, Columbia Gas and American Tobacco closed 1 to 3 points lower. Case was weak. Texas Corporation profited by covering when the directors cut the quarterly dividend from 75 to 50 cents instead of omitting the payment entirely, as had been rumored. American Can gained a couple of points and there were fractional advances in General Electric, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Anaconda, Consolidated Gas, North American and National Biscuit.

Further impetus to the advance was given by the fifth cut in a month in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's bill-buying rate, which action was promptly followed by the commercial acceptance dealers.

Savings Interest Cut.

Some New York City banks have reduced interest rates on savings accounts and others are expected to do likewise now that the interest allowance on commercial deposits has been to record low levels. The easy-money drive is being pressed hard, although its chief effect so far has been the rise in prime investment bonds, notably obligations of the Federal Government. There was no change in demand loan rates either on or off the stock exchange.

Loadings of revenue freight in the week ended May 9 dropped 27,842 cars, a rather large decline, whereas only a small change would have been normal. Preliminary estimates of steel ingot production mentioned a shrinkage of 1 to 2 points to around 45 per cent of capacity, whereas a week ago there had been virtually no change.

Wheat was firm, closing ⅝ to 1 cent higher. Export demand improved and moisture in the American Northwest was said to have been insufficient. Corn gained ¼ to 1⅛, reflecting frost reports from parts of Iowa and firm cables. The decline in cotton was softened, although the market was still heavy. Net losses ranged from 7 to 13 points.

Sterling exchange was strong, which suggested the withdrawal of funds from New York after liquidation of foreign stock holdings as well as the unattractiveness of the American short-term money market. Cables rose to a new 1931 high. Other rate changes were narrow. Shanghai was a little heavy.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 19 (A.P.).—Frosts predicted for tonight extending from Canada down into northwest Kansas put backbone into grain prices today. There were also estimates that Australia's 1931 wheat acreage would show 30 per cent reduction compared with last year. Foreign crop reports indicated backward conditions in many countries, especially Russia, where spring seeding was admitted to be a fortnight to three weeks behind schedule. Wheat closed unsettled, ¼ to ½ cent higher, corn ¼ to 1⅛ up, oats ⅛ to ½ advanced, and provisions unchanged to 30 cents down.

From the outset, wheat proved sensitive to bullish factors, the market having undergone almost 6 cents a bushel setback since last Wednesday, and talk being current that rallies were probable. Traders paid particular attention to news that only 7 points in the Canadian prairie provinces had received overnight as much as a quarter-inch of moisture, and that 25 a quarter-inch of more would be needed further rains had been too light to furnish more than temporary relief from drought. Adding detailed impetus to price upturns was forecasts of heavy frosts in Canada, the Dakotas and Nebraska, with likelihood that western Kansas would receive at least scattered frosts, and that crop damage would result.

Liverpool dispatches announced that wheat demand abroad was improving and that stocks on hand in the six chief European ports had been reduced almost half compared with a month ago. Takings of North American wheat for transatlantic shipment were said to be larger than of late, and some United States wheat was reported as having been disposed of to Great Britain and also at Antwerp.

Wheat stocks totaled but 125,000 bushels against 1,628,000 a month back. Clearances of 569,000 bushels of domestic wheat from Atlantic and Gulf ports today had a further bullish effect.

Threatened frost over part of the corn belt, likely to delay planting gave independent strength to corn. Abrupt falling-off in the volume of corn receipts was an additional stimulus to buyers. Oats were affected largely by the action of corn and wheat.

All deliveries of lard sold at a new low price record for the season. The provision market as a whole was bearishly affected by official reports indicating little prospect that either foreign or domestic demand would improve during the next five months.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July, 59, 60⅜@60¾; September, 59½, 61@61⅛; December, 63¼, 64¾. Corn—July, 56⅜@56½, 58⅛; September, 55½, 56⅞@56⅝; December, 48½, 49¾.

PRICES ARE HIGHER IN GILT-EDGE BONDS

Market Is Spotty, Resulting in Losses for Issues; Federal Loans Strong.

New York, May 19 (A.P.).—A sharp increase in volume, rising prices in gilt-edged bonds, some of which reached new high prices for 1931 and for all time, and declines in a large number of speculative obligations, some of which made new low records, were the outstanding features of the bond market today.

The upward movement was most apparent in United States Treasury and Liberty loans, in which the high levels of the day were divided about evenly between new peak prices for all time and new high records for 1931.

Strength was not confined to obligations of the Federal Government, however. American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960, Atchison general 4s, Detroit Edison series D 4½s, Philadelphia Electric 4s of 1971 and Public Service Electric & Gas 4½s of 1967, among other high-grade issues, closed higher. A few of such bonds sold at new 1931 high levels.

Selling pressure reappeared among various foreign obligations. Loans of Chile, Brazil, Germany, Australia, Peru, Poland and Haiti dropped sharply, and some of them reached new low prices for this year and for all time. The recession extended to domestic corporate issues of speculative rating, although many of the losses among them were fractional.

Warner Bros. Pictures 6s slumped to a new low at 25, but recovered somewhat to close with a net loss of 2¼ points at 29¾. Discussions between the company and its bankers, Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co., preliminary to further financing, are reported to be under way.

A syndicate headed by Alfred & Co. is offering $18,000,000 of first refunding mortgage 4 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, due in 1981, of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co. of Baltimore at 95½ and interest.

Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., and a syndicate are offering a new issue of $16,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds, series D, of the Puget Sound Power & Light Co. at 94½ and interest.

VOIGT WINS, GAINS 4TH ROUND IN BRITISH AMATEUR

Former Capital Golf Star Triumphs by 2 and 1 With Rally After Lead Is Lost

Defeats Abercrombie and Is Among 32 to Survive Play.

Game Shaky After a Good Start; To Play 2 Matches Today.

By FRANK H. KING.

WESTWARD HO!, Devon, England, May 19 (A.P.).—George Voigt today advanced to the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship as the sole survivor of the delegation of fifteen American golfers that set out across the rolling Devonshire hills yesterday morning.

The defeat of the other Americans was expected but the shaky manner in which Voigt today eliminated J. R. Abercrombie, middle-aged Liverpool business man, 2 and 1, caused his championship stock to drop several points.

With the field reduced to 32, Voigt faces two matches tomorrow, the first against Bernard Darwin, the golf-writer, and the second, if he wins, probably against young Syd Roper, who put up a great fight against Bobby Jones at St. Andrews last year.

Tolley and Wethered Still Threaten.

If Voigt dispatches both he will be in the quarter-finals among the last eight tomorrow night. With him likely will be Cyril Tolley, who won the only match he has been forced to play to get to the fourth round, Roger Wethered, who eliminated T. A. Torrance, four and two, J. A. Stout and others who have made their mark in previous tournaments. There is still room for a few youths to break through, but the loopholes are getting smaller.

Voigt may not get that far if he takes risks like he did today. It was only two great putts on the sixteenth and seventeenth greens that brought him victory.

The New Yorker, formerly of Washington, D. C., got under way slowly and lacked his customary deadly accuracy with the long irons. He also was weak on the greens until the last two. At the eleventh hole Voigt sent his tee shot into the bullrushes and after several futile attempts to get out conceded the hole. It was a unique situation for championship golf, the Englishman winning a hole with only his drive. At the ninth Voigt had knocked his opponent's ball into the hole to give him that one on a platter.

Match Is Squared On Eleventh.

Voigt's misfortune at the eleventh evened the match, but Abercrombie flubbed his next tee shot into the rushes and gave that hole to George.

Given a one-hole lead Voigt promptly three-putted it away on the thirteenth but regained his advantage on the short fourteenth, parred the next two and then rammed home a 25-footer on the seventeenth to win. The cards:

Out—
Voigt	4	6	5	5	2	5	4	3	5—39
Abercrombie	5	5	5	6	3	4	5	4	4—41
In—
Voigt	4	x	4	5	3	4
Abercrombie	3	x	8	4	4	4

Tolley, making his first appearance in the tournament in the afternoon round, seemed a little rusty pitching and putting but played his usual slashing game up to the green, slamming the ball a mile from the tee. Wethered played fine golf to defeat Torrance. The latter was two up with five to play when Roger pulled himself together to win four straight and the match.

Play today was under drab skies and with a chilly wind sweeping Westward Ho!.

Yanks Deal Cleveland Eleventh Straight Defeat

Cleveland, May 19 (A.P.).—The Indians lost their eleventh straight game today and their first to the New York Yankees this season by an 8-to-6 count.

Cleveland drove Charley Ruffing from the mound in the second inning, touching him for seven hits, and got five more off Henry Johnson, but they could not overcome the eight runs the Yanks collected off Clint Brown in the first four innings. Pinky Shoffney and Fay Thomas pitched good relief ball.

Card Rally in Eighth Defeats Robins, 6 to 2

Brooklyn, May 19 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals clung to their hold on first place in the National League today by coming from behind in the eighth inning to win the series opener from the Robins, 6 to 2. The Cards scored five runs in the eighth, driving Babe Phelps and Jack Quinn from the mound.

Quinn took the mound with Brooklyn leading, 2 to 1, and with runners on first and third. After Pinch-Hitter Collins had been retired, Watkins hit a short double to bring in the tying runs.

Yearly Denunciation of Golf Is Written by Mr. Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, May 19.—It is time for my annual denunciation of golf, the mocker, which causes sunburn, loss of temper and sleep, dyspepsia and shin-splint and propagates the false theory that the open air is good for the people, a ridiculous idea, else why do people build houses and pay rent? I should think the hotel and apartment house owners would start a campaign of public education to counteract this theory, lest, if the open air is so good for people, the whole Nation some day would take to sleeping in parks.

Nobody gets sunstroke or rained on indoors and if there are some cases of indoor frost bite in certain apartment houses along toward spring when the coal is running low, the thing to do is to phone the health department or jump the lease.

Just now young Mr. Jones, of Atlanta, is appearing in the pictures with sound, illustrating his golf shots, and a lot of unfortunates will rush away from the theaters to lie awake all night tormenting themselves with beautiful fancies of mashie shots dead to the pin, like prisoners frequenting night clubs on the wings of desire, which strikes me as a pretty fancy way of putting it, if I may say so, who perhaps shouldn't. But in the morning as the prisoner trudges back to the rock pile the unfortunate victim of the delucion of golf will be scoring himself a heartrending nine on the first hole, not counting whiffles, and his heart will darken again with the realization that he is just a duffer for life, with no time off for patience or good intentions.

Many times I have watched Mr. Jones in the flesh, which is more and more abundant from year to year, incidentally, and although I have quickly retired to quiet hidden places to duplicate his mannerism exactly, the results have not been the same, proving that there is some trick to it. To me, Mr. Jones and the rest of the pros are professional cousins of the stage magician who comes down the aisle and extracts a pool ball from your hat, a $10 bill from your hair and a quart of Scotch from your hip, all of which you are positive were not there when you came in, and makes a sucker of you and therefore makes you sore.

I can't get a quart into my hip pocket, much less take one out and no more can I hoist those pleasant arching shots to the green as Mr. Jones does and there is no more reason why a fellow should persist in trying one impossibility than another. Yet, golf is a great popular worry six months or more every year in this country as people struggle to emulate Jones who might as reasonably try to emulate Michelangelo or Joe Cook. This is the pernicious quality of golf that lures the hopeless on, whereas the same people watching Babe Ruth hit a home run or an author write a book would say to themselves quite frankly: "Well,

Morrow's 76 Leads Local Golf Field

Scores High in Indian Spring Play From Back Tees.

Qualifying to Resume Today; Mackenzie, Stevinson Out.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE first day of qualification in the invitation tournament of the Indian Spring Club yesterday held its own with all previously held tournaments this season in the array of high scores. Weather conditions were ideal but the course played from the back tees for the full length of 6,577 yards, was a backbreaker with the new ball and very few of the players were able to reach the long par 4 holes in the regulation two strokes.

Charles R. Morrow, son of former Gov. E. P. Morrow, of Kentucky, led the field with a card of 38-38—76, and only four other contestants were able to break 80. Morrow's long game was all that could be asked but he wasted three strokes on the first nine, three-putting the first, second and ninth greens. He drove the latter green from the tee, 225 yards. On his inward journey he missed 3-foot putts on the eleventh and thirteenth greens, but compensated for these errors by running down a 10-footer for a birdie 4 on the sixteenth and a 15-footer for a birdie 2 on the seventeenth. His card.

Out..	5	5	4	4	4	3	5	4	4—38
In....	4	5	5	5	3	5	4	2	5—38—76

Three Tie With 76 Earlier in Day.

Until Morrow turned in his 76 the leaders were John J. Tierney, jr., Congressional; M. F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam, and John Britton, Chevy Chase, each with 78s. M. Parker Nolan, Congressional, had a fine opportunity to head the list for his outward round of 37 was the best of the day. Unfortunately, however, he came home in 44, "for no reason in the world," as he explained, "except that I blew up." The score of John C. Holzberg, Columbia, which totaled 81, was marred by a 7 on the par 3 fourteenth hole.

Many golfers who were expected to land in the first sixteen either picked up or withdrew. Among them were Miller B. Stevinson and Albert R. Mackenzie, both of Columbia, whose cards of 84 and 86, respectively, were not turned in. Frank K. Roesch, of the Washington Club, and District amateur champion, scored an 80, as did Dr. L. S. O'Tell, Indian Spring, but both announced that they were unable to play through the tournament. Everett Eynon, the Columbia Club champion, had an 84, but did not turn in his card.

Aggregate of 442 Enter Tourney.

With additional post entries yesterday, the entry list aggregated 442 names, and as the field was divided into two days of qualification, more than 200 players made the round of the course yesterday, but there were only 93 cards under 100 in the rack when all the contestants had reported.

There were ten cards of 81 and under, with the probability that 81s will play off this afternoon for the last places in the first sixteen, and included in this list are Thomas P. Bones and B. H. Burrows, medalist and runner-up in the recent Chevy Chase event.

There were 45 players with 91 and under and it is doubtful if anything over this figure will qualify for the fifth and last sixteen, if it does not rain today, especially as a strong field will compete today, including Tom Sasscer, former Maryland State champion; his brother, L. D. Sasscer, champion of the Indian Spring Club; Harry G. Pitt, former Middle Atlantic champion; Walter R. McCallum, medalist in the Washington Club tournament; J. Munro Hunter, jr., medalist at Woodmont; James G. Drain, winner of the Washington Club event; Earl McAleer, former national public links medalist, and many others.

Johnson Sees Twin Bills as Hurdle for A's As Champions Win 11th Straight in West

Nats, Halted by Rain, Open Today With White Sox.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHICAGO, May 19.—The third double-header of this Western trip, one in every city but St. Louis, was added to the Nationals list today when heavy rains last night and this morning made play between the Washington and Chicago clubs out of the question. The weather man predicts better things for the morrow though, and Manager Walter Johnson plans to carry oger his today's plans, with "Sad Sam" Jones drawing the mound assignment and with Buddy Myer and Joe Kuhel back at their old stands in the infield.

So far, double-headers, the bane of a manager's existence because of the toll they exact from his pitchers, are not worrying Johnson, for comparatively few have been stacked up against his club. But it is different in the case of the world champion Athletics and the Nat leader is counting upon the wholesale twin bill program laid out for the Mackmen to prove mighty helpful to the Nats.

Double Bills Are Added Hurdle.

Johnson looks upon the weather man as an added starter in the field of those who are trying to knock the American League crown from the White Elephant's heads. Suffering nine postponements in the first month's schedule, the Macks already haxe sixteen double-headers looming menacingly ahead of them and it is going to be a tough task for their unbalanced pitching staff to weather the tortuous trail.

All of these twin bills are not from postponements, as three result from the usual holiday programs and four others are regularly scheduled on Mondays to make up for the Sabbaths lost because of the Sunday baseball ban in the City of Brotherly Love. And, with more postponements assured and Connie Mack's small pitching staff, these double-headers loom as mighty high hurdles for the Mackmen to clear.

Already the Philadelphia schedule shows that at least twice the A's will find themselves playing four games in two days while once they must play six in three days, with several postponed games not yet provided for.

Mack's Rookie Pitchers Fail to Make Good.

Connie Mack thinks he has six starting pitchers, but it is interesting to note that of this half dozen, two—Roy Mahaffey and young Hank McDonald—have been unable to finish any of the games they have started this season, while a third, Ed Rommel, has only started twice. Thus it can be seen that these bargain day bills are sure to cramp the style of the mound staff that not only is built Earnshaw Pitches 2-Hit Game, Blanking Tigers, 5-0.

DETROIT, Mich., May 19 (A.P.). George Earnshaw was invincible today and held the Detroit Tigers to two hits as the Philadelphia Athletics won the series opener here 5-0. It was the eleventh consecutive victory for the A's.

Al Simmons, league leading hitter, enjoyed a good day at bat, getting a single, double and triple. It was the sevententh consecutive game in which he has hit safely. Jimmy Foxx batted in three of the Athletics runs.

Neither pitcher issued a pass.

Phils Defeat Pirates, Aided by Double Play

Philadelphia, May 19 (A.P.).—The Phillies won the first game of the series with the Pirates today, 3-2, by beating Larry French, the ace of the Pirates.

After the visitors scored one run in the first on successive hits by the Waners and Grantham, the Phils went ahead in the home half on doubles by Bartwell and Arlett and a single by Klein. They added another tally in the fourth when Hurst and Whitney singled and Friberg filed to Lloyd Waner.

The Pirates made a great bid for victory in the ninth when they loaded the bases with none out and drew J. Elliott from the mound. Ace Elliott came to the rescue and Brame hit into a double play, allowing Grantham to score, but Phillips rolled out to Bartell.

HilltopHurler Master of Japanese

Hosei U. Hitless After First Inning; Clever on Defense.

By JACK ESPEY.

CLEVER fellows, these Japanese ball players from Hosei University, but not so clever with the bat and especially deficient with a good right-hander like Hal Poole, of Georgetown facing them. The stocky Hilltop hurler held his Oriental rivals to three hits as Georgetown rung up its tenth victory in 16 starts yesterday before 1,800 spectators on the Reservoir road diamond. The score was 5 to 2.

After the first inning when they manufactured both of their runs, not one of the Hoselans connected safely with Poole's curves. Three of them received walks with one subsequently stealing his way to third base, but the result never was in doubt after Georgetown collected its last run in the fifth inning. By that time five of the six strikeouts accredited to Poole had been jotted down in the score books and the visitors were becoming more helpless at bat every minute.

Poole's Seventh Win In 11 Games.

It was Poole's seventh triumph in 11 games this season, his last as Georgetown's leading flinger for three years. Hal's teammates worked flawlessly in the field with Johnny Evers, jr., playing the leading role with five catches in right.

Hosei presented as clever a defense as any collegiate team has shown here this year. Sure stops of hard hit drives, fast throws and nimble footwork. Kubo, at second base; Karita at shortstop, and Fujii in right field contributed shining bits of fielding, the last named atoning in part for a three-base error in the first with a brilliant catch of Evers' looper in the eighth.

A three-base smash by Kubo featured the first inning attack of the invaders, the ball sailing into right field, as did those of Takeda and Fujii, and most of the other balls hit out of the Hilltop inner works.

Georgetown Rallies In First Inning.

Georgetown rallied in its half of the first to score four runs on singles by Bozek and Mooney, a double by Morris, a fly-out by Scalzi and a walk to Wholey. Mooney's hit was a mile-a-minute clout which Fujii allowed to go through his legs to send Mooney and two mates across the plate. In the fifth the Hoyas counted their final tally on King's double, Poole's long fly and Bozek's second single.

Among those present were three attaches of the Japanese Embassy—Capt. S. Shimomnra, Commander Z. Hoshina and Lieut. A

Mangan Steps Near Title In Singles

Former D. C. Champion in Semifinals by Beating Judd.

Miss Tabler Scores in Feature; Card Today Is Vital.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

SEVERAL weary men and women left the Reservoir courts, at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets, late yesterday afternoon, quarter and semifinalists in the third annual City of Washington tennis championship, and deserved whatever acclaim came their way, for, generally speaking, May 19 was a rough day for the favorites, all of whom managed to survive, however, some by the proverbial skin of the old bi-cuspids.

Excepting Mrs. Charles P. Stone, the hard-hitting young matron who is making not only a stir among the bench champions but a name for herself as a real tennis player, the favorites in the women's tournament coursed a rocky road to gain the semifinal round.

Chief in point of interest in the women's matches was the encounter between Clara Tabler and Mrs. Lee Butler, a battle which went to the former, by the score of 6—4, 4—6, 6—2. It was a macth which Miss Tabler ended with a blare of service aces, slapped into the courts of Mrs. Butler at a speed which many of the men in the tournament would have been proud of.

Martinez and Walker Extended to Win.

Sara Moore gave Mrs. Martinez the sternest sort of competition before bowing by the score 6—4, 6—3, while Mrs. Newbold forced Frances Walker, runner-up in the tournament last year, all the way before yielding ta 7—5, 6—3. Mrs. Stone continued her sweep through the tournament by trouncing Marian Butler, 6—0, 6—2.

The only near-upset yesterday cropped up in the men's doubles as Gene Hermann and Hugh Trigg all but disposed of the team of Dooley Mitchell and Bill Buchanan. Play was disbanded because of darkness at 2—2 in the third set, after Hermann and Trigg had evened matters by taking the second set. The Mitchell-Buchanan team, as of old, was wild in the extreme, neither player being able to summon much in the line of steadiness. The match will be replayed today at 5 o'clock.

Tom Mangan and Bud Markey turned in clean-cut singles victories. Mangan entering the semifinal round as a result of his more than decisive 6—0, 6—2 win over Dean Judd. Judd was outstroked from the start by the former D. C. champion.

Mitchell Is Pressed By Sendel at Start.

Markey did away with Alan Staubly to the tune of 6—3, 6—2, Staubly being no match for steadiness with the erstwhile Notre Dame captain. Maurice O'Neill, too, had little trouble in advancing to the round of eight, using as a stepping stone, Jack Purinton, who succumbed, 6—3, 6—1.

Dooly Mitchell ran into a little difficulty in the second set of his match with Frederico Sendel, last year a member of the Mexican Davis Cup Team, but got out at 6—4, after romping through a 6—1 first set. Bob Elliott, making use of his outlandish forehand drive again to good effect, batted out a 6—4, 7—5 decision over Joe Rutley to become a member of the coveted round of eight.

Yesterday's results and today's pairings:

MEN'S SINGLES.

Fourth round—Markey defeated Staubly, 6—3, 6—2.

—Churchill Downs Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 19.—The Bashford Manor Stakes for 2-year-old colts and geldings, will have its thirtieth running tomorrow afternoon. The feature event on the brilliant program carries an added value of $5,000 which will be contested over the five-furlong distance.

With a field of twenty leading juveniles engaged to start, TELLICO from the Van Meter and Carruther's stable, has shown remarkable speed in his two victories at this track and figures to annex the fixture. The Chilowee colt, in his recent trjumph, stepped this distance in 1:00 1-5, and despite an added impost of seven pounds, is given the call. PROTEUS is conceding three pounds to the choice and, under top imsot of 125 pounds may falter. However, the Pelleteri colt should last to gain the place. LIBERTY LIMITED, fleet Sir Galahad III colt, graduated in his last start, but is in fit condition and may surprise.

FIRST RACE—Another limit field of twenty maiden 2-year-olds will face the barrier in the five-furlong dash of the opening number. GREENLEAF has trained briskly and appears best of this band of nonwinners. Chief opposition should come from SHAKER LADY. This Fair View Farm miss was beaten a nose last start and should go as well here. BOB'S LUCK is favored for the show award. K. RUSSELL and PRINCE TOMMY may get into the picture on recent performances.

SECOND RACE—In the six-furlong sprint of the third event, which brings out a field of fifteen 3-year-old fillies, CAN FLI, aptly named, has turned in some scintillating trials and should score against this company. REGAL LADY has been scratched awaiting a spot and may upset the calculations. ALL GIRLS, from the Mrs. E. L. Swikard string, tired in her recent effort and figures to show improvement.

THIRD RACE—A select field of seven 3-year-olds and upward will match strides over the mile course of the third event, which carries the claiming clause. SUITOR, owned by B. J. Lehmann, is favored by the conditions, and on her recent form figures best. TYPHOON is unreliable, but should finish the opposition. DARK ENTRY was beaten by the top one in their last start. The Headly color bearer, however, rates the show call.

FIFTH RACE—Half a dozen routers will be dispatched over the mile and a sixteenth ground in the fifth heat, which is fashioned for 3-year-olds exclusively. ELYSIUM, from the C. V. Whitney establishment, is highly regarded, and with several fast trials to his credit should lead this field to the wire. HALF DAY is reaching his best form and the C. Howard colt should force the pace. MATADI is fancied for the short end of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—Seventeen platers will parade to the post in the mile and a sixteenth of the sixth event, with TELA as the choice. This 4-year-old was off to a poor start last out and finished strongly to gain the place. With better handling he should annex the purse. SCARLET BRIGADE faltered in the muddy going in his previous effort, but over the fast track figures to gain the place. SPUD is favored for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—The final event brings together another band of seventeen platers, to contest the issue over the mile and a sixteenth distance. GOTOIT, a consistent steed in the M. Goldblatt string, appears best of the field he meets here, and is selected to gain the honors. LEMNOS has turned in some fast work and may figure prominently. BEN BLAIR, from the J. O. Whitlow barn, should hold the others safe.

Four Jockeys Granted Licenses at Belmont

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., May 19 (A.P.).—At a meeting of the stewards of the Jockey Club held today the following jockeys' and trainers' licenses, whose applications have previously been laid on the table were granted: Jockeys Eddie Ambrose, L. Morris, H. Richards, W. Smith. Trainers: T. D. Grimes.

TURNESA'S 69 TOPS LEEDS TOURNEY

Sets Mark in $5,000 British Event; Other Americans Trail.

LEEDS, ENG., May 19 (A.P.).—Joe Turnesa turned in a record breaking 69 for the Sand Moor course today to lead the qualifying field of 170 in the $5,000 Leeds Professional Tournament, but his coplayers from America did not fare so well.

Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot player from New York, seemed safe enough with a 74, but Horton Smith and Tony Manero, with 76s, will have to do much better in the last 18 holes of qualifying play tomorrow if they are to join the select 32. Will Hunter, the fifth American, with an 84, practically three-putted himself right out of the tournament.

Hunter Declares He Will Return.

After the fourth green of the three putts, Hunter remarked that he was "catching the next boat right back to New York." He is here to compete in the British Open at Carnoustie and entered the Leeds Tournament to get back his land legs after the ocean trip and sharpen up his game.

Tied behind Turnesa in second place were Bert Hodson, the well-known British professional, and Marco Churio, the Argentine, who played so well at Southport, with 70s. A stroke behind them were three other British professionals, C. Sayner, A. G. Beck and W. H. Davies, the Ryder Cup player.

Turnesa, Out in 36, Returns in 33.

The swarthy Turnesa, professional at the Elmsford, N. Y., Golf Club, played sensationally to get his 69 for a new course record. He was out in 36, largely because of a trapped tee shot at the fourth, but came home in 33; the latter including three putts on the last green.

Jose Jurado, captain of the Argentine team, had a 73 to finish well up with the leaders. A cold wind swept the Sand Moor course, making play difficult. The weather was one of Hunter's complaints. He said he had to wear so much clothing to keep warm he couldn't swing his clubs properly.

Outsider in 3-Horse Race Wins at Belmont

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., May 19 (A.P.).—Once again the old turf adage, "play the outsiders in a three-horse race," was justified here this afternoon when A La Carte, from the Alton Stable, sprang a mild surprise by leading home the Belair Stud's Flaming and K. E. Hitt's Sunvir in the Whiskbroom, a handicap of a mile and a sixteenth. A La Carte raced on the head end from the flag fall to the finish and never left the result in doubt, to pay 3 to 1. The time was 1:43 1-5.

Sunvir was the 11-to-10 choice, while Flaming was no better than 9 to 5. There was money, however, for the winner because of his high speed.

Takoma-Silver Spring Wins in Ninth, 5 to 4

A ninth-inning attack featured by a squeeze play that sent over the winning run gave Takoma-Silver Spring High School a 5-to-4 victory yesterday over the Rockville High Nine. Mygatt singled and stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Wight's perfect bunt.

Becker, of the losers, pitched a fine game, yielding only four hits.

THURSDAY'S GAME.

Eastern vs. Western.

TECH HIGH'S BASEBALL TEAM wound up its season yesterday afternoon with a 12-1 victory over Western High in the penultimate game of the current high school series, played at Eastern Field before a gathering of 29 diehards who lasted the entire nine innings. Everett Russell pitched the full game for Tech, allowing but seven hits, striking out ten Westerners and collecting a brace of triples and a single in five appearances at the plate.

Western's attack was muted throughout by Russell's speedballing and cramped by its own unpardonable errors in judgment and execution. Western threw the ball away with all the aplomb it has shown in the ball-throwing-away throughout the series.

Hilleary's single in the third inning, following hard on Fox's walk and Keith's fielder's choice scored Fox for Western's lone run. Russell cut short the rally quickly however by fanning Schneider and Bailey to end the inning.

Tech Scores in Six Innings.

Tech hit freely from the start, scoring in six of the nine innings and going through only one inning, the third, without finding the offerings of Poore or Grimm fruitful in the way of hits.

Batson, English, Chumbris and Benner turned in good performances in what was their last high school game, Batson and Chumbris being especially potent at bat, where the former collected a homer and a double and the latter a double and a single.

GOLF DENUNCIATION AGAIN IS WRITTEN

that's something I know I can never do," and let it go at that.

The professionals, I am compelled to observe again, are a remorseless lot, who live on the vain hope and disappointment of the unfortunates who never can play the game but will not leave off trying and pining. They invent new lures such as last year's sand shovel for playing out of traps and when large issues of those have been sold and tribute has been levied at the rate of $12 a scoop, the golf association makes a law forbidding the use of same as of even date and henceforth.

The scoop was the only comforting tool ever offered to a cheerless horde of victims and its quick banishment from the legal kit was consistent with the policy of keeping the game too tough for mastery while maintaining the appearance of simplicity. I claim that inasmuch as most of the great cost of golf is paid by people who never will shoot a round of less than 95 strokes, the association, if it were conscientious, would legalize grooves in the greens to simplify putting and count no shot as a stroke unless the ball traveled one hundred yards forward, exclusive of hook or slice. To be sure, this would soften up the game but the addicts have been softened enough.

Letter Carriers Not Unduly Healthy.

I can't see why people will pay large dues and other costs of golf on the ground that golf involves walking and that walking necessarily is beneficial to the health. Letter carriers walk long distances in the course of their business and they are not a conspicuously happy lot, not have I ever read any pieces in the papers holding them up as the healthiest class in the country. They catch cold, their feet hurt and one reads of them only when some venerable postman retires with a computed life aggregate mileage of 472,000 or so-and-so many times around the earth.

Moreover, Mr. Artie McGovern, the trainer of Babe Ruth, warns me that golf is very bad for the figure, holding that the constant banging of the heels on the ground has a tendency to shake loose all the pumbing in the human equipment and shake it down into the lower compartments of the chassis in a serious jumble, causing pains and also causing paunch.

Another evil directly due to golf is the Wednesday night and Saturday night dance in muggy weather—very exhausting and no fun except for the junior set who are too fresh and good looking and ought to be in bed anyway.

I could run on and on about golf, but the case seems to be complete now and, moreover, it is getting late and I am supposed to be on the tee at 3 o'clock sharp.

Home Town Fans Eager To Back Battalino in Bout

1,000 From Hartford to Watch Featherweight Champion Defend Title Against La Barba in New York Friday.

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

HARTFORD, Conn., May 19 (U. P.).—Unlike the proverbial prophets, World's Featherweight Champion Christopher (Bat) Battalino enjoys more fame in his home town than elsewhere.

A visit to Battalino's training quarters in the dingy little St. Nicholas gym here, where he is training for his championship battle with Fidel Labara at Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night, proved to New York sports writers that the "Bat" is a hero to his fellow citizens.

Battalino, regarded generally as a sort of a "cheese champ," easily is the most popular of Hartford's 160,000 citizens—and that statement excepts not even Gov. Trumbull, the mayor and Hartford's only previous world's champion, Louis (Kid) Kaplan. Hartford boxing fans jammed the little gym today to watch Battalino in his final intensive workout and cheered the champion's every move.

Apparently Battalino is all the more popular because he foregoes training in better equipped New York gymnasiums to work before his home town followers in the low-ceilinged, poorly ventilated room above his manager's pool room. With New York gamblers offering odds of 10 to 6 against the champion, Hartfordians are backing their favorite to the limit and already arrangements have been made for more than 1,000 fans to make the bus trip to New York for Friday's bout.

Battalino Started Career in 1923.

Battalino is a native of Hartford, having been born here 23 years ago and continuing to live here with his wife and year-old daughter. The little Italian first gained fame as an amateur, satrting his career in 1923. He won the national amateur featherweight championship in 1927, knocking out four opponents in less than eight minutes of fighting, and immediately turned professional.

After less than a dozen professional bouts, Battalino won the world's featherweight championship by taking a 15-pound decision over Andre Routis, of France, in a bout staged at the Hartford Ball Park.

Battalino broke both his hands in the championship fight and his resultant inactivity cost him what little prestige he had in other parts of the country. After his hands mended he engaged in a number of overweight bouts and lost decisions to several second-rate performers. His first title defense, a knockout victory over Ignacio Fernandez restablished him at Hartford but when Bttalino made his first—and only—away from home title defense against Kid Chocolate he was quoted as a 1-to-3 underdog in the betting.

The hard hitting battler surprised the boxing world by defeating the clever Cuban and enabling his supporters to win heavily. His willingness to meet LaBarba, regarded as the uncrowned king of the division, has further established Battalino's gameness and if he can turn in another upset he will take ranking with great champions of the past.

Champion's Purse Set at $35,000.

Battalino has been guaranteed $35,000 for his title defense, with La Barba running the risk of having to pay for his chance at the championship.

This fact resulted in reports that Battalino was having trouble in making the weight and intended to abandon the featherweight class regardless of the outcome, but Battalino denies the story.

"I wanted to meet La Barba to prove to myself and the world that I really am the champion," Battalino told the United Press. "If I can't defeat the leading contenders I shouldn't hold the title. I'll make the weight easily and intend to beat La Barba and then take on anyone else the promoters can find."

A throw-back to the Battling Nelson type of fighter, Battalino was impressive in today's drill. He boxed six rounds and was punching impressively.

La Barba, a clever boxer, is certain to score heavily in the early rounds, but Battalino believes he can take the Californian's best blows, wear him down, and drive on to victory.

Mrs. Hird Leads D. C. Golfers at Sherwood

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—Adhering to par for the Sherwood Forest golf course today, Virginia Holzderber won the low prize in Class A with 88. The first women's golf event ever held at Sherwood Forest, the two-day invitation contest, will be continued tomorrow.

Three Washington women played in Class A. Mrs. H. C. Hird, Manor Club, had a score of 109—12—97, and Mrs. J. T. Powell, also of Manor, had 112—2—110. Mrs. T. N. Beavers, of Beaver Dam Club, did not turn in her card.

In Class B, Helen Hatter stroked to first place with 104—21—83. Mrs. M. L. Lawter, of Washington, turned in a card of 119—18—101 in this class.

THIS MORNING:

Washington, with a 36-hole card of 143, and he advanced to the semi-finals after beating Jesse Sweetser.

Threatened Jones

Came 1929 and Voigt qualified in both the national amateur and national open but is was in 1930 that the former public linksman clutched at international game for the first time when he had Bobby Jones down on the final holes of the final round of the British amateur only to let the title slip out of his grasp with an errant shot on the seventeenth hole that his a spectator and cost him a fatal stroke that enabled Jones, not Voight, to become the second American ever to win the British title.

People who know George Voigt have psychoanalyzed his golf to a plausible point. The fluency of his game, his jewel of consistency, the shots in his bag for every purpose, are a tribute to his public links rearing. There it was, in the midst of golfing neophytes who crossed the line of his putts, who might have whistled a ditty as he drove, who might have committed every breach of golf etiquette, that Voigt learned to play the game like some robot oblivious to the surrounding distractions.

Nerve, No "Nerves"

Voigt has nerve but no "nerves" out there on the links. Some people call it a lack of imagination. They say that it is a rich endowment for any golfer. With Voigt, a shot to the green is a shot to the green. With another golfer, with most golfers, a shot to the green is a shot that must be well hit, that must travel on a line, that must clear a trap or maybe two, that must not be overplayed, nor underplayed. It must avoid those trees on the right or the creek on the left. There are lots of things to consider.

But not so with Voigt. His lack of imagination, if it is that, stands him in good stead. His shot to the green is just a shot to the green and he sees not only the green, oblivious to every other hazard, but he sees the pin on the green as well. And he shoots for that. That's the ideal golf temperament that has won tournaments for Voigt.

MARYLAND'S ATHLETES HONORED

86 Awarded Letters at Banquet; Yost Is Speaker.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND rewarded and paid tribute to 86 athletes and nine managers at a banquet in the dining hall of the university last night at which Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics at the University of Michigan, was the principal speaker.

Including the athletes, athletic officials and invited guests, there were close to 250 present at the annual affair.

Prof. Charles S. Richardson, head of the public speaking department of the university, was the toastmaster, and all of the talks except that by Yost were informal.

Mangin Drops Match To Sutter in Practice

Montreal, May 19 (A.P.).—Aided by perfect tennis weather, the Davis Cup Teams of the United States and Canada continued their practice sessions today in preparation for their meeting in the North American zone final matches Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Only one real match was played today, Cliff Sutter, the New Orleans youngster, took a stiff match from Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., 7—5, 9—7. Previously the New York members, Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood, jr., worked out together.

The Canadian players kept no scores in their practice.

The general impression today was that Shields and Wood would form the United States doubles team and might carry the entire burden of the play. For Canada, Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville are expected to form a two-man team.

Record Wrestling Crowd To See Bouts Tomorrow

Ticket Sales Brisk for Unemployment Benefit Card at Night in Griffith Stadium; Skikat, Kalmikoff in Feature.

THE largest crowd ever to witness a card of wrestling matches in Washington is the prospect for Thursday night at Griffith Stadium when Matchmaker Joe Turner brings together a herd of well-known members of the profession with the proceeds going to the establishment of a job fund benefit under the direction of the District of Columbia committee on employment.

Tickets, which are on sale at all the leading hotels and sports stores, continued to move briskly yesterday.

Headlining the card is the bout between Dick Shikat, once recognized as national champion, and still considered by many as the best of the heavyweights, and Sergei Kalmikoff, bearded Siberian giant. Huge, experienced men, the two are wrestling in their third match. Each holds a victory over the other.

Pinkey Gardner, light heavyweight champion, turned in his title belt to Joe Turner yesterday. His bout with George Beamis is in defense of his championship.

The feature of the rest of the card is the match between Jim McMillen, perennial challenger of Jim Londos, and Rudy Dusek, the tough Nebraskan, who has never been beaten in Washington. Other exhibitions bring together Tiny Roebuck and Jim Clinstock and Dr. Ralph Wilson and Tiger Nelson.

Western Near Tennis Title; Defeats Tech

Western High's netmen, perennial public high tennis champions, advanced to within one step of the 1931 title by defeating Tech's team yesterday on the reservoir courts, 6 to 1. For the most part, the engagement saw a succession of easy Western individual triumphs, only Mattern in the singles and Sievers and May in the doubles putting up stout resistance for Tech. The last named pair won their match from Dial and Dulin.

Eastern, which has won one match and tied one to date, engages Western on Saturday in the deciding match of the series. If the Easterners win—which is decidedly unlikely, according to the dope—they will take the title, as Western's record now is two wins and no defeats.

SINGLES.

Glassie (W) defeated Fine, 6—2, 6—0; Dial (W) defeated Mattern, 6—4, 9—7; Buscher (W) defeated Sievers, 3—6, 6—2, 6—0; Rutley (W) defeated May, 6—3, 6—2; Dulin (W) defeated Kemper, 7—5, 6—1.

DOUBLES.

Buscher and Glassie (W) defeated Fine and Kemper, 3—6, 13—11, 6—3; Sievers and May (T) defeated Dial and Dulin, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Navy Crews Depart June 5 for Classic

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 19.—The fact that the annual intercollegiate rowing classic at Poughkeepsie is to be staged June 16, about ten days ahead of former years, Naval Academy oarsmen will depart from Annapolis correspondingly earlier in order to have ample time to familiarize themselves with water conditions of the Hudson. The Middies will enter crews in the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen brushes, leaving here June 5, the day following commencement ceremonies.

During the next two weeks the Middie sweepsters will be put through stiff drills on the Severn for the longer grind of the Poughkeepsie races, as their preliminary races here and elsewhere have been over the shorter route of the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths. Every one connected with rowing at the academy realizes that only marked improvement in form will give the Tars a chance of annexing some of the laurels in the big show.

TRIBE RETURNS ROOKIE.

Oakland, Calif., May 19 (A.P.).—Officials of the Oakland Baseball Club received word today Howard Craghead, right-handed pitcher sold by them to the Cleveland Americans last winter, would be returned immediately for further experience. He will leave Cleveland tomorrow, arriving in time for Sunday's game.

ALEXANDRIA PUPILS PLAN DANCE RECITAL

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Mary Cabell Callaway will present her pupils in their annual dance recital tomorrow evening, May 21, in Lyceum Hall, promptly at 7:30 o'clock, as many of the participants are small children, and also for the convenience of the school-age spectators, as this is the season of examinations, and the play will be started promptly and closed at an early hour. Mrs. D. C. Book will be at the piano.

Two dance numbers that were presented at a recent benefit performance will be repeated by request, "Daisy Chains" and the "Dance of the Leaves." A special feature will be songs and ballroom exhibition by members of the Heigh-Ho and Try Dancing Clubs.

An attractive playlet, "Pierrot Beneath the Stars," will be danced by Miss Betsy Smythe, Miss Margaret Eddington, Miss Margaret Brinkman, Miss Frances Robinson, Miss Emily MacMorland, Miss Celestine Diener and Miss Alberta Thomas, with the fairies represented by the "Leaves" chorus.

The second part of the program will be called "Southern Rhapsody," and will be a medley of old tunes and new dances. An old-fashioned polka will be danced by Frances Robinson, Josephine Robinson, Emily MacMorland, Margaret Brinkman; song and dance, Mary Ellen Fannon; Spanish dance, Celestine Diener, Betty Smythe; duet, Anne Daniel, Jacqueline Vincent; chorus, Anne Cabell Bryan, Sally Ford, Ella Fairfax Haar, Mary Ellen Fannon.

Polly Wolly Doodle tap, Alberta Thomas; Dixie, Caroline Ford, Grace Richards, Virginia Rasbach, Iona Newton; Hickory Dickory, Nancy Roberts; Punchinello, Viola Komf, Jane Hulfish; "The Life of a Rose," aMrgaret Eddington; the flower seller, Harriet Hulfish; "There Was an Old Man," Grace Richards; promenade, Nancy Roberts, Mary Ellen Fannon; cretonne girls, Anne Duvall, Rebecca Miller, Josephine Robinson; military tap, Margaret Eddington; "Ole Virginny," Cretonne girls; hat and cane dance, Harriet Hulfish; golly wogs, Iona Newton, Virginia Rasbach, Caroline Ford, Grace Richards.

Finale, Dixie.

Dates have been announced for the closing exercises of both public and private schools, with St. Agnes Episcopal School closing on Monday, June 1; the Episcopal High School on Tuesday, June 2; the Episcopal Theological Seminary finals on June 4 and 5 with ordination ceremonies on the second day, with a class of eight to be ordained into the ministry.

St. Mary's Academy will hold class night exercises on June 8, with the annual commencement on June 9, while the Xaverian Brothers School plan to hold the closing exercises on June 12. The parochial school will close on June 12, also.

The public schools will close on June 11 and 12, with graduating exercises for George Mason High School the evening of June 11 and the Alexandria high the next evening.

Mrs. Charles Alexander Swann Sinclair, regent of Mount Vernon chapter, Daughters of the American evolution, addressed the assembly of the Alexandria High School yesterday morning and announced the winners in the essay contest by the pupils on "George Washington, the Citizen," all of whom will be given a bus trip to Fredericksburg on Saturday with a visit to all evolutionary shrines in that historic town. Judges were Commander H. B. Soule, U. S. Navy, Mrs. Soule, the ev. John C. Welwood, Mrs. C. A. S. Sinclair, Mrs. obert Miller eese, Mrs. John Leadbeater, Mrs. Gardner Lloyd Boothe 2d, Mrs. Emmett C. Dunn, Mrs. Henry Starr Wattles and Miss Elsie Snowden.

The winners are Frances Trenary Mary Hinton, Frances Nicklin, Sarah Carter, Marian Moncure, Conway Brawner, Caroline Stanton, Joe Painter, Harold Gist, Lavinia Whalen, Lillian Wigfield, Mary Lagnford, Evelyn Davis, Virginia Crouse, Ruth Cornell, students from the Alexandria High School; Richard Paget, Virginia Wilburn, Helen Seymour, of West End School; Milton Routzahn, Edith Spaulding, Eleanor Welner, Jessica Buck, Margaret Elliott, Eleanor Heaton, Anna Kelly, Marguerite Millian, Elizabeth Peabody, Susie Smith and Catherine Curtis, of George Mason High School.

Mount Vernon Chapter is giving this trip to the winning essay writers in line with its policy of teaching Revolutionary history, promoting patriotic education and a proper regard for our historic shrines.

Confederate Memorial Day, May 24, falling on Sunday, the annual exercises will be held on Monday, May 25, and in Lee Camp Hall, as Washington street, around the Confederate Monument, is torn up for the building of the Mount Vernon boulevard. The survivors of Robert E. Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans, the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Sons of Veterans will assemble in the hall, where the invocation will be by the Rev. C. M. Compher, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church; songs by the quartet choir of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; with Mrs. George E. Warfield at the piano, and the address by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester. After this service the assemblage will march to the Columbus street entrance to Christ Church yard, and place flowers on the Confederate Mound in that yard, with a volley fired by a squad of soldiers closing the day.

Confederate flags will be placed on the graves in the local cemeteries on Saturday, May 23.

Frank W. Deeton, 73 years old, a contracting painter, died on Monday at his home, 519 Queen street. Besides his wife he is survived by a sister, Mrs. William H. Lyles, of Washington; a brother, Andrew D. Deeton, of this city; three daughters, Mrs. Grover C. Payne, Mrs. Maury W. Gaines and Mrs. Russell Kidwell; four sons, Frank W., jr., of Washington; Malcolm O., James D., and Leo H. Deeton, of this city.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home, conducted by the Rev. C. Morgan Compher, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church. Burial will be in Union Cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Adelia Barnett, who died on Monday, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the home, 1307 King street, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, of the First Baptist Church, and the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Baptist Temple. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

The ambulance for the Alexandria Fire Department arrived yesterday and has been placed in the showroom at 715 King street, where it will be on exhibition for ten days.

Charles S. Wood, member of the national committee on Boy Scout work, with headquarters in New York, spoke before the meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday, Judge William S. Snow, president, presiding. Lawrence E Roland was named chairman of a committee to arrange for the annual Kiwanis-Rotary baseball game.

A resolution calling for legalization of the manufacture and sale of beer and wine for beverage purposes, the unemployment situation." It was submitted by representatives of the yeast, cereal beverage and soft drink workers of America.

A resolution protesting against the proposed use of convict labor to build the new State prison at Roxbury and instructing the executive board to "demand of Gov. Ritchie and the State board of welfare that practices of this kind be stopped."

Union Meat Buying Asked.

A resolution declaring that Baltimore's meat packing establishments operate under nonunion conditions in competition with Washington's unionized packing plants and urging that trades unionists buy only meat butchered by union men.

Another resolution, a Washington measure, also referred to the committee, urged that practical inspectors be appointed to inspect steam, hot water, vapor and vacuum heating systems in the District of Columbia.

Among the resolutions reported out but held over for consideration today was one calling upon Congress to call a constitutional convention to revise the Constitution with the aim of curing some of the present economic ills. Another, reported unfavorably by the legislative committee, urged that Federal employes be prohibited from doing outside work in their spare time and thereby competing with union labor.

LABOR WILL BALLOT ON NOMINEE TODAY

Maryland and District Test Green Harmony Plan at Convention.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—The attempt to eradicate partisan politics and restore internal harmony to the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor by a method suggested by William Green, American Federation of Labor president, will meet its crucial test at the Federation's final convention session here tomorrow.

The test will come in the shape of the general meeting's vote of confirmation of the Maryland caucus' nomination of Henry F. Broening, president of the Baltimore Federation of Labor, for president of the State and District of Columbia organization.

The Maryland counties caucus selected Robert Kimble, of the Allegany Trades Council, Cumberland, for treasurer of the Federation and James J. Brehany, of the Cumberland Glass Workers Local Union, No. 69, and John Geist, of the Hagerstown Carpenter's Union Local Union, No. 340, for vice presidents.

Woman Chosen by Baltimore.

Baltimore city caucus selected Miss Anna Neary, of the Bindery Women's Local, No. 123, and Charles Ernest, of the Pressman's Local, No. 31, for vice presidents.

The Washington caucus named Newton A. James, of Firemen and Oilers Local, No. 63, and Richard A. Dickson, of Press Feeders Local, No. 42, for vice presidents, and renamed Frank J. Coleman, of Plate Printers Local, No. 2, for secretary. Mr. James, retiring president of the federation, lives at Hyattsville, Md.

A series of resolutions were reported out by the committe as follows: "thereby relieving to a large extent

EPISCOPAL DIOCESE TO CONVENE TODAY

Industrial Student Talks at Preliminary Sessions in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 19.—The ultimate solution of the problems of industry, like the problems of war and peace and of family relationships, is to be found in the Christian religion, declared Spencer Miller, jr., student of industrial conditions, speaking tonight at the preliminary session of the 136th annual council of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Virginia. Formal sessions open tomorrow mornng in St. Paul's Memorial Church, University of Virginia, and Bishop Henry St. George Tucker will preside.

"The church itself can not stand apart and aloof from the deep currents which are changing the face of our civilization," he said, "nor can it, on the other hand, become involved as a special advocate for either side. The church must continue to witness to the principles of social justice and can lift every question above the level of prejudice and hate by illuminating that situation with the principles of love and human fellowship exemplified by teachings of God."

Discussing the recent Danville strike, Mr. Miller asserted that the South is in the process of an industrial revolution. The symbol of that change, he said, is the textile mill itself. "It foreshadows an important change in the whole life and work of the Southern people; it means a shift in the center of gravity in the American industrial and economic life. There is the whole question of the attitude of employers toward employes; of employes to the public at large. Here are new problems and new relationships. It is the question of an attempt to adapt new and modern ways to an old section of our society. He who even thinks it is easy to strike an even and just balance in the presence of these factors, many of which are so exertmely intangible, is a bold person."

Mr. Miller conceded that there are situations developing in industry which can not be reconciled by any method of interpretation with the principles of justice and human brotherhood.

2 Maryland Men Escape Death in Crash of Auto

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 19.—Deputy Sheriff William E. Foreman and his cousin, Martin Foreman, narrowly escaped death early this morning when an automobile in which they were riding failed to round a curve on the Thurmont road and crashed through a fence against the side of a house.

After being treated by a Thurmont physician, the deputy was brought to the City Hospital, where an examination revealed a fractured nose and severe lacerations and bruises about the face, head and body. Martin Foreman was able to go home after treatment.

Facing Sentence, Man Shoots Self

Bondsmen Find Drug Suspect Wounded as Court Holds Up Case.

Norfolk, Va., May 19 (A.P.).—Alle Riportella, a former officer of the Grand Lodge of the Sons of Italy in Virginia, shot himself in the head today at his apartment while Judge Luther B. Way, in Federal District Court, waited to sentence him on a charge of violating the Harrison narcotic act. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said his condition was serious.

Riportella was found by Vincent Feriazzo and Felix Redavid, his bondsmen, when they went to his apartment to learn why he had not appeared in court. There was a revolver by his side, and they also found a note written in Italian.

In the letter, as translated by Ferlazzo, Riportella said he was a victim of circumstances and added that he "could not stand the disgrace of a prison term."

POLLARD INSPECTS MT. VERNON TODAY

Governor Will Be Luncheon Guest of Ladies' Group After Annual Tour.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia will make his official inspection of the Mount Vernon estate this morning, accompanied by the board of visitors. Under the charter granted the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, the governor is ex-officio chairman of the board of visitors, and makes the tour during the annual ten-day session of the association. Following, the governor will be guest of the association at a luncheon on the estate.

This afternoon members of the association will journey to Hollin Hall, the estate of Harley Peyton Wilson on the Fort Hunt road, where Mrs. Wilson will present to the association a large map of the Mount Vernon estate drawn by George Washington. The map bears the personal signature of Washington. Hollin Hall is the estate originally owned by a son of George Mason of Gunston Hall, who was author of the Virginia Bill of Rights, which later became a part of the United States Constitution.

During this session of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association a letter from Gen. Washington's address to the General Assembly of Virginia has been presented to the association through Mrs. Benjamin Warren, vice regent for Michigan, as a gift from Mrs. Jonathan Buckley, of New York. The association stated it is particularly fitting that this letter should be reurned to Mount Vernon, as in it Gen. Washington states that he is looking forward to the day when he will be released from his public duties and can return to his beloved home.

A large silk flag also has been presented to the association by Mrs. Thomas P. Denham, vice regent for Florida. The flag is blue and gold, and on the blue ground is reproduced the badge of the association. This is the first association flag and was given by the vice regent in behalf of her State in memory of the former regent, Mrs. Harriet Clayton Coenegys.

Hunger Marchers Protest Idleness

1,500 Jobless Miners Seek Relief From State in West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., May 19 (A.P.).—Plans for a "hunger march" of 1,500 miners at Ward and along Kellys Creek to the State capital here to protest against destitution and unemployment were announced today by a delegation of men from that district.

The march will begin tonight, spokesmen for the delegation said. The marchers will camp along the way tonight, planning to reach the capital tomorrow to appear before Gov. Conley and request relief from the State.

The spokesmen said the Kellys Creek Collieries Co. declined to issue "script" for the purchase of groceries at the company store. "Our families are starving," one member of the delegation said. "For fifteen days we have had but one day's work a week and the company store has refused to help us out." The men said 850 families were affected by lack of work.

Frederick Is Host To Cattle Owners

Association of Maryland Holds Annual Meeting and Banquet.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 19.—About 100 persons, owners and breeders from every section of Maryland, attended the annual meeting and banquet of the Maryland Holstein-Friesian Association at Francis Scott Key Hotel tonight. J. Homer Remsberg, Middletown, president, presided and was toastmaster at the banquet.

Addresses were made by Prof. H. H. Wing, Cornell University, president of the National Holstein-Friesian Association; Emory L. Coblentz, State senator; Howard C. Barker, superintendent of advanced registry testing, extension service, University of Maryland, and Walter F. Andrews, Beach City, Ohio. All referred to the growth of the dairy industry, with particular reference to the Holstein breed of cattle.

Reports of county associations were made and prizes aggregating $340—first, $100; second, $90; third, $75; fourth, $45; fifth, $30—were awarded for records the past year in testing, showing at fairs and production.

Drunken Woman Driver Must Scrub.

Chicago, May 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Ferguson, 35, was sentenced today to scrub the floor of the Town Hall Court for driving while intoxicated. She broke down and wept. "You ought to learn," said Judge Leon Ecliman, "that scrubbing floors is more dignified than getting drunk."

MEETING TO DISCUSS GAS RATE PLANNED

Prince Georges Group to Seek Lower Schedule From Company.

A special committee of members of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon with George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., in an effort to agree on a lower scale of gas rates.

A revised schedule has already been offered to the Public Utilities Committee of the chamber, but the committee hopes that these proposed rates can be lowered. Mr. Wood, when he presented the revised scale, said that while the new rates were not as low as he had thought they would be, he did not think they could be lowered at this time. He agreed to the conference, however, and will consult his principal after the consultation today.

The new rate is: $1 for the first 200 feet; $1.75 per thousand for the next 800 feet; next 1,500 feet, $1.40; 90 cents per thousand for more than 2,500 feet. The old rates were: First 200 feet, 35 cents per 100; next 200, 23 cents per 100; next 2,600, $1.75 per 1,000; next 2,000, $1.70 per 1,000; next 5,000, $1.65 per 1,000; over 10,000, $1.35 per thousand.

Under the old rate, 2,500 feet of gas cost $4.38; under the new rate, the same amount will cost only $3.85. In addition, the new rate on amounts over 2,500 feet will reduce the bills of those who use gas for heating.

Mr. Wood estimated that the new schedule would reduce the income of the Washington Suburban Gas Co. from $20,000 to $9,000 per year, on a basis of the same amount of business as last year. He stressed the fact that the Hyattsville company cost $1,090,000 when bought by the interests who own the Washington company.

The average consumption of gas in the area served by the Hyattsville company is 2,300 feet per month. The average gas bill under the old rate was $4.83 per month; under the new rate it will be $4.57. Mr. Wood said that the present average consumption, under either the new or the old rate, was not profitable to the company. The lower rate on quantity, he hopes, will raise the average amount used to a figure which will be profitable.

He spoke in favor of a six-month trial of the new rates, with a possibility of changing them if they were found to be unsatisfactory at the end of this time. He also stated that the proposed rates compared favorably with those in force where a plant served 5,000 meters. There are 3,400 meters on the Hyattsville system, he said.

The committee which will consult with Mr. Wood consists of Caesar L. Aiello, Dr. Robert W. McCullough, Bert H. Wise, M. T. May and A. H. Seidenspinner.

The Prince Georges Board of County Commissioners yesterday visited Hyattsville to personally inspect the three buildings which have been offered to them to house county offices, but no decision has been reached as to which will be rented.

The three buildings are the First National Bank Building, the Hyattsville Building Association structure, and a row of new stores on Rhode Island avenue. The rental of the bank building has not been set, but J. Enos Ray, president of the bank which owns it, has said that the price would be considerably under the limit of $500 per month set by the recent Legislature. The stores would be rented for $470, and the building association quarters for considerably less.

It is thought likely that a suitable building will be chosen in time to house the full-time police substation which is due to be established on June 1.

The Commissioners, at their meeting yesterday, ordered their attorney to write to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad protesting against the removal of the crossing watchman and safety gates at Branchville. The pending change was brought to their attention by J. Frank Gravely and Joseph A. Appleton. The present station agent at this point attends the gates, and abolition of the agent has been approved by the Public Service Commission after a hearing. The gates are to be replaced by an electric warning signal.

A letter from W. W. Portser, division engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was received, asking permission to detour traffic over the Tuxedo bridge while the flooring is being relaid. The commissioners agreed to allow the repairs and the diversion of traffic. The work will take about ten days.

A road examining board reported favorably on the proposal to take over as county roads the old Fort Foote road and the Temple Mill road. Both projects were referred to the chairman of the district road committee. The board was composed of Joseph A. Sheriff, George N. Cox and Clarence A. Phelps.

George Palmer, of Seat Pleasant, appeared to ask $300 for road repairs, but no action was taken on his request. He was to improve Roosevelt avenue from the District Line School to the District line. T. Van Clagett and Charles Hill, town commissioners of Marlboro, protested the general disregard of "No Parking" signs in front of the courthouse.

A letter from C. L. Goodwin, of 216 V street northeast, commending Deputy Sheriff A. C. Thompson for his work in arresting Fred O. Randolph, was received by the board. Randolph was arrested for driving while drunk, and during the trial Thompson recognized him as being wanted for manslaughter and arrested him on this charge.

A number of new applicants for positions on the county police force have filed with the Commissioners. One of them is Jeremiah J. Crowley, of Lanham, who is said to have a good chance of being chief. Other favorites for this post, besides Crowley, are L. Clinton Donaldson, of Laurel; A. W. Hepburn, of Mount Rainier, former lieutenant of the force, and H. G. Machen, of Hyattsville, former sergeant.

Others who have asked appointment to the new force are Preston Street, of Brentwood; Deputy Sheriff A. C. Thompson, of Clinton; R. H. Steele, of Lanham; John A. Cook, of Riverdale; W. H. Crozier, of Suitland; Carl C. Carrick, of Seat Pleasant; John Smith, of Bradbury Heights; William C. Quade, of Cheltenham; Oscar F. Beall, of Marlboro; J. J. Vermeulen, of Brentwood; Arthur M. Brown, of Laurel; Charles A. Smith, of Bradbury Heights; Roy McGee, of Oxon Hill; William J. Fierstein, of Bladensburg; E. L. Campbell, of Capitol Heights, and Leonard George Simpson, of Bladensburg.

These 17, with the 23 applications already filed, make a total of 40 names from which the commissioners will have to choose eleven. In addition to those who have made formal application, there are known to be others desirous of posts who are quietly bringing influence to bear, although they have not yet come out into the open.

Diagnosis of injuries received by Daniel West, 6 years old, when he was struck by an auto in Hyattsville can not be made for some time, according to officials at Sibley Hospital. The child's head was bruised and scraped, and is so swollen that the extent of his injuries can not be determined.

The child is said to have been struck by an auto driven by William Burslem, 19 years old, of Hyattsville, on Oakwood avenue, as he was returning from school. Daniel was walking with his sister, Bertha, 8, when the accident occurred.

Walter Gavins, colored, of Bladensburg, was released yesterday from the Marlboro Jail, where he had been held in connection with the death of Robert Jackson, also colored, of the same town. Police said that Gavins' alibi had been proved correct, and that a later autopsy showed that Jackson died of a broken neck.

The circuit judge yesterday granted a decree of absolute divorce to Elsie Payne, of Cottage City, who had sued Raymond Payne, of Washington, charging desertion and cruelty. Attorney John S. White represented the woman.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHAT? NO CONFETTI!

THE New York Board of Trade has condemned the use of ticker tape and confetti in welcoming America's distinguished guests, and voted to urge the substitution of "a more suitable and dignified welcome." This action officially inaugurates the silly season. Any distinguished visitor who got into America without his hair full of waste paper would consider it a personal slight. They love it.

* * * *

Now and then the failure of the natives to remove clinkers, ink bottles and iron bolts from the wastebaskets as they empty them from skyscraper windows may cause momentary resentment on the part of the day's hero, but he prefers the entire contents of the baskets to nothing at all.

* * * *

Not dump ticker tape, confetti and torn paper on a municipal guest of honor? Not engulf him in a sea of office rubbish? Not shower his unturned face with the office sweepings of America's skyscrapers? Don't be ridiculous! Any real hero who didn't get the treatment would sue the United States.

* * * *

And, assuming that some visiting hotsy-totsy expressed a willingness to forgo the office debris bath, how would the Board of Trade break those Broadway office workers of the dumping habit? It's become an instinct. The moment a stenographer hears a drum or a bugle in the street below she instinctively reaches for the waste paper basket. The stuff is out of the window before she realizes it.

* * * *

ELMER TWITCHELL came bouncing into the office today with a story that the meeting at which the use of ticker tape was condemned was not a meeting of the Board of Trade at all. "It was really a meeting of the Protective Association of Street Cleaners, posing as Board of Trade members," declared Mr. Twitchell, greatly excited.

* * * *

"The street cleaners have been trying for years to figure out a way to stop this old custom," said Elmer. "It was finally decided to resort to subterfuge. About 25 of the more substantial looking street sweepers were chosen to hire a hall and pose as the Board of Trade. They wore old-fashioned watch charms and chewed pepper-mint drops to complete the illusion, if any.

* * * *

"It was at first proposed that resolutions be passed doing away with official receptions. In fact, one street cleaner went so far as to make a motion that the mayor's reception committee be towed to sea and dumped outside the ten-mile limit. Another man moved that no distinguished persons be allowed to visit the city.

* * * *

"It was a pretty stormy session, the conservative element finally winning with a resolution merely favoring the abolition of waste paper dumping, as a starter.

* * * *

"Do you know how I discovered it wasn't a meeting of the Board of Trade?"

"No."

"A radio across the way started playing 'Hail the Conquering Hero Comes' and the committee chairman absent-mindedly began sweeping the room with a big broom!"

"Market Shows Some Signs of Support."—headline. If anybody is supporting the stock market at present levels it must be a Singer midget.

It would be ironical if one of these days a motion picture magnate got hit by a stray bullet from a gangman's fight while on his way from a meeting at which he had stoutly defended crime pictures as in no way harmful to anybody.

BUILDING IN VIRGINIA IS SHOWN BY CENSUS

1,194 Contractors Report on Projects Completed for Year 1929.

Richmond, Va., May 19 (A. P.).—Records of the construction section of the census of distribution received here today showed that 1,194 contractors in Virginia filed reports for construction done in 1929.

Of this number 337 contractors each reported construction work of $25,000 or more. These reports are being tabulated and final statistics for each State will be issued from time to time as the compilations are completed.

The number of contractors reporting a year's business of less than $25,000 was 857. Of this number 717 classified themselves as to type of work handled, while 40 failed to do so.

An analysis of the reports of these 717 contractors reveals that 251 reported themselves as general contractors. The general contractors classified as to types of work handled showed 212 engaged in building construction, 34 as highway and street contractors and 5 miscellaneous.

Subcontractors whose reports showed their year's business as less than $25,000 numbered 466. The principal classifications of this group follows; Plumbing-heating, 176; painting-decorating, 76; electrical, 72; carpentering, 30; roofing, 27; masonry, 21; plastering, 17; marble-tiling, 13; concreting, 12; heating-ventilating, 12; miscellaneous, 10.

License for Richmond Produce Firm Revoked

(Associated Press.)

The license of Burton & Briel, Inc., Richmond, Va., produce dealers, has been revoked by the Agriculture Department for violation of the perishable agriculture commodity act.

The revocation was announced yesterday by the department with the statement that the violations were "flagrant and repeated." The company may not engage in business again except at the discretion of Secretary Hyde.

Fraternal Americans Convene in Winchester

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., May 19.—Membership gains were slight in Virginia last year, the State Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, was told in committee reports at today's annunl session here, due largely, it was said, to general business depression. Otherwise the order was reported in good condition, including finances. About 150 representatives of over 100 subordinate councils registered.

State Councilor W. A. Wise, Quicksburg, presided. Nineteen new representatives attending a State Council for the first time were obligated and given degrees. A dozen committees were appointed to pass upon reports. The council voted to meet next year in Alexandria.

MONTGOMERY VOTES VILLA ROMA PERMIT

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4208.

Villa Roma, roadhouse on Rockville pike, was licensed to operate for another year yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners by a vote of 6 to 1. The license carries permission to operate a public dance hall and requires the payment of $1,000 a year license fee to the county.

The application for a renewal of the license by Frank Abbo, proprietor of the establishment, was opposed at a public hearing held in Rockville two weeks ago by the commissioners. Members of the Rockville Pike Citizens' Association opposed the granting of the permit. Several residents who lived closest to the roadhouse, however, told the commissioners that they were not disturbed by the club.

Several additional county organizations filed letters with the commissioners, recommending that the license be renewed after it became known that thre was opposition. Among these were the executive committee of the Rockville Fire Department, the xcutive committee of the Rockville Post of the American Legion, representatives of two Washington American Legion posts, and four members of the executive committee of the Woman's Democratic Club of Montgomery County, all of whom said that they had held functions at the Villa Roma and had found it to be operated in an orderly manner.

Carey E. Quinn, executive secretary of the Progressive Democratic party, and Walter W. Dawson, Republican member of the House of Delegates from Montgomery County, appeared as counsel for Mr. Abbo and urged the issuance of the permit.

Lacy Shaw, president of the board of county commissioners, was the only resident. He stated that inasmuch as he had opposed several applications for similar establishments in his own district at Silver Spring, that he did not feel that he could conscientiously vote for the issuance of the permit. He made it plain however that he did not wish to influence the other members of the board.

Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., representing the Georgetown Gas Co. of Montgomery County and the Maryland Gas Transmission Co. of Baltimore, appeared before the county comissioners yesterday to protect the assessments against these companies.

The commissioners postponed the hearing until next Monday, when they will meet again with Mr. Peter, who in the meantime will prepare more information on the valuation of the gas companies' property. The commissioners also told Attorney Peter that they will arrange for him to discuss the matter with the representatives of the State Tax Commission who will be in Rockville Tuesday.

The annual meeting of the residents of the town of Kensington will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the State Armory to nominate candidates for all municipal offices. The town election will be held June 1. The polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. on that date.

The tax rate of Takoma Park will remain $1.10 per $100 of assessed value, the town council decided at a meeting Monday night. Mayor Ben G. Davis said that it had been hoped to reduce the tax rate but because a portion of the five-year street building program cost remains to be paid it was found impossible. The rate next year is expected to be lowered to at least $1 per $100.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen Rebecca Stup, 52 years old, wife of Jesse Eugene Stup, who was killed Monday when she fell down the attic stairs in her home at Kensington, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Ascension Episcopal Church, Gaithersburg. Burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg.

The heel of Mrs. Stup's shoe is believed to have caught in the step near the top of the flight, precipitating her to the bottom of the stairway, causing a fracture of the skull. She was pronounced dead by Dr. Eugene Jones, of Kensington. Mrs. Stup formerly was a Miss Young and had lived at Gaithersburg for many years until she recently moved to Kensington. Her husband has for a long time been an employe of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Mrs. Stup is survived by her husband; two sons, Ross Y. Stup and Gordon A. Stup; two daughters, Mrs. Julia Selser and Miss Alice Virginia Stup, all of Kensington, and a granddaughter, Betsy Ross Stup.

Training at Prison Urged for Judges

Dr. White Sees Advantage for Prosecutors and Bench Personnel.

Baltimore, Md., May 19 (A.P.).—Just as physicians have to serve interneships in hospitals, lawyers, in the opinion of Dr. William A. White, of Washington, should be required to serve a period of training at prisons before being made prosecuting attorneys or criminal court judges.

Dr. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, attacked the "vengeance motive" of criminal law at a meeting sponsored by the mental hygiene society of Maryland here. He asserted faith in the gradual enlightenment of the courts and penal officials, rather than in radical and specific changes in criminal laws.

A warning against too heavy reliance on scientific principles was soumded by Dr. Sheldon Glueck, acting director of Harvard University's new institute of criminal law.

He urged that the judge's role be confined to presiding at a criminal trial and that the matter of sentence be intrusted to a tribunal composed of a lawyer, a mental hygienist and a penologist.

Producer Delays Honolulu Wedding.

Honolulu, May 19 (A.P.).—John McCormick, motion picture producer, announced today that because Colleen Moore, his divorced film actress wife, failed to file an affidavit in Los Angeles courts for her final decree, his marriage to Mrs. Janet Gattis, planned for today, would be postponed.
